'T'WAS A LONG WAIT

Marshal States Arson Definite In Langford Fire

RCMP and provincial fire marshal's investigators today continued their probe of two Victoria area fires, one of which they described as "definitely arson."

David Cumming, fire marshal's investigator, said a Monday night fire at the home of William Heal, 1211 Goldstream, Langford, was deliberately set. Kindling wood and parts of a mop were found beside the house after the blaze was extinguished. Damage was estimated at $100.

Reports of a darkened car rushing from the Atom Lumber Co. sawmill Thursday moments before the mill burst into flames are also being investigated. Arson is suspected in the $30,000 blaze.

'Want to Choose Our Own Panties' Cry Bloomer-Hating Army Girls

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Dame Irene Ward said today that she is going to uphold efforts of British army girls to escape wearing government issued panties.

"When it comes to undies," said Dame Irene, a Conservative member of Parliament,

"women like to choose their own."

She said she would bring up the matter in the House of Commons next Wednesday by asking the minister of defence, the hon. Sir Walter Monckton, to give the army ladies a stipulated panty allowance.

"With that money," said Dame

Irene, "they can buy their own and not have to wear those horrors presently supplied by the Women's Royal Army Corps."

"We sympathize," said a treasury spokesman, "but we are afraid they'll have to keep on wearing regular issue. Sorry."

Said a WRAC spokesman:

"The girls get an issue of three pairs of khaki knickers bloomers with elastic at the waist and at the legs, three pairs of very short white panties and three bras."

A WRAC girl expressed her opinion:

"Those khaki bloomers are so long that they would show beneath our skirts — if we wore them. Not one girl in 50 wears them. We buy our own."

Asked about the bras, she sneered:

"We could fasten them over our battle dress."

Baby Kidnapping Brings Arrests

No Ransom Paid As Parents Wait For Call on Five-Week-Old Son

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Two men were held in police custody today as detectives pushed their search for five-week-old Peter Weinberger who was kidnapped from his carriage Wednesday.

Police were close-mouthed about the two men except to say they were picked up Friday night, questioned during the night and were kept in custody.

A police department spokesman quoted Chief of Detectives Stuyvesant Pinnell as saying the two "had no direct connection with the kidnapping."

It was reported, however, that one of the men telephoned the parents of the missing child and presumably the call was traced. The second man was reported to have been loitering near the Weinberger home.

Police said definitely no ransom money has exchanged hands. Peter's distraught parents awaited another call from their baby's kidnapper.

A man phoned Friday from a New York city pay station to assure the father, wholesale drug salesman Morris Weinberger, that the baby is alive and well and to up the ransom price from $2,000 to $5,000.

"I am ready to meet your demands... I am waiting your call," Weinberger told the kidnapper in a pre-arranged message carried by newspapers and a night television news show.

Weinberger said he was convinced that the caller was the kidnapper who snatched the boy from his carriage on the patio of the Weinberger home in this fashionable suburb July 4.

But police cautioned against over-optimism and said it was "problematical" that the baby was still alive.

$20,000 Swim Prizes Offered By Brewery

TORONTO (CP)—Brading's Brewery Ltd. said today that it would pay $20,000 to the first three finishers of an annual 32-mile Lake Ontario swim, but added that someone else would have to be found to sponsor the marathon.

And they sniffed at a desperate delegate who asked: "What is your view on snuff-taking?"

But when the chairman announced the extra session, the majority gave in. Then scores of delegates fumbled happily for their cigarettes.

25 CENTS MORE FOR HAIRCUT

Haircuts in Victoria will be increased in price, Monday from $1.00 to $1.25.

Secretary of the barbers' union, W. J. Singer, announced the increase today. He said cost of children's haircuts will remain unchanged at 75 cents except on Saturday when the $1.25 charge will be general.

Cyclist 'Fair' After Collision At Bay, Blanshard

Condition of a 68-year-old cyclist in collision with a car at Bay and Blanshard at 5 p.m. today was described as "fair" by hospital officials today.

Reginald F. Minihennich, 2926 Fifth, suffered concussion and head and shoulder lacerations in the mishap.

Police identified the driver of the car as Roderick J. Graff. Minihennich was taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

In a second traffic accident Friday, four-year-old Wayne Saby, 1034 Burdett, was treated and released from St. Joseph's after he was struck by a car.

Police said the boy suffered mostly from shock when he ran out in front of a parked car and was hit by a car driven by Harold L. Shidder of Quebec.

The accident occurred in the 1000-block Cook.

Girl 'Much Improved'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Jean Margettes, the 18-year-old Sunnyvale, Calif., girl who was pinned for nine days under a wrecked car in which her fiancé was killed, was reported today "much improved" and "more lucid."

HOWE MEETS MASSEY, ELECTION COMING SOON?

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says in a dispatch from Ottawa that new speculation that the government is considering dissolving Parliament and calling an election spread today with the disclosure that acting prime minister Howe was in conference Thursday with Governor-General Massey.

The dispatch says Mr. Howe spent about half an hour with Mr. Massey. It is the Governor-General's prerogative to dissolve Parliament at the request of the government.

Mr. Massey said he was "much improved" and "more lucid."

Queen Visit 'Sure'

St. Laurent Is Confident

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent intimated today that Queen Elizabeth is almost certain to accept an invitation to open the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1959.

He said also on his arrival from the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London that he would like to see the next meeting in Ottawa.

Arriving at nearby Uplands airport aboard the RCAF C-5, he said he had an audience with the Queen during his first day in London and expressed to her the hope that she would be able to inaugurate the seaway.

"She was certainly interested," Mr. St. Laurent said when asked whether the Queen had indicated whether she would accept the invitation.

The prime minister said that later, during a dinner party, the Duke of Edinburgh assured him that it would have to be "something pretty serious" to interfere with the Queen's intention to officiate at the seaway opening ceremonies.

DISCUSSIONS 'FRUITFUL'

Touching on the conference itself, he said the discussions were "fruitful" and that he would like to see the next meeting in the Canadian capital.

But he emphasized that no decision has been taken on the date or site for the next conference. He recalled that there had been a Commonwealth conference in Ottawa in 1932 and that prime ministers of other countries might feel that before a second one was held here, the site should be in some other country.

The prime minister was asked to comment on the speakership problem in the Commons but said he could say nothing until he had been fully apprised of the situation. A cabinet meeting has been set for 3 p.m. EDT today.

Among those greeting Mr. St. Laurent at the airport was Rene Jutra, Liberal member of the Commons for Provencher, who has been mentioned as a possible successor to Speaker Rene Beaudoin.

Mr. Beaudoin announced his resignation as Speaker this week after opposition criticism that he was not impartial in his rulings.

Boat Wrecked On Island, One Killed

VANCOUVER (CP)—One man is dead and another is believed missing from a United States fishboat found stranded on a reef off the west coast of Vancouver Island today.

The boat was tentatively identified as the U.S. Fishpacker Laverne.

THERMOMETER DUE TO REACH 'HIGH 70'S'

Weather will be "sunny and warm" for the next few days, weatherman William Mackie said today.

Hay crops and sun bathers both should benefit, he said.

In sheltered areas the thermometer is expected to reach the "high 70's," Mr. Mackie said. Elsewhere afternoon sea breezes will keep temperatures moderate.

The first time, the package was picked up and the extortionist escaped the police stake-out.

Animals Around Us

New Times Feature

(The Times begins today a new series of articles, "The Animals Around Us," by the distinguished naturalist, Dr. Clifford Carl, director of B.C.'s provincial museum. Dr. Carl will discuss animal life of Vancouver Island. It is recommended that readers—particularly young students—clip this series and make a scrap-book, as they will find the series educational and well worth preserving.)

BY DR. CLIFFORD CARL

To the passerby on the street the animal world is populated with sparrows, an occasional gull and perhaps a dog or two. Unless he chooses to wander through a city park or step outside the thickly settled areas that is about all he will see.

Those who have an "eye for nature" will see more; a mosquito hawk swooping across the evening sky momentarily framed overhead by buildings, a colony of plant lice on a boulevard tree, or a ground beetle squashed on the pavement by an unsympathetic or careless pedestrian.

Actually a great many animals live close to man within a city but only a few of these come to public attention. Some are not seen because they are active mainly at night; some remain under cover at all times and are consequently passed by unnoticed; many are small or otherwise inconspicuous and so escape the attention of all but the keenest observers. Perhaps this is just as well; if the average city dweller were aware of all the "creepers and crawlers" that share space with him he would not rest easy but feel that he must "do something about it."

Just as a matter of record let us list all the animals that are likely to be found or that can be found in the Greater Victoria area.

The list is likely to be a long one since we are in an exceptionally favorable position to see a great many different forms of life, especially if we include our shoreline and the bits of uncultivated land round about the city.

VARIED LIST

In the first place geographically we are located about in the centre of the temperate region so that we may see ani-

Prosecutor Raps Newspaper Stories; Won't Take Plea

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Prosecutor Stewart McMorran this morning refused to take a plea from a former jockey charged with an extortion plot and remanded the man until next Thursday.

McMorran refused to take plea from 28-year-old Calvin Ray Eustace of Dartmouth, N.S., and Torbay, Nfld., because of publicity Vancouver papers had given the case today.

"In view of the press reports," McMorran said, "I wouldn't consider taking a plea from this man until he has been given an opportunity to understand his position."

McMorran said stories in the newspapers today "had the effect of trying and convicting" Eustace.

Eustace is charged with attempting a plot against wealthy

Accused To Be Shown Papers

He said he would give Eustace copies of the papers after court to enable him to see what has already been said about him.

Bail of $10,000 was set for Eustace, who made no application for bail and remains in custody. He appeared before deputy police magistrate Gordon Robson today.

Police said extortion letters and telephone calls had demanded $20,000 as the price to prevent Diamond and members of his family from being slain.

Besides his wife, Mr. Diamond has a brother, Dave, and two teen-aged sons, Gordon and Charles, in Vancouver.

The $20,000 was planted in a decoy package in Stanley Park just prior to the arrest.

Twice before the arrest was made, packages full of blank paper were left at designated spots.

The first time, the package was picked up and the extortionist escaped the police stake-out.

port a tremendously varied group of animal species. In addition to all this we are fortunate in being more or less on the Pacific flyway so that we can also see a great variety of birds on migration as well as the usual resident species.

Few cities in the world can offer such diversity of wildlife residents. Where else would you stand a good chance of seeing representatives of every major group in the animal kingdom?

But let's proceed with our inventory. Under the term "animal" we will include all living creatures that are not plants. This embraces an uncounted multitude of small forms such as worms, spiders, insects that live on land, crabs, jellyfish, molluscs that are found in the sea and the more familiar higher forms such as fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds and mammals.

It should also take in microscopic forms, with bodies so tiny that the unaided eye cannot make out the details.

EXPERTS HAVE TROUBLES

Confronted with such a mass of living things in endless variety of form the average person is bewildered and lost before he can even attempt to name or identify the common species. He need not feel embarrassed at being in such a dilemma; even experts in naming animals have troubles and seldom it is that two will agree on the exact classification of some of our best known forms.

It is obvious though that some system must be devised to make it possible to classify and to name all the members of the animal kingdom which now numbers something over one million.

The system devised many years ago by Carolus Linnaeus has proved very satisfactory and is now used by all nations. In its finer details it may be a bit involved but we will concern ourselves only with the major divisions.

DIVIDE ANIMALS

These are called phyla and serve to divide the members of the animal kingdom into compartments according to their fundamental body plan. If we ignore a few of the non-conformists among animals, those that "puzzle the experts," we can conveniently pigeon-hole all our local species among 13 major divisions or phyla as follows:

1. Single cells—all of small size.
2. Sponges.
3. Coelenterates—sea anemones, hydroids, jellyfish.
4. Ctenophores—comb-jellies, cats'-eyes.
5. Flatworms.

GYRO GOLF CARNIVAL BARKS UP RIGHT TREE

Gyro Club carnival at Central Junior High today really went to the dogs.

At a 2 p.m. mutt show, prizes were awarded for dogs with the longest tail, shortest tail, eating ability and various other esoteric classes.

At 4 p.m. a puppet show was slated for the children, all of whom were to get free balloons.

Main event today will be a draw this evening for a 1956 model car.

Friday, Colin Lamont, 976 Wilmer, won $15 for coming closest to the hole in the hole-in-one contest.

Other winners were H. Leachman, 880 Craigflower, who won $10, and Rod Preivett, 2854 Doncaster, who netted $5.

Police Get the Bird

PITTSBURGH (AP)—County police were crowing about the capture of a culprit responsible for a recent series of thefts from the bathhouses at South Park.

Police Friday baited a trap with breadcrumbs and caught a surprisingly tame crow. Police said that as of now the crow is a jailbird.

10 Kicked Off

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters)—Six swimmers and four fencers have been expelled from the Polish Olympic team for "disciplinary reasons," the Polish Communist newspaper Trybuna Ludu reported in an issue reaching here.

The largest iceberg known is one of 220 square miles reported in the Antarctic in February of 1955.

dummy package, the extortionist wrote: "I will get you sooner or later. When you are least expecting it... start sweating and praying."

Mr. Diamond, named "Vancouver citizen of the year" in 1955 told reporters:

"I wish I'd had one minute alone with him. I'm glad it's over but I wish I'd had one minute. I was terribly concerned... about the threat involved to my family."

Threatening telephone calls were received by Mr. Diamond at his Pacific Meat plant, at his home and at Lansdowne Park race track where his horses are running.

ESCAPES WITH DUMMY

Last Saturday he left a package with blank paper treated with indelible dye as police watched from ambush. Somehow the extortionist made off with the package.

Wednesday, another threatening call ordered him to drop the parcel near an old cannery on the west end waterfront. Again the package was a fake, but this time nobody claimed it.

It was later the same day Diamond received the second letter stating:

"... all your money won't do you much good when you are dead."

From the first, a police guard was kept on the Diamond family and he practiced with a revolver. Diamond is a crack shot.

Mr. Diamond told reporters he had never met the man "in business or socially."

"I suggested he take $2,000 and forget the whole thing. He said something about 'the boys might not like that.' Finally we agreed on $5,000."

After two false plants, however, Mr. Diamond said the man on the telephone called the arrangement off and the price went back up to $20,000.

Mr. Diamond was in Victoria two weeks ago to help promote a benefit Pacific Coast League baseball game here in aid of the Conquer Cancer Fund.

Mr. Diamond came to Canada in 1924 as a penniless Polish immigrant boy and worked his way up to ownership of one of the largest meat-packing plants on the west coast.

All Parties Praise Veterans' Minister

(From Times News Services)

The House Friday spent two hours examining the department of veterans' affairs and adjourned for the weekend without passing a single item of its $254,400,000 1956-57 appropriations.

Speakers from all four parties took the whole afternoon discussing the department's activities, but generally praised Veterans' Affairs Minister Hughes Lapointe's handling of his job.

A. J. Brooks (PC, Royal), Charles Gillis (CCF, Cape Breton South) and George Hahn (SC, New Westminster) agreed that it was a tough department to administer. Hahn said the difficulty was that Lapointe has to "legislate for humanitarianism."

Summarizing his department's

Legion Suggestions Under Study

The minister promised a "careful and thoughtful" consideration of suggested improvements to the veterans' charter made at the national convention of the Canadian Legion in Vancouver last month.

Brooks, Conservative veterans' affairs expert, suggested two amendments to the present legislation.

The first dealt with payments to widows of veterans who lived in Canada but fought in the service of an allied nation. Under the present act the veteran must have lived in Canada for 20 years for his widow to collect under the act. Brooks called for the removal of the residence clause, and Gillis and Hahn backed him.

Brooks also criticized failure of the pensions act to provide for Canadian veterans of the Second World War who served

National Fuel Policy Rejected

Renewed opposition demands for a national fuel policy again have been rejected by Mines Minister Prudham.

He said Friday during discussion of his department's estimates he didn't think the Canadian people would accept directives saying what fuel they can and cannot use.

Demands for a national fuel policy were made by Charles Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) and George Nowlan (PC-Digby-Annapolis-Kings). C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) suggested a limitation of imports of American coal and a zoning of the Canadian market.

"There is no doubt that it sounds good to say you should have a national fuel policy and a national board with power to direct people as to what type of fuel they can use," Mr. Prudham said.

"I do not think the people of Canada would accept that kind of direction. I do not think it would actually work out very well in practice."

Mr. Prudham told Mr. Johnston that restricting imports is not "a positive approach" although the government had such power. Blocking off a part of Canada as a market for Canadian coal was a "nice idea" but would not work. Most industrial installations in Ontario were designed to burn a type of U.S. coal which could not be supplied by Alberta.

Those who favor the northern Manitoba port of Churchill should tread cautiously lest they kill the port's future, Transport Controller Roy W. Milner said Friday.

He disagreed with A. M. Nicholson (CCF, Mackenzie) who suggested that the port—expected to clear a record 15,000,000 bushels of grain for overseas shipment this year—could be expanded to boost shipments eventually to 30,000,000 bushels a season.

Mr. Milner, appearing before the Commons agriculture committee, said he doubts the Hudson Bay port will ever be able to move more than 17,000,000 bushels a year.

He had seen the port steadily increase its shipments over the years, but it was limited by the ice-berg problem in the north and the early freeze-up.

Care had to be taken that boats did not bunch up at the end of the season. If a number were trapped and frozen in the ice at the end of the season, it would kill Churchill's chances as an attractive port for several years.

A 35-year-old Liberal MP says he's going to find out for himself whether CBC newscasts on the pipeline debate issue were impartial.

Russell Reinke (Hamilton South) plans to read this week the scripts of all CBC radio and television newscasts between May 8 and June 8 relating to the pipeline battle in the Commons.

The scripts were in seven bulky volumes tabled in the house Friday for Mr. Reinke. They run to about 840,000 words.

The volumes include copies of the scripts of all newscasts on the pipeline debate broadcast by CBC radio and television outlets in St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Montreal, French and English, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Campney To Answer Simonds In Commons Defence Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Campney is expected to reply to charges levelled at the defence department by Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, former army chief of staff, when the Commons defence debate resumes, possibly next week.

Informants said the department had hoped to ignore Gen. Simonds' allegations. But because the Progressive Conservatives had insisted in the Commons on an explanation, Mr. Campney would make a reply.

Opposition leader Drew demanded that a Commons defence committee be set up and empowered to call Gen. Simonds and other senior officers as witnesses. Prime Minister St. Laurent rejected the demand.

"DAMNING INDICTMENT"

Mr. Drew said Gen. Simonds, in effect, has alleged a complete breakdown of administration in the defence department and that if the general's statements are true they comprise a "damning indictment" of the department.

Gen. Simonds charged in a magazine article that the chiefs of staff are prevented from placing their views before the minister and that civil servants can block the carrying out of decisions made by the armed forces and the cabinet.

He also alleged that the permanent Canada-U.S. joint board on defence is a barrier against close liaison and exchange of views between the Canadian and American chiefs of staff.

Informants said Gen. Simonds' charges appear to be aimed in part at Gen. Charles Foulkes, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the joint defence board.

It is understood that Gen. Simonds has in preparation a second magazine article in which he may name names.

It will continue to September 2.

Instructors will be three-time Canadian champion Mary Rose Thacker, and professionals Evelyn Olsen and Shirley Ingham.

Last year registration for the school numbered 250. Outstanding performers from throughout the continent come here during summer and early fall to study and keep capabilities attuned.

Both adults and youngsters are included.

In addition, public skating will be held at the Quadra Club Thursday and Sundays from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., also supervised by the trio of experts.

THIS POSTIE MAY STILL BE RUNNING

DENVER (AP)—Rocky, a boxer dog, sailed through a plate-glass window after a mailman. But he's recovering from multiple cuts.

"I don't know what happened to the mailman," said Mrs. Sam Stone, the owner, who was absent from home at the time. "I'll ask him, if he ever comes back."

Don't Pass Up Floating Bottle, It May Be Part of $15,000 Jackpot

A flotsam and jetsam jackpot of $15,000 will be available to Victoria beachcombers, fishermen and strait swimmers this year.

Watch for floating beer bottles: 15,000 of them are going to be tossed into the Pacific, corked and loaded with a card printed in English, Spanish and Japanese.

Finders will be paid $1 apiece for the filled out cards.

The scheme is part of a Canadian drift-bottle program aimed at determining surface speed and course of currents in the Northeast Pacific.

Canadian vessels engaged in Pacific Ocean Research under International North Pacific Fisheries Commission and weather ships will drop the bottles.

They will be of clear glass, sealed with pitch. Regardless of value of the dollar in the country where the bottles wash ashore, payment will be at Canadian "current" value.

Backyard Oil Well Can Be Embarrassing

ERINDALE, Ont. (CP)—Most people figure an oil well in the backyard is a shortcut to fortune. But two couples here say it's just a headache.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Noblett and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Watson say they would much prefer to have water. That's what they dug the wells for.

For the last 18 months they have got what proves on analysis to be No. 2 fuel oil and diesel oil. Mr. Noblett says it is ruining their plumbing and plugging the septic tanks. They must haul water from two miles away.

The Nobletts and Watson tried to sell their homes. As soon as they showed prospective buyers the oil, the deal fell through.

The area around Erindale, 15 miles west of Toronto, is not known to be oil bearing and the two

B.C. Oil Worker At Duke's Parley

Consort's Conference on Human Problems In Industry Opens in London Monday

VANCOUVER—An oil worker from Port Coquitlam left here for England Friday as the province's representative to the Duke of Edinburgh's Commonwealth Conference on human problems in industry.

He is Kenneth J. McLennan, recording secretary of Local 16-901 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union, which is sponsoring him.

McLennan is one of 30 delegates from Canada to the conference.

The conference, opening Monday, will be highlighted by a keynote address by the Duke, one of six he is to make during the three-week gathering, will launch the 280 delegates from 29 countries on their fact-finding mission.

For the first week, they talk about the problem and hear speakers on related topics, such as Lord Citrine, chairman of Britain's central electricity authority.

On another question—why does a man work?—a sugar merchant, J. M. Campbell, will share the platform with a union leader, Sir Alfred Roberts.

In the second week delegates scatter to 19 British business centres for on-the-spot looks at industry's effect on community life. They return to Oxford July 22 for a windup week.

The duke calls the unique conference a great experiment. It is not his intention to have it become a mere exercise in academic research. Rather, he hopes the delegates, average age 38, and all primarily connected with the problem at hand, will contribute something practical and worthwhile.

The aim is that the undeveloped Commonwealth areas—as well as the highly industrialized nations—will have a useful understanding of an old difficulty.

War Blocked By Pearson, Says Shapiro

EDMONTON (CP)—Lionel Shapiro of Montreal, author and reporter, said Friday night only hard work by External Affairs Minister Pearson has prevented a third world war.

"Mike Pearson almost single-handedly prevented a war between the great powers during the Dien Bien Phu crisis in Indochina," he said in a speech at the biennial convention of the Canadian Women's Press Club.

Mr. Shapiro, 48-year-old author of the best-selling novel "The Sixth of June," also said second-rate leadership by British and United States leaders has led to the "desolate deterioration" of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Amplifying his reference to Mr. Pearson in an interview, he said the external affairs minister prevented a war by "holding back" United States diplomats whose actions would have precipitated a world war.

"It is no accident that Mr. Pearson was appointed the spearhead of our belated attempt to shore up the foundations of NATO," Mr. Shapiro said. "Greece has fallen to all practical purposes" fallen out of NATO, Turkey "is threatening open warfare over Cyprus and an Arab-Israeli war... is almost inevitable."

Argentine Election Proposed in 1957

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Pedro Aramburu announced Friday night the first national election since the overthrow of Juan D. Peron will be held some time in the last three months of 1957.

He said it would be impossible to clean up the Peronista influence in the election machinery before then.

A provisional government has been ruling by decree since Peron was driven from the presidency. Peron is in exile in Panama.

YOUNGSTOWN, N.Y. (CP)—Jim Woods, Lake Ontario's first 1956 challenger, failed Friday night in an attempt to swim the 32 miles from Youngstown to Toronto. He was beaten by cramps.

The 40-year-old swim veteran from Ashville, N.C., was taken out of the cold water after he had covered about 12 miles. The time was 9:55 a.m., six hours and 48 minutes after Woods plunged into the water.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DINAH KERR AND IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: "What is your favorite project for the Capital Improvement District Commission?"

J. Peach, shoe repairman, 495 Dupplin Road: "I figure the Gorge area should be fixed up. Before the war it was the best spot in town for picnics and swimming. Now it's in terrible shape. It's time something was done about it."

Mrs. J. R. Campbell, housewife, 3043 Washington Avenue: "Development of the Gorge would be my choice, although I'm also in favor of a park on the Christie Peninsula. The commission should handle these projects first. They can do what they want with the rest of the money."

Mrs. J. R. Campbell, housewife, 3166 Carrol street: "The Gorge should be developed. It's a shame the way it has been allowed to deteriorate, because it is a natural beauty spot. If it was developed it could be much nicer than it is now."

Mrs. Jean Shemilt, housewife, 679 Baxter street: "I think Victoria needs a civic auditorium to handle all the concerts, conventions and public gatherings. Right now we don't have any proper facilities for these things."

Harley Taylor, radio technician, 3166 Wascana street: "I wish they'd open up the Gorge area. I've heard so many stories of what it used to be like, and I'd like to see it that way again."

Ken Tomlinson, electronics apprentice, 2604 Richmond road: "What we need most of all is a civic auditorium. I can't see much practical value in the rest of the projects. A new auditorium would solve a lot of problems for Victoria."

Rogers Pass Choice Labelled 'Tragedy'

From the Canadian Press

VANCOUVER—Advocates of the Jumbo pass route for the Revelstoke-Golden section of the Trans-Canada highway have expressed disappointment at the choice of the Rogers pass route by Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi.

Municipal and business leaders in several interior centres charged that the government has made a costly mistake, but officials in other centres which will benefit by the Rogers route were jubilant.

Mr. Gagliardi said Rogers pass was chosen mainly because it will be cheaper and shorter.

Most outspoken against the choice was Boyd Affleck, surveyor of Jumbo pass for the city of Nelson, who said the B.C. government had "committed a tragedy."

"They have never given the Jumbo pass a proper investigation. They just sent a reconnaissance party in for a few hours," he said.

John Walker, president of the Kaslo Jumbo pass committee, said the original saving on Rogers pass would soon be wiped out by the cost of keeping the road open.

However, the president of the Revelstoke Board of Trade, Ald. Albert Abrahamson, discounted the theory that Rogers pass would be difficult and expensive to keep open.

He said modern snow-clearing machinery would eliminate major problems.

Capital Punishment

CANADIANS HAVE NOW HAD ample time in which to weigh the report and recommendations of the special parliamentary committee studying capital punishment. The document seems exceedingly, if not excessively, cautious.

The committee reflects general public repugnance to hanging by urging that this form of execution be eliminated in favor of electrocution or the gas chamber. This is a proposal which should enjoy complete support.

Approval, too, will doubtless be given to the recommendation that the death penalty be abolished for convicted persons 18 years and under and the proposal that restrictions be placed on the penalty for those up to 21.

At the same time the committee has maintained the stand that capital punishment should remain the penalty—that is the mandatory penalty—for murder. The same sentence would apply for treason and piracy.

The committee's report falls far short of the sweeping change approved in the British House of Commons by a free vote of 152 to 33 on June 29. It passed a bill abolishing the death penalty and sent it to the House of Lords.

In the light of the Canadian committee's decision to recommend retention of the death penalty for murder, it is perhaps disappointing that it should have declined to recommend degrees of murder.

The definition of that crime covers a wide field. Cold-blooded killing for personal gain or spite is murder. The slaying of an individual by another in a fit of passion can also be murder.

Surely there is a difference. In one case a callous disregard for life is evident—or at least its value is weighed against a material gain to the one who commits the crime. In the other, a person normally endowed with complete respect for the sanctity of another's life is carried beyond himself by his passions. This is a distinction recognized in many American states.

It is true, of course, that the victim in either case is dead. So is the victim in a case of manslaughter. In the latter, however, there is a definite recognition of conditions leading to death and a qualification of sentence accordingly.

Over the years men have argued the deterrent force of capital punishment. Some hold that the threat of execution has not prevented murders. Others take the position that more murders would occur if the threat of execution did not hang over an individual contemplating an attack which could lead up to, or might even envision, the killing of another.

Perhaps no conclusive proof can be provided by either side, but investigation seems to indicate that the deterrent force of capital punishment is vastly over-rated.

The special parliamentary committee has, of course, been completely sound in recommending the greatest possible legal safeguards for a person accused of the crime. That is in accordance with our theory of justice and an essential ingredient of the ancient British axiom that it is better that guilty men go free than innocent men be punished.

But the expression of human conscience embodied in that tradition can defeat justice. A jury confronted with the knowledge that its verdict may deprive another human of his life—as must be virtually certain when capital punishment for murder in any degree is mandatory—may understandably slide away from the responsibility to convict.

When that situation arises—and those familiar with court trials realize that it is not infrequent—justice is not done.

Doubtless the parliamentary committee considered these points before coming to conclusions embodied in the report. The document on which Parliament will be asked to take action does not go as far as many people in Canada would wish. It does, however, make some progress toward a more acceptable means of dealing with people who take the lives of others. Perhaps that is as much as could be expected at this time. The report is not, and was never intended to be, the final word on the issue.

Buying on Time

THOSE WHO THINK THAT CANADA has imposed excessive restrictions on credit should observe the rise in installment sales during the first quarter of 1956. They totaled about $4.6 billions, half a billion dollars more than in the same quarter of 1955.

The strongest curbs on credit, through interest rates, were not enforced early enough to affect this business greatly in the opening months of 1956. The latest figures, however, suggest that these measures were not taken too early or pushed too far. The practical question, as the Financial Post remarks, is how effective fiscal controls can be in slowing installment buying in an economy of full employment and among a people who anticipate more inflation.

"Interest rates," The Post says, "seem to be a secondary consideration to a consumer with a steady income who fears that the price of an article may rise unless he buys it before he has saved the necessary cash. The general effect of the credit squeeze may eventually convince the consumer that price rises won't take place and he might hold off for a while and buy for cash. But it seems likely that the last people to react to the drive to mop up inflation will be the installment buyers—the very group that is causing the Government the most concern."

Oak Bay and Milk

MAY I through your columns draw the attention of the general public to the iniquitous behaviour of the majority of the Oak Bay councillors in the matter of the sale of raw milk in Oak Bay.

In spite of the warning given by the Hon. Mr. Justice Cline in his findings that the rights of the individual to choose between pasteurized and unpasteurized be respected, they have refused to pass the necessary by-law allowing the sale of raw milk in Oak Bay.

On the night of Monday, June 25, when met by a delegation favoring raw milk they agreed to the by-law and gave it first reading; then on Thursday, June 28, when too late for any appeal before the deadline set by the provincial government and without any warning to the delegation, the majority, apparently swayed by the advice of two doctors brought to the meeting, voted against it.

The decision will not prevent the consumption of raw milk as it is the intention of many people to pick up their needs on the way home from town, but it will create a hardship on elderly folk and others without means of buying outside the Oak Bay boundaries.

I have heard of one old lady who is to be deprived of the type of milk she has been using all her long life and of another who during the past eighteen months has gained strength from a long illness through the merits of raw milk.

The more I ponder this, the more indignant I become.

E. MARGARET GEORGE.

Financial Subterfuge

It makes strange reading when one discovers the peculiar subterfuge that always accompanies anything that has to do with finance—foreign or domestic—here in Canada, when or where, the government becomes involved.

The pipeline opera bouffe—being the most recent—brings vividly to mind the manipulation that has to be done, through the governments, in other countries—as well as Canada—for the United States financial interests to establish themselves to their own advantage and profit. It is common knowledge that most of the concessions—which are a compulsory part of the so-called investment—that are gained in territory outside the United States are free from federal taxation in the U.S. and tax free, for flexible periods, in the countries which are being exploited.

Recently there has also been a law passed in the United States to the effect that countries where the U.S. investors have established themselves on any large scale, through the aid of the governments of those countries, in the nature of privilege, that said company or corporation cannot be confiscated by the government of said country should the former default; so what would the Canadian government do about the scrambled pipeline issue under such circumstances?

First, last, and all the time, it goes to prove that the government has no right to involve the taxpayer's money in perpetuity by placing the country's potential wealth under mortgage to a foreign power. It amounts to a people having to pay tribute, through taxation, in the interest of a foreign aspiring Holy Roman Colonial Empire, American—or United States plan.

ELLEN HART.

Vogee Case

The majority of the people in School District No. 63 were shocked to receive the news that the board of reference, and later the Cabinet, concurred in the dismissal of Mr. A. Vogee as principal of Mt. Newton School. Many of us are questioning the conduct of the enquiry and the fairness of the hearing.

One can but wonder at the cruelty and vindictiveness of fate or the "powers that be" who would consent to bring a man's career to such an ignominious end after 28 years' service to a vocation in which he has without a doubt given his all with sincerity and integrity.

The last word in this case has not been said.

The Right to Kill

ON February 12, 1956, while a committee of the Canadian Parliament was preparing to recommend the continued use of the death penalty for murder, a strange drama was ending on the lonely coast of Gaspe; or maybe just beginning.

They buried Wilbert Coffin that day after he had been hanged by the neck until he was dead. They had hanged him for murdering three American hunters in possibly the most remarkable crime of Canadian history. But was he guilty?

Among those who watched the burial, as he had watched nearly three years of trial, reprieve and finally condemnation, was Mr. John Edward Belliveau, a great Canadian newspaperman whose honesty is well known to me.

MR. BELLIVEAU (a famous and respected name among the Acadians of Nova Scotia) could not quite believe that Coffin was guilty. Or at least he doubted that the prisoner had received fair trial. In his judgment the Coffin case is a classic example of doubt, of possible murder by the state and an interesting commentary on the whole problem of capital punishment, now before our Parliament.

In horror and pity Mr. Belliveau has written a book, "The Coffin Murder Case" (Kingswood House, Toronto), and though it is a sober attempt to sift the evidence and demonstrate the gaps in the Crown's case, this account proves as exciting as a detective story. In fact, it is a detective story with a plot too improbable and ending too grim for fiction.

MOST newspaper readers remember the Coffin case vaguely but it went on so long and became so involved in legal technicalities that the public grew tired of it. The facts as presented to the jury at the little town of Percé were simple—too simple to convince Mr. Belliveau and other experienced observers.

Three American hunters came to Gaspe to hunt. Weeks later only their bones are found, gnawed by bears. No one can be sure how they died but a round hole in one man's shirt might have been made by a bullet. On the theory that he fired an unfound bullet from an unfound rifle, the prisoner, Coffin, is hanged.

In the society of Canada, even in the primitive society of the Gaspé Peninsula, where English, French and Irish have lived together nearly four hundred years since Cartier landed from his Bay of Heat, Coffin was an unimportant man—until he suddenly became the symbol of a controversy now troubling most civilized countries, including Britain and Canada.

HE was a cook, lumberjack, prospector and war veteran—a wanderer by nature, sometimes a poacher, not above stealing, living with a common-law wife and generally liked as a good fellow.

He had been prospecting in the woods when the Americans disappeared, he had seen them, he said, and left them. A few days later he came back to Gaspe village and, in a borrowed truck, drove on to Montreal, where his mistress lived. In that truck he carried some binoculars, a hunting knife and other trifles belonging to the dead Americans.

That essentially was the case against him—he had stolen the Americans' goods and therefore had murdered them to secure their money; which was never found on him or anywhere else. Thus presented to the jury, the case, Mr. Belliveau agrees, was strong but entirely circumstantial and there were serious gaps in it.

FOR example, Coffin said that when he left the Americans he had seen a jeep near their camp, driven by men in old American army uniforms. They could have been the murderers.

No one believed that tale but afterwards—too late—Mr. Belliveau and others established beyond doubt that a jeep, driven by men in old army uniforms, had been in this vicinity just as Coffin said.

Unfortunately, as Mr. Belliveau thinks, the jury never heard Coffin's story. His lawyers would not put him in the box to testify. No witnesses were called on his behalf. The lawyers risked everything on the assumption that the jury would think the Crown's case unproved. The jury thought otherwise and found the prisoner guilty.

On the evidence, says Mr. Belliveau, the jury could not have found otherwise. Then began the unprecedented legal process ending only in the cabinet chamber at Ottawa. The appeal courts of Quebec refused a new trial. Mr. Justice

Abbott, of the Supreme Court, sitting alone, refused it. Mr. Stuart Garson, minister of justice (who can order a new trial) asked the full Court's advice. Mr. Duplessis protested that the Federal Government was invading Quebec's autonomy. By a vote of five to two the Supreme Court rejected Coffin's appeal. Two of our ablest judges favored a new trial.

MEANWHILE Coffin escaped from prison with a revolver carved out of soap but returned in a few hours of his own free will, confident that he would be tried again. And finally, after nearly three years of his agony and suspense, the Cabinet, last court of appeal, decided to hang him. But even then, says Mr. Belliveau, some facts, like the presence of the mysterious jeep, were not known to the courts or to the Cabinet.

Mr. Belliveau is strongly inclined to think Coffin innocent. His lawyers, spending their own time and money on the case, had no doubt of his innocence. The prison chaplain who saw him daily for some two years believes that an innocent man was hanged. Mr. Belliveau says only that a new trial, permitting Coffin to tell his own story for the first time, would have cleared up all these doubts.

COFFIN never told his story to any court but never once, to his lawyers or friends, did he admit his guilt even on the day of execution. His last words, "I am not guilty and may God have mercy on my soul," disturb Mr. Belliveau, not as Coffin's friend but as a Canadian citizen and a friend of justice.

Whatever the truth of this dismal affair may be, Mr. Belliveau knows that it is far more important than most of the business before Parliament.

WHETHER a society calling itself Christian ever has the right to take human life, contrary to the instructions of its Founder, is a nice point of theology which Parliament is about to consider. If it assumes that right and proceeds to kill the wrong man, its crime of murder is directed against society as a whole and endangers everybody.

That is why Mr. Belliveau's doubts about the Coffin case are so important to everybody and why he, and other public-spirited citizens, are still searching for the missing evidence, even though Coffin is dead.

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

'Erosion of Despotism' New Soviet Phase?

LAST week the National Security Council, the American Government's highest policy-making body, discussed at length and in detail the meaning of the recent events which have shaken the Soviet empire. Two basic conclusions were reached, which can be summarized about as follows.

First, the "cataclysm"—to use Italian Communist boss Palmiro Togliatti's word—in the world Communist movement is real. It is not a carefully pre-arranged fake. The Soviet leaders, Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen has cabled the State Department from Moscow, were genuinely shocked and taken aback by the criticism of them by Togliatti and other Communist chieftains.

Stewart

Nikita Khrushchev and his colleagues, according to the official assessment, greatly miscalculated the effects abroad of Khrushchev's denunciation of Joseph Stalin as a murdering tyrant. The experts' explanation of the miscalculation is simple but convincing.

During his lifetime, Stalin himself exercised jealously exclusive personal control, through a special section of the secret police, over all contacts with the foreign Communist parties. Thus the present Soviet "collective leadership" had virtually no contact with, or knowledge of, the foreign Communist movements.

In the circumstances, it was easy for Khrushchev and company to misjudge the reactions of the foreign Communists.

It was all the easier because Khrushchev made his famous speech to a very special audience, the aristocracy of the Soviet party. His hearers were psychologically prepared for what Khrushchev had to say, simply because they knew it to be true from their own experience. Stalin's brutalities came as no surprise to them. Terror and torture were part of the way of life they had always known.

The foreign Communists, by contrast, had had relatively little direct contact with the terrible realities of Soviet life under Stalin. They were also, to a considerable extent, prisoners of their own Stalinist propaganda. Thus the effect on them of Khrushchev's speech was quite genuinely "cataclysmic."

Cataclysm need not necessarily weaken the world Communist conspiracy fatally. It might even strengthen it in the end. But the American government is operating on the assumption that the cataclysm is real, not a fake.

Changes Within

The second conclusion is that the changes within the Soviet structure of society are also real, as far as they go—and by Stalinist standards they go rather far. Charles E. Wilson testified on Capitol Hill the day after the NSC meeting. The view he expressed there, that the Soviets may be "moving towards a more liberal society," accurately reflects the hopeful but tentative conclusion of the NSC.

Here again, the explanation is fairly simple and fairly convincing. As Khrushchev made very clear in his speech, each one of the present Soviet leaders lived constantly in fear of death at the hands of Stalin's secret police. They are united in a common desire to avoid repeating the experience.

When French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau visited Moscow recently, Khrushchev told him, with violent earnestness, that he would rather cut off both his arms than see his country again ruled by the secret police. Within limits, he no doubt meant what he said, and the downgrading of the secret police has been perfectly real. Moreover, the stick of secret police terror being largely removed, a carrot, in the form of some higher living standards and a little color in their drab lives, has had to be offered to the Russian people.

More To Be Told

The story, of course, has not yet been told. More such events as the bloody riots in Poland could reverse the whole process; could even lead to the downfall of Khrushchev. Nor are there any illusions among the policy makers that the Soviets are on the point of abandoning Communist doctrine.

It is hoped, instead, that the newly emerging Soviet bureaucratic upper class will increasingly dominate the system; and that the first interest of the regime will be decreasingly doctrinal, and increasingly concentrated on practical internal problems. It is hoped, in fact, that "the erosion of despotism," a process forecast some years ago by Soviet expert George Kennan, may actually have begun within the Soviet power structure.

This hope, it should be emphasized, is no more than a hope, and a very cautious one. But it is at least faintly encouraging that the highest policy-makers, basing their assessment on the best available intelligence, have concluded that the recent changes in the Soviet empire are real, and not carefully stage-managed optical illusions.

REPORT FROM OTTAWA

Family Allowances—Objective Met

By JOHN BIRD

HAVING become interested in those 51,000,000 cheques issued by the Federal Government last year, I naturally wondered what happened to most of them.

Take for example, the biggest slice of the lot, the 26,000,000 family allowance cheques. How do Canadian mothers really spend them?

This falls under National Health and Welfare, with headquarters in the Jackson Building. It is on the Welfare end, not the Health end under the charge of Dr. G. D. W. Cameron. So I called that bright and breezy ex-Vancouverite, Dr. George Davidson, deputy minister of Welfare.

"What do they do with all your cheques?" I asked him.

Dr. Davidson misunderstood my question, thinking I was after a man-bites-dog story.

Meaty Cheques

"Oh, you want to know how often Rover chews up the family allowance cheque when he's tired of dog biscuits. Actually, every now and then, the dog does eat a cheque and we have to issue a new one. But one of the worst problems comes from people using them as book marks and forgetting them."

As you would expect, one of the commonest causes of cheque loss is people throwing the envelope into the waste basket, thinking it is empty perhaps. But I was comforted to learn that there are other Canadians with my own absent-minded-professor's habit of carefully preserving the envelope and tossing away the cheque. The point is that H and W is used to such happenings and has machinery set up to replace missing cheques, though naturally it takes care to see that the original cheque is not also cashed.

Since the cheques are "punch card" jobs with lots of holes in them, some of the recipients incorrectly relate the number of holes to the amount they should receive. An official told me that complaints are not uncommon in these general terms: "My cheque is for only 17 dollars. I know it's wrong because there are 19 holes in it."

How They Are Spent

To find out how cheques are spent Dr. Davidson turned me over to the division of Family Allowances and Old Age Security, headed by R. B. Curry, the national director. His assistant director, J. A. Blais was away but Mr. Curry brought in short, dark R. Parkinson, director of welfare services, and W. F. Hendershot, lean and tall, executive assistant.

In round table fashion the three explained to me that the manner in which allowance cheques are spent has been the subject of five studies, made at intervals of time, in different sections of the country. They indicate clearly that roughly two-thirds of the cheque money is spent for clothing and food, a little over 30 per cent, on each, with the remainder scattered among miscellaneous needs.

When family allowances were first paid, in July, 1945, two things immediately became clear. There was an increase in the sales of milk reported by dairies right across the country. There was a rush on children's clothing and footwear, which showed up at once because these were in short supply because of wartime conditions.

Today, they assured me, any citizen may get a good idea for himself of how the cheques are spent by going to a grocery, clothing or general store where they are commonly cashed, on the day of the month when they are received—around the twenty-first. Simply watch the line-up at the payment wicket.

The department had a particularly good test when Newfoundland came into Confederation and allowance cheques were first paid there, in April, 1949. Federal officials had to tell the province in advance what to expect and then, had a chance, to check the results, under peace-time conditions. Same result: food and clothing—utility stuff, not fancy. For example, shoes and rubbers ran out of supply in St. John's.

But the greatest phenomenon in Newfoundland, as elsewhere, was the rise in school attendance.

School Aid

"The children came earlier, stayed longer at school instead of leaving as soon as they could begin to earn money, and were more constant in attendance," I was assured.

The primary reason, of course, is that family allowances make school attendance compulsory, except for good cause. No attendance, no cheque.

But there is another, very human reason. Supervisor Parkinson of welfare services assured me that children are more willing to go to school (and their parents more eager to send them) once they are properly clad.

Children are conformists: they feel badly if they are not dressed like the others. And the unknown cruelty of children in mocking each other's clothes is notorious.

School attendance may be virtually compulsory, but the family allowance cheque, spent on food and clothing, has made the difference in the happiness of many children, once they are at school.

Before the Admiral

It was only a few years ago that the ancient beginnings of our maritime laws were finally and definitely stated to have no longer any practical application to modern conditions, and the end of a most successful Regatta Week seems as good a time as any to blow some of the dust off what was quite recently advanced in an Admiralty Court as the law of England . . . and also Canada.

Counsel in a shipping case based part of his argument on the Laws of Oleron, which King Richard the First picked up on his way back from one of his numerous Crusades and embodied in his Admiralty precedents. The historical interest of the Judge turned to legal horror when he found, among other things, this: "All such false and treacherous Pilots shall be condemned to suffer a most Rigorous & Unmerciful Death; and high Gibbets shall be erected for them in the same place or as near as conveniently may be, where they so guided and brought any Ship or Vessel to ruin as aforesaid, and thereon these accused Pilots are with Ignominy and much Shame to end their Days; which said Gibbets are to be made substantially strong, to the intent that they may abide & remain to succeeding ages on that Place as a visible Caution to Ships that shall afterwards sail thereby."

The accused Pilots belonged of course to the ancient and remunerative occupation of "wrecking"; they showed phony lights at night so that ships ran ashore and provided an opportunity for salvage. And if the poor wrecker was harshly treated, the rich was handled really savagely; there being then, as now, one law for the rich and another for the poor.

"XXXI. If the Lord of any Place be so barbarous as not only to permit such inhumane people but also to maintain and assist them in such Villanies, that he may participate in the Spoil, and have a share in such Wrackes; in such case the said Lord of any such place shall be apprehended and all his Goods Confiscate and sold in order to make Restoration & Satisfaction to such as of right it appertaineth; the rest to be converted unto pious uses; and himself to be fastened to a Post or Stake in the midst of his own Mansion-house, which being fired on the four Corners or Quarters thereof, all shall be burnt together; which done, the Walls thereof shall be demolish'd, the Stones thereof pull'd down and turn'd to Rubbish, and then converted into a Market-place, for the sale only of Hogs & Swine to all Posterity."

Should any reader ever have come across a pig market perched on the remotest shores of England, this answers his natural question "Why?"

"People more Barbarous, cruel & inhumane than mad Dogs" who refused aid and comfort to shipwrecked sailors, were to be "Plung'd into the Sea till they be half dead, and then to be drawn forth out of the sea, and ston'd to Death." We can thank this excellent law for the efficiency of our Air-Sea rescue today, but to be told that it is the law of England today would startle anyone, even an Admiralty Judge.

But there was a saving clause, as there is in most laws. King Richard's loyal subjects were allowed to give free rein to their natural high spirits whenever they met "Pirates, Robbers, Sea-rovers, TURKS, or other enemies to Our Catholick Faith"; for in such case, "every man may deal with such as with meer Brutes, and despoil them of their Goods without any punishment for so doing."

Which must have been a great comfort to the yachtsmen of the day . . . the non-Turkish ones, at any rate.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Cricket Not Hereditary

LONDON—I went out to Clitterhouse Park, near Hendon Airdrome, to watch young Mac play cricket. Big event in his life, this. Ten years of age, he'd been chosen to play in the school team.

Imagine it, on the same team with the big boys, all around 14. This was big stuff and he slept hardly a wink on the night previous and was in such a dither as he went off on the great day that he had to come back twice for bits of cricket gear he'd forgotten.

As I took the long trip out to Hendon I was reminded of my own youthful attempts at cricket. Always it seemed a long trip. I can't seem to remember us playing on a nice handy home ground. I would set off on a journey involving a streetcar trip, then across the harbor on a ferry, then a long bus ride. After an hour and a half or so, I would arrive at the cricket ground. I would go out to bat, take a wild swing at the first ball, miss it and be bowled.

Then would come the return journey and my mother would wonder what appeal the game had for me. She couldn't see the point in my paying a visit to foreign parts and then tramping all the way back again without my hat ever making contact with the ball. I seemed to play only for inferior teams, for when I got home my mother would greet me in the garden with "Who won?" and almost without exception the answer was

"They did." This became a stock phrase in our family and from then on my home-comings would be greeted by my mother with a resigned "They did?"

Young Mac—in his white shorts, white shirt and ample cricket boots ("he'll grow into them")—was out on the field with his team when I arrived. The opposition was batting. I joined his school chums who were there to cheer on the team.

The standard of play wasn't any too high. When catches were hit up into the air the youngsters showed no signs of holding them. It was like that old cricket joke—"there was an epidemic during the game, but it wasn't catching."

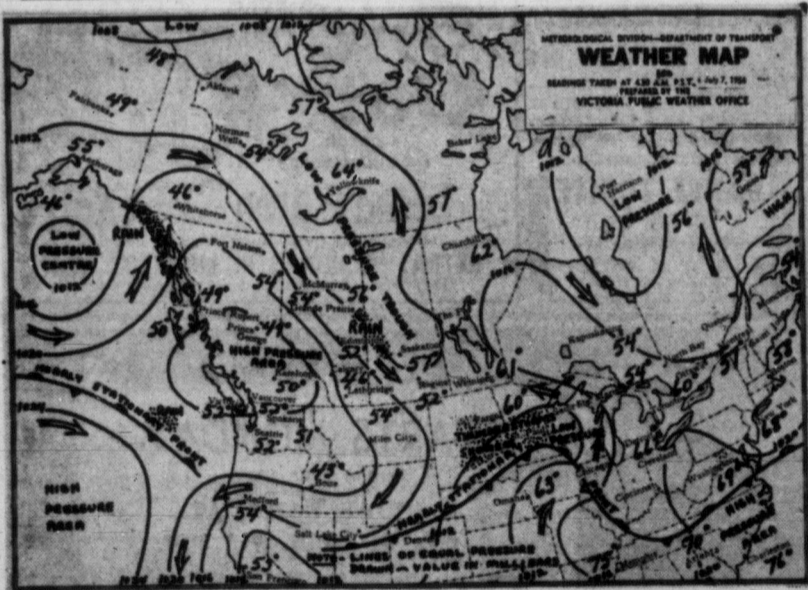

However, one of the enemy batsmen lashed out and hit a sizzler which looked as though it would speed safely out of reach above Mac's head. But up went a hand, he latched onto it, did some sort of backward somersault and regained his feet holding the ball up in triumph. Great applause and I heard one of the kids say to a companion: "I knew old Mac would catch it. He's a good cricketer."

That was about the end of play for the day, for the delightfully hot weather we've been having suddenly reverted to normal English summer and we had a downpour and the match was abandoned.

But walking home across the field in the rain with Mac, I was still glowing with pride from what his school friend had said. That's the wonderful thing about having kids. They pay dividends. I never realized my ambition to be a great cricketer but, by crickey, he's going to be!

Champion School Band In Concert Wednesday

S. J. Willis Junior High School Band will provide an open-air band concert at Beacon Hill Park Wednesday.

The band returns Monday with first place honors from a Waterloo, Ontario, band festival. A civic reception is planned at the school at 11.30 a.m. Monday.

The Wednesday concert will feature Olivadi's "Apple Valley" overture, the composition played at the festival. Time will be announced.

The Monday morning reception will be open to the public and will be attended by Mayor Percy Scurrell, Reeve Arthur Ash of Sarnich, Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt and Reeve F. E. Norris of Oak Bay as well as members of the district 61 school board.

Third Copy Of Arctic Book In Calgary

CALGARY (CP)—A third copy of a book which some historians believe outlines Canada's claims on its Arctic islands has been found in a private library here.

H. W. Herridge, CCF member for Kootenay West, said in the Commons at Ottawa Thursday that only two copies of "The Cruise of the Neptune," an account of a little-known government expedition into the Arctic, were known to exist in Canada.

Li-Col. W. K. Jull, sheriff and clerk of the court in Calgary, said Friday he has a third copy. He said he bought the 350-page book out of an eastern Canada private library being dispersed some years ago.

Col. Jull, who dug Commander A. P. Low's book out of his library after reading of the Arctic expedition, wasn't sure Friday whether the book would be valuable or not. "I have a number of little-known books besides this in my library. I bought this out of curiosity."

Shipping Veteran Succumbs at 76

MONTREAL (CP)—Funeral service was held Friday for D. J. S. Tyrer, former Canadian general manager of Elder Dempster Lines Ltd., who died at his Montreal west home Tuesday.

He was 76. Born in Walton, England, Mr. Tyrer, former president of the Shipping Federation of Canada, joined Elder Dempster Lines in 1895 and served in Jamaica and West Africa before coming to Canada in 1906. He retired in 1942.

GUATEMALA (AP)—Military police announced Friday a patrol had seized a group of men suspected of planting dynamite in a railroad tunnel on the line from the capital to Puerto Barrios, the banana port.

Inco Metals at Work in Canada

Workers installing a cable that carries electricity underground. Hundreds of thousands of miles of wire and cable made from Inco copper go into the power cables, transformers and other equipment used for distributing electricity in Canada. Nearly half of the copper used in Canadian power cables comes from Inco.

Cables made from INCO COPPER help bring you electricity . . . and provide jobs for Canadians

It takes thousands of miles of power cable to carry all the electricity Canadians use. And nearly half of the copper used in Canada's power cables comes from Inco. Through all the processing operations, this copper stays in Canada to help provide employment for Canadian men and women.

1. At Inco, Canadian workmen mine, mill, smelt and refine the ore. About 18,000 people are employed by Inco in Canada.

2. Refined copper is used in Canada for the manufacture of wire and cable. Several thousand more people are employed in this work.

3. The copper wire and cable goes to power companies where it is installed by Canadian workmen.

From Inco copper, Canadian industries manufacture hundreds of useful products—thus helping provide employment for many thousands of men and women in Canada.

Hollywood Gets Talent In Spite of TV Lures

By RON BURTON
HOLLYWOOD (UP) — There are many new faces in Hollywood today, and Jane Wyman thinks this is a fair indication that television, rather than depleting the ranks of film actors, actually is bringing more actors to town.

"The yelp of 'talent shortage' is exaggerated," she said. "I've met so many new actors in the last six months—and not all of them are bad at all."

Miss Wyman figures that she has come across 496 new actors since about September or so. And of this total at least 248, or half, of them were good.

"The number of new faces in the acting lists is astounding," the actress said. "Most of them are good. Some show promise of becoming really great. One whom I have particularly in mind is Neville Brand, known primarily for his fine stage ability."

"He appeared with me in a shocker-type show called 'Ride with the Executioner' on my TV program. We thought him a very exciting find."

Miss Wyman had been in a position to judge the crop of younger actors because she acts, directs and produces. She had interviewed Brand and then was in the show with him.

"When he was up for consideration for the part we borrowed a print of 'Riot in Block 11' to observe him," she said. "Well, I figured I'd see a few minutes of it and decide then and there, but he did so well I sat through it."

Miss Wyman's big activity in television has been her own anthology type of program which she has been putting on for the last half year. Other newcomers to TV of whom she is proud include Jack Kelly, John Baragrey, Betty Lynn and Sally Brophy.

"The claim that television has depleted the ranks of motion picture actors is all wrong," she said. "And, not only that, but I'd like to point out that some actors may be made great through television—and then turn out some great performances for motion pictures."

GRUBER CONDUCTS

Fine Baritone To Sing In the Butchart Gardens

By HANS GRUBER
Next Thursday, July 12, is the second and final Butchart Gardens symphony concert for this year. The soloist will be James Whicher, baritone, the male winner of the Grand Award of the "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" radio contest.

I wish they called this program Singing Stars of TODAY. In the case of many of these young Canadian singers who are chosen to appear on this program, and certainly as far as the winners are concerned who have sung with our orchestra at the Gardens, there is little to suggest "tomorrow" in Hans Gruber's abilities.

They are, most of them, performers of international professional standard, worthy of their hire, rather than promising students who ought to be given a chance, which this tomorrow title unjustifiably implies.

Last Thursday's soloist, Marguerite Laverne, is a singer of an ever-rare breed. She has a large, dramatic soprano voice, but with the flexibility of a coloratura, and with a range from the darkest alto notes to high C, and with control over sheer beauty of sound.

No narrowly specialized voice this, such as that of the currently much-publicized and badly-mannered, Brooklyn-born Maria Callas. More perhaps like Renata Tebaldi, and closer still to the incomparable Helen Traubel.

Not altogether relevant, but remarkable nevertheless, that this voice of Laverne's should have been trained and developed so admirably by an unknown nun in Lachine, Quebec, who has been Miss Laverne's only teacher.

Sir Ernest told me the other day in Toronto what a pleasure awaited us in Victoria in hearing Marguerite Laverne.

He spoke equally highly of James Whicher, who also has sung recently with Sir Ernest. There is, of course, no scarcity of very good baritones. It becomes, therefore, much more difficult for a baritone to win a singing competition, and he who does must be obviously not only very good, but altogether outstanding.

First of all, he must prove superior to the many other good baritones; and secondly, the panel of judges—it is no secret—are desperately looking for a tenor to whom to give awards, in order to encourage that genre and alleviate the desperate shortage of first-class tenors, which is critically felt from the Met down.

But the fact remains that it was James Whicher, a baritone, who emerged as currently the best young male singer in Canada. Having heard him myself, I have no quarrel with the verdict of the judges.

A RARE FIND

Moreover, when I discussed the Victoria program with Whicher, he turned out to be a phenomenon of almost unique rarity: namely, a fine singer, but a MODEST one! I asked for one or two things I wanted him to sing here, but he begged to be excused from doing these, on the grounds that he did not feel himself to be ready for them!

They were certain baritone numbers which lesser artists have repeatedly sung in public on very much less than James Whicher possesses.

Such an attitude on his part caused me to let him select himself his program for next Thursday's Butchart Gardens concert, and he will be heard (all with orchestral accompaniment) in songs and arias by Verdi, Massenet, Mozart, Gershwin and Rodgers and Hammerstein.

The orchestra will supply music from the Gayne Ballet Suite by—how do you spell it?—Aram Khachaturian, including the Sabre Dance; Robert Russell Bennett's symphonic scenario from South Pacific, the triumphal scene from Aida, and, after darkness will have fallen, music from Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

HOLLYWOOD MISCELLANY
Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis will be song and dance men in "The Ballad of Cat Ballou." The film to be made as a Western musical, probably will get under way late this year.

Pat Boone, Dot singing star, and his wife, Shirley, expect their third child in October.

Oreste, who stars in a film about French poet Francois Villon, "The Vagabond King," will make his American concert debut in the Hollywood Bowl with Dorothy Kirsten in August. The tenor from Malta has sung publicly in Europe but not the United States.

POPS LIBRARY — Pleasant, soft listening for hot summer evenings—Ferry Faith plays some top melodies from "My Fair Lady" (Columbia).

Other top hits include Deca's "Barbershop Ball" featuring the Schmitt Brothers, and Stan Freeman who puts on a funny piano-and-satire show on Epic.

Deca's "Homage to Mozart" (DMP833), is a recording which I can recommend to anyone in search of a good Mozart concert. Especially designed to commemorate the bicentennial of Mozart's birth, the record contains a wide variety of the

Mexican Consul To Open Show

Paintings representing the week of the exhibition, but proceeds of daily voluntary donations will go to the Victoria Art Gallery.

Some of Mexico's most gifted artists will be on view all next week, following a private preview Monday evening at the Crystal Garden lower ballroom.

Senor Gonzalez de la Loza, Mexican consul in Vancouver, will open the exhibition on Monday. Forty-eight paintings in oil, water color and tempera make up the show which was assembled under the direction of Dr. Reyes, director of the Palace of Fine Arts in Mexico City. Among the paintings is a Diego Rivera, two Orozcos and two Calderons.

The collection, valued at $25,000, arrived in Victoria this weekend and is being unpacked and hung by a committee from the Art Gallery headed by acting curator, Tony Emery.

When the Victoria Times arranged to sponsor the exhibition in conjunction with Canadian Pacific Airlines, it was with the hope and expectation that the venture might bring about a constant interchange of such shows between Canada and Mexico.

There will be no admission charge to the public during the week of the exhibition, but proceeds of daily voluntary donations will go to the Victoria Art Gallery.

Exhibition At 'The Barn'

A unique students' garden art show, will be an outdoor attraction, Sunday, on the lawns of The Barn, Peggy Walton Packard's studio at the corner of Lansdowne and Richmond Roads.

The show will be open from 2:30 to 5:30 and is free to the interested public. During the afternoon Mrs. Packard will sing a group of songs.

At a private preview last weekend, visitors were intrigued with the fine showing of student work and its presentation: A pair of sculptured ballet dancers by John Hodder were posed beside the fish pool, pastel portraits were pegged to the clothesline.

Elfin figures were poised on tree stumps and other sculptures displayed on rustic garden tables.

The Barn itself will be open from attic portrait studio to basement modelling room, where works of sculpture may be viewed in various stages of development, from first plasticine draft to finished work.

In the main studio, murals, portraits and sculpture by Mrs. Packard will be on exhibition.

Self-Styled Underworld King Brazenly Recounts Many Crimes

BOSS OF BRITAIN'S UNDERWORLD, by Billy Hill, British Book Service (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, 231 pages; $3.75.

If you can believe half said by the boastful author who is a self-confessed master thief and quite conceivably an efficient liar, "Boss of Britain's Underworld" is the most revealing book to have been written in England in a decade.

Hill awards himself the title of underworld boss and then brazenly writes of his exploits to substantiate his claim. He tells his readers he has more finesse than Al Capone ever had and that gangs organized by Hill made Capone's henchmen look crude and amateurish.

BRIBERY, CORRUPTION

A great part of the book could be taken as an expose, for Hill shatters cherished illusions of the much-lauded British justice and fair play. He doesn't criticize the courts particularly but otherwise corruption and bribery run as rife in England as in any other country.

According to Hill, there is little fair play in jail. He speaks of prison guards in some prisons as "sadistic screws."

"Hardly a day passed," he says, "without some prisoner being beaten up until he was unconscious. It was routine for a bunch of guards to lock the door of a prisoner's cell and kick him nearly to death." For Hill, however, the 17 years of life spent in prison were not great hardship, he says.

OPERATING FROM JAIL

By bribery he not only got special concessions but he was able to employ a prison worker to do clerical work for him and another to carry messages to his friends so that his illegal operations outside could continue to flourish.

He also claims he acquired the faculty to mentally transport himself out of jail to some place where life was pleasant and rosy. He says that many a long night in jail he had the time of his life living in a wild fantasy of dreams.

Most of his big criminal jobs and thousands of small ones, he says, were planned in jail.

SMASH AND GRAB

Hill tells of scores of crimes he and his gang committed, daytime smash-and-grab thefts in the heart of London, mail robberies, wholesale thefts of wartime ration coupons. Without admitting he had a part of it he tells of the 1932 mail bag theft of £287,000 in currency and a £45,000 gold bullion theft from an airliner.

Figuratively thumbing his nose at Scotland Yard, he suggests they throw the records of the case away or mark it closed. All evidence was destroyed in a matter of hours, he says.

SWAN SONG

The law is a peculiar and intricate business, but readers of the book will wonder why Hill cannot be punished further on the basis of his published disclosures. Hill is obviously an exhibitionist and more than likely a liar, but it is incredible that any publisher would print the book unless it were, in the main, fact.

In the meantime Hill more or less intimates that the book is his swan song to a life of crime for which he apparently has no moral scruples, no conscience and no regrets. Like "Pa" and "Ma" who sponsored a family of 21 children in Seven Dials—all of whom were also crooks—Hill plans to retire.

If you are emphasizing the belief that crime doesn't pay it would be better not to show Hill's book to friends.

The self-styled boss of Britain's underworld looks back on his career with the pride of a master planner and operator.

He modestly admits that he has more than a quarter million in cash, a large and prosperous toy factory, several legal London "clubs," mink coats and posh automobiles.

He's meditating on a home on the Riviera.

Primitive Diet Might Inspire Literary Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Want to be a writer? It may involve living on a diet of boiled owl, coyote sinews, crows' eggs, porcupine flesh and dandelion salads, says a well-known Canadian naturalist and author.

Kerry Wood, 48, of Red Deer, Alta., told an Ottawa naturalists' organization that this was his standard fare for the first two years of his writing career.

He developed the urge to write at the age of 10, he said. But he didn't really get started until he was 16, when his parents moved away from Red Deer, leaving him $10 to live on until the end of the school term.

He quit school at once, set up housekeeping in an old shack, and wrote. For financial reasons, however, he had to scrape by on a strictly back-to-nature diet.

A Shirt Tale

CAT IN GLOVES, by Denis Delaney, Gryphon Books.

Denis Delaney, author of the new thriller, Cat in Gloves, is the pseudonym of a well-known serious novelist. Anyone would have thought that the Scilly Isles would be the best possible place in which a cloistered University Classical don could relax. So the islands would have been if he hadn't suddenly developed a passion for a gaudy striped beach shirt. Somehow, this shirt gave offence, and made him the target for a stray bullet, and he was pitched immediately into a break-neck adventure.

Mr. Delaney writes with wonderful verve. He has that carefully controlled use of superlatives without which gun running, smuggling, the Secret Service and the film world would find it so difficult to exist.

Thriller addicts will find the mystery is as unusual as the background. Mr. Delaney is a new thriller writer to be noted.

Attractive Prizes In New Contests

By JAMES SCOTT

Sure and it would be presumptuous to suggest that publishers and other like influential folk hang on to our every word, but it's the sober truth that in no time at all after we suggested here that it would be a good thing for all publishers to make their literary awards not contingent upon earned royalties, Dr. Lorne Pierce of the Ryerson Press was announcing that from now on the Ryerson Fiction Award will be a straight thousand dollars (no royalty strings attached) and then an additional five hundred on royalties.

That's more like it and Ryerson and Dr. Pierce are to be commended for such a move. Incidentally, the contest ends the first of February in each year and particulars can be obtained by writing to the Ryerson Press, Queen Street West, Toronto.

Scott

Now that I've started on the mundane topic of money and writers I might as well carry on. Beta Sigma Phi, for example, has announced that it will continue its award of $1,000 for the best first novel published by a Canadian for the next four years (an award each year for the next four, that is). Last year's money was won by Brian Moore for his Judith Hearne.

WEST COAST WINNER

John Cornish, a Vancouver writer whose first novel, The Provincials, was a bright spot in 1951 will be getting $5,000 from Maclean's Magazine any day now for his novel, Oiga, which that magazine will be publishing in a single issue within the next few months. This is the third such award Maclean's have made since they started their search for good Canadian novels by offering a cash prize for any accepted. Other winners have been W.O. Mitchell and Morley Callaghan.

Speaking of awards, I might mention that the University of Western Ontario's president's medals were won this year by Eva-Lis Wuorio for the best short story of the year; by Ralph Allen for the best article.

and by Louis Dudek for the best single poem.

Equally interesting is the fact that the Association of Canadian Magazine Editors is now putting $250 to the medals for the short story and the article. As far as I know, this makes these two medals the first such awards to be accompanied by hard, cold cash. This department, has argued for years that the same thing should happen to the Governor-General's medals, but so far no takers.

SHORT STORY CONTEST

There will be money in writing a short story suitable for women's magazines, too. Chateleine has just announced that it will soon be opening a contest for such fiction and that the prizes will be $1,000 and $500 for the two best stories.

In short, when you look at all this it would appear that money for Canadian writing is practically growing on trees, ready for the plucking.

Well, not quite. But another interesting thing about what is being around is that it all comes either from interested organizations or even more interested publishers. This is fine and right, but what about all those other well-heeled corporations or individuals who have no vested interest but ought to have a real concern for the national culture?

I would like to see some rich contractor, or oilman, or manufacturer or farmer (indeed anybody who has profited greatly from our fabulous expanding economy) show a bit of interest in promoting writing in this country by laying a wad of the long green on the table.

Oh, well, it's only a thought.

ART IN REVIEW

Modern Advertising Proves Contemporary Art Has Appeal

By COLIN GRAHAM

Waxing enthusiastic two weeks ago I wrote considerably more than our editor had space to print. To any reader waiting for me to redeem my promise of the previous week to show that there exists a mass audience for abstract art, I therefore tender an apology for the fact that the editor's paring knife had to be used.

And now as to that mass audience.

Picasso's admirers probably number over a million. In this province an able cubist painter like B. C. Binning (a reproduction of whose "Ships in a Classical Calm" was shown here two weeks ago) has more commissions than he can cope with, while hungry buyers regularly descend on Jack Shadbolt's exhibitions. Yet in terms of the total population it can hardly yet be said that these painters have a mass audience.

Anyone wishing to find out for himself the whereabouts of this audience should first study the design techniques of such leading painters of our time as Picasso, Mondrian and Dufy.

He should then look closely at the advertising designs and page layouts in such leading magazines as Life, Time, Vogue, Fortune, or the New Yorker.

He will discover that about half the advertisements are direct "steals" from the procedures and discoveries of these artists. Not steals in the plagiaristic sense, usually, but in the wholesale taking over of their form principles.

In Vogue perfume ads you will find the elegant line and open devices of Dufy; in Coco Cola displays Mondrian's famous space-dividing grid work of black lines, while the form and space conventions of Picasso are just about everywhere.

Now virtually everybody must like these advertisements. If they were not appealing you can be sure the advertisers would not spend a cent of their money on them.

My guess is that because readers of these magazines are not told in so many words that they are looking at a species of abstract art they react to what they see with their inhibitions down and an unprejudiced eye.

Take them into a gallery and show them the same thing in purer and deeper form and their judgment becomes clouded. Because it is painting it at once seems formidable, obtruse and perhaps very ugly.

WINNER OF $5,000 PRIZE

Mrs. J. D. Lovely of Victoria, first-place winner in Canada in the Jewel Shortening "Name Your Prize" contest receives her prize from Mr. G. D. Copithorne, Swift Canadian Co. Ltd., sponsors of the Canadian-wide contest. Mrs. Lovely chose a "Speed Queen" combination washer-drier, from Woodward's, and a cheque for balance of the $5,000 prize.

THE STAMP CORNER

By REG NAIRNE

NEW ISSUE NOTES: Swaziland monument, will make its appearance.

has just issued its new Queen Elizabeth series of 12 stamps, running from the ½d to the 1½ value. The last mentioned is a new denomination for this country, the previous top value having been the 10/-.

Designs for the first 6 of the set are all different, but are repeated for the 6 higher values.

U.S.A.: The 3c of the new "Wild Life" series, just out, shows the Pronghorn Antelope. This was followed by another 3c marking the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the Pure Food and Drug Laws. On July 4th the 10c of the new regular issue featuring Independence Hall was issued.

On Aug. 5th still another 3c will be put on sale. This will show "Wheatland," the old home of Jas. Buchanan. Finally (or at least for a while!) on Sept. 24th a 3c stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of the setting aside of Devil's Tower, Wyoming, as a national monument, will make its appearance.

For some unknown reason, the colors of the Q.E. Aden set, just issued a couple of years ago, have been considered unsatisfactory, and most of the denominations have been re-issued in new shades.

Latest to be affected is the 35c value, a new color of which is expected soon. To the average person the changes have been quite pointless and unnecessary.

One suspects that an easy means of increasing revenue from collectors may have something to do with it.

Quite a few of the current G.B. stamps have now appeared with the new watermark (St. Edward's Crown instead of the Tudor Crown). Collectors will thank their stars that the original intention of switching watermarks throughout the whole crown colony series was voted down.

Don't forget, though, that the stamps overprinted for use in Morocco, etc., will be affected. Already the ½d and 1d stamps of Tangier are out with the new watermark.

A.—Try treating the plant growth periodically with an efficient chemical weed killer, such as liquid 2,4-D. Follow application instructions printed on the container.

If you have planned to cover your entire lawn with new top soil, don't do it.

It's possible to get by simply by using top soil to fill depressions and dips in the lawn. Kentucky bluegrass is strong enough to do the rest, experts say.

Twenty agronomists and turf grass experts agreed that "the most any lawn can be fertilized into acceptability" for Kentucky bluegrass and high quality bluegrass mixtures.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Cultivation Between Plants Provides Necessary Humidity

By JACK BEASTALL

In what way does hoeing and cultivating benefit plants when it has been proven not to conserve soil moisture?

That was the theme of this column two weeks ago, and the response by mail showed that a large percentage of gardeners had their own answers.

My thanks to all who wrote, and my regrets at being unable to answer each letter personally.

Most of the writers suggested that increased air to the plant roots was beneficial. Some used the term nitrogen, others thought it possible that air (or nitrogen) might be more necessary to plant growth than moisture.

Three writers gave the full details, as far as present knowledge goes, of what happens when we practice regular cultivation.

NOT CONSERVE

Although the reader who took me to task did not state the reason on the original postcard, it was most likely for writing

"keep the soil cultivated between rows to conserve moisture."

To the old-time gardener this phrase, like so many other gardening phrases, has a definite meaning, even if it is incorrect. The fault lies in the word "conserve"; it should have been to "release" moisture to the plants.

Sometimes it is better to use a phrase which is well understood when space is at a premium, rather than use a new phrase without any explanation.

How can cultivation release moisture to plant roots? It works this way:

Excepting when the grains of soil are so tightly compressed as to have no space between them, there will always be air or moisture between the grains.

MOISTURE DRAWN UP
In a good loam with an uncultivated surface, the moisture remains between the grains while the air dries only the surface. After cultivation, air penetrates and replaces the moisture which evaporates.

In school we were told how the sun draws moisture from the oceans and large lakes, and how this vapor condenses at the colder altitudes until it becomes moist enough to return as rain.

A somewhat parallel condition results when the surface soil is broken. Moisture is drawn up from below and becomes available to the plants as it passes through the root area on its way to the surface. This continues until the natural level of the soil moisture, falls beyond the drawing power of the sun.

A definition of conserve is to keep from loss or premature consumption. This may happen before the surface is cultivated, but once it is broken the moisture is released to the atmosphere, and the plants obtain greater benefit in the process.

Thus another age old gardening term bows to science.

Cedar shingles insure against roofing troubles due to condensation as they have high insulation value and because, literally and figuratively, cedar shingles breathe.

Clipping grass within one inch or closer of the ground removes so much of the foliage that grass plants cannot make enough food to sustain growth.

Multiple Bathroom Serves Family Needs

Trying to make one bathroom do the work of two? If so, you can easily add glamor—as well as a touch of mystery—to everyday life around your house by taking a tip from the hotel planners of a few years back. According to the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, there is a way of making 50 per cent more space give you more than double the service.

At present, if you're in the same predicament as four out of five Canadian families, the line no doubt forms in the hall morning and evening. Mother's nerves stand on end, keeping breakfast or dinner waiting. Father almost cuts his throat, rushing to get through the daily shaving chore so that teen-agers can be ready for school—or the dance.

Why put up with this any longer? Especially when there's a space going to waste around your house. In most cases, this is right where it is needed most—next to the existing bathroom. All you have to do is expand into an adjoining hall or larger bedroom to accommodate the extra "cell."

Here's the general layout. One of the latest model square bathtubs is only 42 inches each way. This goes in the centre. On either side, as shown in the accompanying plan, are compartments equipped with wash basin and toilet.

There are two approaches—one from the hall, the other from within the master bedroom. And this alone is a convenience any couple with a growing family will appreciate.

Such a setup also lends itself to several "working" arrangements. Let's say, for instance, the morning rush is on and one member of the family wants to take a bath. He or she can manage this in the middle compartment, while both ends are taking care of others.

Sliding doors, it will be noted, ensure the privacy of what is literally the "bathroom." A Hollywood touch is added by installing basins of the new counter type, which actually makes them dressing tables, with running water at hand. They can also be had with clothes hampers underneath—a further space saver.

Rear Porch Adjunct To Big Living Room

This neat home with its spacious living and dining area and ample cupboarding arrangement assures every living comfort for the small family. The rear porch area, which is accessible from the living room, is ideal for summer living and can be glazed or screened as desired.

The plan is available with or without basement. Plan 1 with utility room contains 1,059 square feet, plan 2 with basement, 1,049. Blueprints can be obtained by writing The Loder Company Ltd., Revillon Building, Edmonton.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Cut faded roses by removing stem down to two leaves from the branch. This is a form of summer pruning which encourages a good crop of blooms for late summer.

Cut fading flowers from perennials, and remove any leaves as they become yellow.

Pick sweet peas daily once flowering commences.

Violas and pansies which may quit blooming temporarily, may be cut back to force new growth for cuttings or later flowers.

Sow seed of kohlrabi, early carrot, beet.

There is still time to sow seed of spring cabbage by using a cold frame or seed box.

If beets are slow, sprinkle agricultural salt along row, and water in well.

Cut back coarse stems of chives. Fresh tender growth will soon be made.

Tamarix tetrandra, the feathery pink shrub which flowers in spring before its leaves appear, becomes straggly with age unless the old weak wood is cut out each year about this time.

Be sure that rhododendrons and azaleas get a plentiful supply of water. A mulch of wet peat moss will be beneficial to them.

Lamps Echo Modern Home Furnishings

The lamp industry has quickened its pace in following the lead set by related fields in home furnishings. Furniture finishes, scaling and hardware, architectural requirements and color trends in fabrics and floor coverings directly influence lamp designs.

Closer integration between lamp styling and furniture design is achieved in several ways: The most important is through the use of popular wood finishes—sculptured walnut, teak, mahogany and cherry.

What's more, metallic accents emulate the same materials in furniture hardware. That's why we are seeing so much more pewter, copper, silver, antiqued brass and bronze.

The fashion analysts of Retailing Daily report that design influences, too, are parallel. Scandinavian, French and Italian Provincial, Italian Directoire and Oriental styles are as indigenous to lamp design as they are to furniture.

The fortunate results of this integration are forms that look well in context and that complement rather than compete with their decorative surroundings.

However, plastic glues do work well on wood. Plastic resin glue is used extensively in the manufacture of furniture, pianos, and boats. These extremely strong plastic adhesives are especially good for close-fitting wood joints. They are moisture-resistant and, because they're light-colored, there's no danger of staining the wood.

Remember, the idea that any glue will glue anything is wrong; there's a specific glue for each job.

Planning now for insecticide needs will pay off in less trouble in vegetable growing this summer.

CONTEMPORARY LIVING

Furniture Selection For Small Bungalow

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

For the bride moving into one of today's smaller homes, one of the first exercises in home-making will be to create a room setting that can serve comfortably around the clock, for every occasion from brunch for the girls to overnight accommodations for a visiting relative.

Careful planning of furniture will include what kind of service you expect from each piece and how you're going to fit it into the setting. Because the sofa will figure prominently in your plans, think twice as you budget its purchase.

If the area will have to double as a guest room, perhaps a sofa that converts to a sleeper is in order. A light, tailored styling with slim, sculptured arms and exposed wood base may be in better proportion to room dimensions and other furniture than a bulkier, overstuffed couch.

But remember that the sofa will be sat upon as much or more than it will be used for sleep, so that sitting comfort is important. Some of the dual-purpose pieces are as comfortable as conventional sofas.

Long, low lines of contemporary sofas eat up wall space. You don't have to stick to the customary arrangement of sofa flanked by matching end tables and lamps.

More interesting is to vary the height of other accessories, even graduating them in size up through rather tall pieces to balance the long look of the sofa.

A tall plant, floor lamp or step table placed at one end of the sofa are possibilities. If the sofa is well made and looks attractive from any angle, you can place it at right angles to the wall to serve as room divider and to conserve space.

Once in place — always in place. No putting up, taking down, painting, storing or re-pairing.

BILL WALKER—Sports Editor

12 Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1966

IT'S MY VIEW

BY

Bill Walker

And then there was the summer bonspiel. One doesn't really have to be a curler to appreciate the fellowship and conviviality that makes a bonspiel the success that most of them usually are. Oh, sure, it helps—it helps the skip, and that fellow often needs all the help he can get, even though he still has to make the last shot, and make it good. But it's a cosmopolitan crowd who make up a bonspiel. For example, there's Ole Olson of Edmonton. Ole travels the curling circuit, sharpening rocks, winning his share of prizes, and then moves on. And Gordie Moore. Baseball fans will remember Gordie as handy-Andy around the first-base post in years gone by in the senior amateur baseball circuit. Now he guides little leaguers, and does a grand job.

Baseball Once Their Love

Stan Douglas, too, is a former diamond ace and a neat change-up was his stock-in-trade. Jim Tang used to bend 'em in for the Eagles in days long past, while Arnie Wilkinson made the trip from the mainland to enjoy the 'spiel and renew acquaintances with his old baseball and soccer buddies. And you couldn't keep hockey's Colin Kilburn away from the rink; a former Edmontonian, he has been tossing lead rocks for Larry Marshall. Speaking of Larry, he livened up the Smorgasbord dance by bringing, as guests, two of his wrestlers—the distaff variety, no less. Needless to say, they made an impression. No bonspiel is history here without the name of Tony Gutoski.

Tony had, as his mates, three high school youngsters—Dale Daisel, Gary Liebel and D. Newell. When not curling the kids were charged with such chores as sweeping the ice, and keeping the club rooms ship-shape. And right now they figure to carry home two championships for their efforts. Well done, we'd say.

Mel Always All Business

Mel Smith is the fellow at the corner bank who waves a finger every Monday, commenting: "pay day tomorrow, we'll see you then." So you see him, and pay him, and then he attempts to compound the . . . er, felony . . . by drawing to the button on last rock. George Harkness showed up too. And that's a strange thing—what with the ponies running at Lansdowne, and George a member of the horsemen's club. And a competent basketball and grid official he is as well.

Bill Purdy drives buses for a living, and not throwing third rock. Dick Pick is a little league umpire on summer evenings. Gar Taylor took up the game when he figured his softball days were over, and is a willing instructor for the youngsters wishing to learn the game.

Charlie Loves That Shirt

Charlie Hodgson sticks to his familiar tartan shirt as a good luck piece; Art Mawer is never without a cigarette; Laurie Ferlette and wife are not afraid to admit it—this is the year of their 25th wedding anniversary. And a host of others—they enjoy curling for the pleasure it gives them, and the friendships they make. Like Bonnie Watson, the blonde bombshell of mat fame, said of Fred Madden, the genial secretary who keeps everyone in festive mood. "He sure enjoys himself, doesn't he?"

And how true for everyone. If they don't have fun at a bonspiel, or didn't at this one, their mode of living is not complete. Else why would Marshall, Moore, Frank Garraway and Taylor be leaving for Nelson, and another bonspiel tonight?

Solarium Corner

Don Esselmont is like Dave Gray—both are so busy at their work right now that they haven't got time to do any fishing.

Don, like Dave, works at Island Marine and is on the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Solarium Derby committee.

That's one project he has time for, however.

Don has been a member of the committee for five years now and because it is such a good cause, still manages to get out and sell tickets.

All proceeds of the July 22 derby, co-sponsored by the Times, go to the Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children.

Don may not have much time for a derby ticket, but he'll sell you a fishing ticket to go fishing on the 22nd. Just phone him at 2-8258 or 2-6818.

Aircos Humble United

North Shore 6, Victoria 3

Today Jock Hendry, secretary-manager of the Coast Soccer League, probably thinks he is right after all.

A short time ago, Jock blasted Victoria United for their showing in the summer schedule of the league, for both losing five straight games and drawing poor crowds.

United retaliated with a win and a draw in its next two outings and a crowd of 1,100 fans at one game.

Friday night at Athletic Park, another 1,100 fans were on hand, but this time the blossoming United bubble burst before the incisive boots of North Shore Aircos, who won in an embarrassing 6-3.

The fans, sure that they had a winner at last, were embarrassed, too. Not so United.

The Victoria eleven, giving precious little thought to co-ordinating their efforts, or even at times co-ordinating foot with ball, dropped behind, 2-0, at the half.

They were never in the act, although scoring three goals in the second half.

On the other hand Aircos, who owned previous 6-0 and 6-3 triumphs over United, showed a cohesive awareness on their front-line that produced six goals in 15 attempts at United goalie Archie McMillan.

Neil McEachnie with three goals in the second half was the sharpest of North Shore's many-pronged attack. Art Hughes had two more, one in each half, while Bruce Ashdown scored the other.

United goals were scored by Cec Harrison, Ced Robb and John Pickburn.

Ashdown started it off in the first half with a goal that bounced off defender Bill Hope at 10 minutes. Hughes followed with his first at 13 minutes.

Harrison swelled the bubble a bit with a low, sharp goal on a penalty kick at seven minutes of the second half to make it 2-1, but from then on, North Shore controlled the ball and the play with a minimum of effort.

McEachnie made it 3-1 at nine minutes. He was followed by Hughes with his second goal at 15 minutes, then completed his hat trick with scores at 20 and 28 minutes.

Robb at 21 minutes and Pickburn at 24 minutes scored token goals for United.

The rough, hard-tackling contest saw several minor injuries and a few displays of temper. United, who had already made their limit of three substitutions, had to play the final 20 minutes of the match with 10 men after Carruthers was forced to leave the game with a face injury.

OAK BAY CRICKET

Oak Bay cricket team to meet Aircos Sunday at Windsor Park at 2.30 follows: J. Sparks, T. Warren, E. Parkins, G. Odgers, B. Cuppage, I. Ogle, K. Wright, P. Steer, J. Cox, K. Ravenhill, J. Thornhill.

FARMERS BID FOR LEAD AGAINST SEATTLE HERE

Farmer Construction of the Northwest International Baseball League can take over first place today, if they win both games from league-leading Seattle at Athletic Park.

Although with the most wins of any team, Farmers' 8-5 record is several percentage points behind Seattle's 7-3, 700 mark.

Tonight's second game of the double-header starts at 7.30.

WIMBLEDON CHAMP

Shirley Gives U.S. 13th Win

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Shirley Fry of St. Petersburg, Fla., today defeated Angela Buxton of Britain, 6-3, 6-1, to win the women's singles of the all-England tennis championships.

Miss Buxton was the first English woman finalist in the tournament since 1939.

It was the first major singles victory for Miss Fry, who is ranked second in the United States behind Doris Hart, now a professional, and the 13th straight year in which an American has won the English title.

Lew Hoad's singles victory Friday over Ken Rosewall was considered by many to be the possible start of a decade of Australian mastery in world tennis.

The two Aussies who fought it out on Wimbledon's centre court are only 21, and unless one or both decide to turn professional, they probably will be able to split the major tennis titles between them for years to come.

Hoad already has won the French and Australian singles crowns in addition to Wimbledon, and needs only the United States singles title to match Donald Budge's unprecedented sweep in 1938. Rosewall was a finalist in both the Wimbledon and Australian tournaments but did not compete in Paris.

Hoad and Rosewall entered the doubles final by defeating Art Larsen, San Leandro, Calif., and Bob Howe, Australia, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-3.

Althea Gibson of New York Friday became the first negro to qualify for a Wimbledon final.

She and her British partner, Miss Buxton, beat the top-seeded American pair, Louise Brough and Shirley Fry, 7-5, 6-4.

The other women's doubles finalists are Australians Fay Muller and Daphne Seamen, who beat the defending champions, Angela Mortimer and Ann Shilcock of Britain, 6-4, 6-2.

Medal Golf

10-10—Mrs. H. O. Mearns and Mrs. R. Smith.
10-10—Mrs. W. Erickson and Mrs. G. Chisholm.
10-10—Miss M. Mahoney and Mrs. B. Thirwell.
10-10—Mrs. H. O. MacKenzie and Mrs. R. Veston.
10-10—Mrs. A. Dowell and Mrs. A. G. R. Robinson.
10-10—Mrs. B. H. Harrell and Mrs. B. Number.

Tony's Youngsters Ready to Pay Off

Tony Gutoski's youth movement is paying off.

Tony, who lost out in the finals of the B.C. Consols at Victoria Curling Club this spring, picked up three young curlers this week to curl in the VCC's summer bonspiel.

Entering today's play, Gutoski was the only unbeaten skip in the 'spiel. Friday he downed previously unbeaten Don McIntosh, 8-6, in the B primary for his ninth straight win. After Friday's action Gutoski was in the final of the B primary and semifinals of the A primary.

* Most decisive victory of the day, however, came in the B secondary when Vic Buchanan of Youbou downed the Green rink of Victoria, skipped by J. Tang, 11-0. It was the highest score in up of the week-long event.

Today, semifinals and finals

'Rookie' Shares Open Golf Lead

Unknown U.S. Pro Equals Record

POINTE CLAIRE, Que. (CP)—Gary Brewer, Jr., a rookie on the pro golf circuit, relied on a straight-shooting putter Friday to move into a tie for the halfway lead in the Canadian Open golf championship.

The 24-year-old Cincinnati golfer—an amateur until Jan. 1 this year—used 27 putts to shoot a seven-under-par 65, the second record-equaling score over the Beaconfield course in two days.

Brewer's hot round gave him a halfway total of 135, the same as Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., who fired at 68 Friday to go with his first round 67. Brewer shot a 70 the first day.

The pair were one stroke up on Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, Ohio, and amateur Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla. Finsterwald was 67-69—136. Sanders 69-67—136.

First-round leader Bo Winger of Odessa, Texas, who had registered the first 65 of the tournament Thursday—equaling the course record made 10 years ago—"blew" to a par 72 in the second round. Winger dropped to a third-place tie with Mike Fetchik of Mahopac, N.Y. Both had totals of 137.

Some of the low scorers of the first round blew sky high. Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., and Paul Harney of Bolton, Mass., each of whom had scored 67 the first time around, climbed to three-over-par 75s and dropped to eighth place, tied with six others.

Doug Ford, the veteran pro from Mahopac, N.Y., turned in a 67 to go with his first round 71. His 138 total, three strokes behind the leaders, put him in a contending position. Ford said he was glad he wasn't the leader because "the man leading right now is going to have to look over his shoulder."

Beaconfield pro Bill Kerr, who had led the Canadian representation after one round with a 69, climbed to a one-over-par 71 and surrendered Canadian honours to Jack Kay of the Montreal Mount Bruno Club.

Kay added a 68 to his 71 and tied Bill Casper, Bob Rosburg, and Fred Hawkins for fourth place with 139.

BERLIN, Germany (BUP)—Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., has advanced to the men's singles semi-final, and Dorothy Head Knobe of Forest Hills, N.Y., to the women's singles semi-final in the Berlin International Tennis Tournament.

CITY YOUNGSTER EARNS DOMINION NET BERTH

Reider Getz, a newcomer to Victoria, who has been in the province only six months, Friday won the right to represent British Columbia in the Canadian Junior Tennis Championships.

Getz, formerly of Hong Kong, defeated Harry Fauquier, 6-3, 6-4, Friday night in the under-18 men's final in Vancouver.

He will be B.C.'s junior men's singles representative in the Canadian championships at Ottawa next month.

WHAT'S THE SCORE? BY Denny Boyd

Jim Skelton of Vancouver is somewhat in the position of a guy being told to write next week's newspaper today.

Jim, as the recently-named non-playing captain of Canada's Davis Cup team, must start immediately picking his brains, devising tactics and planning strategy with which the Canadian team will greet the U.S. team here in three weeks' time.

The only trouble is, Jim doesn't know who will be playing for his team any better than he knows who will be on the U.S. squad.

Obviously, anytime Jim has even the most random thought on what tactics he will use in the North American zone cup at the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club courts, he must make extensive use of phrases like "and/or" and "as the case may be."

Jim just doesn't know his Skelton crew. (Pause for sustained laughter.)

But the situation is hardly a unique one for Davis Cup captains and the cheerful Vancouverite is approaching the momentous job with a refreshing attitude of enthusiasm and energy which, it would seem, is a most necessary factor in the moulding of a successful tennis team.

A Good Guess About Personnel

Thrilled to the core at his appointment as non-playing captain (though not entirely surprised), Jim said this week, "Naturally, the situation is a little nebulous right now as to who will be playing for our Canadian team."

Prodded slightly, Jim said that the names of Henri Rochon, Bob Bedard, Don Fontana, Paul Willey and Lorne Barclay would come up for more than passing scrutiny in the next couple of weeks.

"Rochon, Bedard and Fontana are old hands; they've been around. Barclay and Willey have been picking up valuable experience on the European circuit and should be better players for their participation at Wimbledon," said Skelton.

Jim had some thought-provoking comments to make about the possible complement of the U.S. team.

"A lot," he said, "will depend on just how confident the U.S. team will be. They very likely will name 12 to 15 players to their team but who they will send will depend on the strategy of their captain. If they feel confident of beating us, they may not send their top line team, but if they are a little anxious about us, I wouldn't be surprised if they were to send any or all of Vic Seixas, Ham Richardson, Art Larsen and Herb Flam. Another factor involved could be that they may want to give chances to as many west coast players as possible, which could rule out Seixas and Richardson."

Skelton will get a trickle of inkblasts as to who his players will be in the next three weeks as the results are tabulated in three tournaments in eastern Canada, two in Quebec City and one in Toronto.

One Never Knows, Does One?

The Canadian Davis Cup team last year didn't set any world on fire, but let's give them credit where credit is due. They were up against those tremendously strong Australians, whom nobody expected them to beat. Still, Fontana and Bedard forced world doubles champs Lew Hoad, of the 88 mm service, and partner Rex Hartwig to four sets in the doubles and Bedard did take one set from Ken Rosewall.

It's highly likely that Billy Talbert, the fine little tennis player, writer, bon vivant and baseline general, will again be named the U.S. captain.

Billy is a shrewd little guy who likes to win, so it is distinctly possible that at the end of this month we could be watching Seixas, the poised, powerful and sometimes petulant Philadelphia, who drew gasps of disapproval at Wimbledon this week for refusing to come to the net for the traditional handshake after he lost to Rosewall; Richardson, the slight but amazingly strong diabetic, who is a Rhodes scholar as well as one of the top 10 singles players around, and Larsen, the temperamental left-hander from San Leandro, Calif.

And that could make July a month to remember.

Brookville Crew Edged In Henley Race Final

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng. (AP)—A British Army crew today won the Wyfold Challenge Cup by defeating the Brookville, Ont., crew in one of the craziest races ever seen at a Henley regatta.

Three times along the one-550-yard course the Canadians ran into the marker boom as a vicious cross wind hit their craft. But despite this the Brit-

Stengel Gives Sox Credit—Wilson Key to Flag Race

NEW YORK (UP)—No less an authority than Casey Stengel believes that vice-president Chuck Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox may have made the key deal of the American League pennant race when he acquired 34-year-old right-hander Jim Wilson from the Baltimore Orioles.

"They always said that Frank Lane could make great deals and I guess he could," the Yankees' 65-year-old manager said. "But that Comiskey made a pretty good one when he got Wilson."

Stengel considers the deal so important that he's changed his mind about the Yankees' chief rival in the pennant race. Stengel rated the Cleveland Indians his most dangerous opponents during spring training but now he considers the White Sox threat more alarming.

"Getting Wilson fixed the White Sox up just right," Stengel said. "He's rounded out their pitching staff for the first time in years. It's no coincidence that they've won 25 of 36 games they've played since they got him."

The White Sox had only a Comiskey swung the deal for Wilson but they're breathing down the Yankees' necks now and may just have enough to give Chicago its first American League pennant since 1919.

Thomson Eyes World Title Next

HOYLAK, Eng. (UP)—Aussie Peter Thomson, who succeeded where the great Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen failed by winning the British Open golf championship a third straight time, will shoot for his next title in the "world" championship in Chicago, Aug. 9-12.

The handsome, 26-year-old star from "down under," who scored his historic third Open victory Friday as fellow Aussie Lew Hoad was winning the Wimbledon tennis championship, outlined his plans after finishing the 72-hole circuit here with a two-over-par 286.

After a "short holiday," he will play with the British Commonwealth vs. the British Isles team in the annual competition later this month at Sandwich, England, and then it's on to the so-called "world" competition at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter Club, and its rich prize list.

Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y., and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, the only two Americans to qualify for the last two rounds, finished well behind Thomson. Souchak was in a tie for seventh at 294. Stranahan was 12th at 296.

Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., did not qualify for the final two rounds of play and Al Balding of Toronto had rounds of 73-76 Friday for a total of 300.

Flory Van Donck of Belgium was runner-up with 289, followed by Roberto de Vicenzo of Mexico City at 290 and Gary Player of South Africa at 291. Three-time winner Henry Cotton of England and Enrique Bertolino of Argentina tied for fifth at 293. Souchak was tied with Antonio Cerdá of Argentina at 294.

my side of the story

A continuing series
BY THE DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

"David," I said, standing there in the darkness under the quietly dripping cedars, "I'm going to leave. I've already stayed too long. I should have gone when you showed me Hardinge's letter. But now nothing you can say will hold me here any longer."

To my great relief, he did not argue with me. On the contrary, it seemed as if I had unknowingly lifted a weight from his mind.

"It will be hard for me to have you go," he finally said. "But it would be harder still to have you stay."

Then he told me that among the other dire developments of that day in London was the collapse of the "gentlemen's agreement" that had kept the press silent on the question of our affairs.

The next day's press, he warned, would be ablaze with every conceivable rumor and speculation about the two of us. "Wholly apart from anything else," David concluded, "your situation here would now become harrowing beyond belief. You are right to go. I must handle this in my own way alone."

After we went back inside, I told Aunt Bessie of my decision and the reasons for it. In her wise and intuitive way she had come to much the same conclusion.

UNNERVED, FAINT

I was braced for a blow; but nothing that David had tried to prepare me for had equipped me to deal with what stared up at me on my breakfast tray in the morning.

There in big black type in paper after paper were the words "Grave Constitutional Issue."

I felt unnerved, faint. Everything that David and I had created between us—everything that David in his tenderness had seen in me—was now about to be rendered tawdry and common.

Through my mind ran the question—Why? Why? Why? Why didn't you follow your first instinct? Why didn't you go when you first knew that was the only thing to do?

I dressed quickly. David was in the drawing room at his writing table. As he heard me enter he pushed aside the heap of newspapers at his elbow. "Don't bother, David," I said. "I've seen them."

He rose and took me in his arms. "I'm sorry, darling. I had hoped you wouldn't." All that I could say—and it was inadequate enough—was: "Dearest David, I am sorry I've done this to you."

His answer was: "What's done is done. We've got things to do right now."

"You're right," I answered. "I must be out of England before this day is over."

PRIVACY GONE

David said he had already given thought to how my departure should be handled. His idea was that a trusted friend should accompany me.

My privacy was gone: the hounds of the Press would now be baying in pursuit, wherever I might go. But where? That was the question.

We discussed several possibilities. Then it occurred to me that there was only one sanctuary within immediate reach—Villa Lou Vieil, the house of Katherine and Herman Rogers at Cannes.

David had a call put through to them. When Herman came on the line I told him, as devoutly as I could, that I was leaving England rather soon and would it be an imposition if I stopped with him and Katherine.

Herman grasped my meaning. "Of course not," was his answer. "You must come to us."

EVASIVE TACTICS

After I had hung up, David said that his choice of a companion for me was his lord-in-waiting, a former officer in the Grenadier Guards, Lord Brownlow. "Perry" Brownlow and his charming wife Kitty had been frequent visitors at the Fort.

David's choice was a happy one—perhaps the happiest during all the unspeakable trouble. Knowing that every road from the Fort would be watched by the Press, David arranged to put into operation a set of evasive tactics.

His trusted chauffeur, George Ladbroke, would take my car to Newhaven, where it would be put aboard the night ferry to Dieppe.

He would send along with me his most suave and least identifiable detective to deal with any awkward contingencies that might arise. Perry would come to the Fort under cover of darkness and conduct me to the steamer in his car, which no one would connect with my flight.

The rest of the day was consumed in a whirl of preparation. There was no chance of my trying to make any arrangements about my house at Cumberland terrace, or the servants there, let alone to tidy up my affairs.

All that I dared to do was send Mary Burke back to London to pick up a few clothes. By then the day was gone. Perry Brownlow arrived from London, just at bedtime. All that afternoon, despite the distractions attendant upon my departure, David had been polishing the final draft of the broadcast. He had already summoned the prime minister to the palace for an evening audience to seek his assent for presenting his case to the people, and it was his plan to leave for London as soon as I was off.

Hurried as were my last moments at the Fort, they were none the less poignant. I think we all had a sense of tragedy, of irretrievable finality.

As for myself, this was the last hour of what had been for me the enchanted years. I was sure I would never see David again. Almost as hard as leaving David was saying good-bye to my dear Aunt Bessie, who had so loyally supported me all these years, and whom I was now leaving behind in the forlorn wreckage of my life.

We had to leave by seven o'clock to catch the boat. At the last moment I decided, because of the uncertainties ahead, that I could not take with me the little cairn, Slipper, whom David had given me at the beginning of our friendship and whom I had come to love dearly.

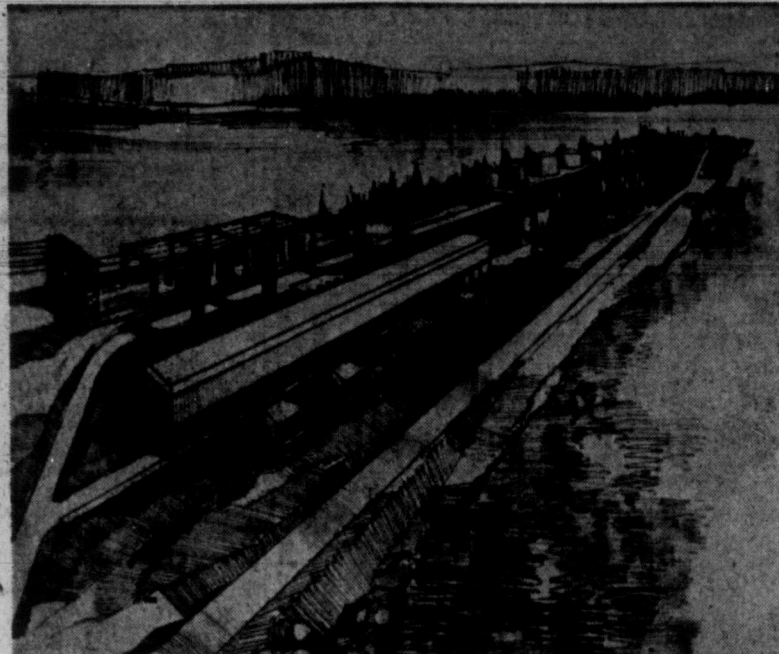

We came out of the door as the last bag was being put into the luggage compartment. Perry tactfully moved to the far side of the car.

David embraced me. His parting words were, "I don't know how it's all going to end. It will be some time before we can be together again. You must wait for me no matter how long it takes. I shall never give you up."

Harry Ewart Heads Rotary at Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—Harry Ewart was installed this week as president of the Chemainus Rotary Club. Other officers installed by past district governor Frank Doherty of Victoria were George Price, vice-president; Bud Dawley, secretary; Art Bird, treasurer; Jack Jamieson, S. A. Clement and Tom Beggs, directors. The installation was held at the Maple Bay Inn.

GAS GENERATOR POWER PLANT UNDER WAY

Gas turbines will drive generators in $13,300,000 plant to be built on Bare Point, across Chemainus harbor from town of Chemainus. Architect's sketch gives idea of finished appearance of plant, scheduled for partial production next year. Excavation work already has begun at site.

Seattle Boats Set for Meet At Sproat Lake

ALBERNI (CP)—Entries from the northwest area have been coming in for the Sproat Lake annual regatta July 22.

George Mowat of the Sproat Lake Racing Club reports Seattle drivers will again compete in races for inboard hydros. Jim Hutchison of Vancouver will try for the Ratepayers' Gold Cup, given for the open inboard marathon.

Swimming and diving events will be included. A new speedboat will be offered as a membership prize at a draw at the close of the regatta.

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Memorial services will be held here for Frederick Robinson, killed in a construction accident at Spirit River, Alta.

Mr. Robinson came here in 1926 and worked as crane operator in local mills before entering construction work.

He is survived by his widow, Grace; a son, Wayne, and two daughters, Mrs. Alvin Brown and Sharon, in Port Alberni; two sons, Stanley and Barrie, with the RCAF in Eastern Canada; a daughter, Mrs. Robert Hall, Kelowna; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson, Parksville.

AROUND AND ABOUT

With Jo Healy

CAYCUSE—One of the most outstanding small publications to have been brought to my notice is "Transition," a little magazine that is published entirely by the inmates of the British Columbia Penitentiary.

My attention was first aroused by the professional styling and format of the sheet; upon further perusal by the excellent editing and outstanding interest of the articles capsule into Transition's 28 or so pages.

Sprinkled with the light touch of jokes and cartoons, a breezy entertainment page and announcements of past and future penitentiary events, Transition deals primarily with the serious aspects of penal servitude—the motives behind the acts of those citizens unfortunate enough to have rebelled at or run afoul of society, and the groping but sincere efforts to find a solution of the problems of those inmates who have, under voluntary or forced compulsion, transgressed to the extent where they must be shut away for various sentences from the society that has condemned their behavior.

I think that Transition should be more widely read, perhaps even displayed on the newsstands, since readers who won't take time to subscribe to a magazine will often pick up a brief one for perusal between buses. The articles are mainly contributed by the inmates, so that issues concerning themselves come, so to speak, straight from the horses' mouths. I have yet to detect a whine in the several volumes of Transition that I have read. There are no complaints of "they done me wrong," but clear-thinking articles by those men who are undoubtedly in a better position to see the whole issue than those of us on the outside who are inclined to deaden our sensibilities to what we too often consider a painful subject—articles dealing with such social reforms as a lucid solution to the drug problem, the abolition of those punishments which tend to turn a minor criminal into an habitual and embittered lawbreaker; and the rehabilitation of parolees and those whose sentences terminate as they return to an indifferent world unwilling to proffer acceptance.

We are not strangers, in this community that is a sort of melting-pot of types and nationalities, to boys who have served a sentence in one of Canada's penal institutes; nor am I embarking on a crusade for penal reform. But I have a firm conviction that the inmates of all prisons are entitled to a broader audience in an effort to obtain fuller understanding of the problems that shouldn't be quite as insoluble as they appear in what is considered an enlightened society. And the voice of Transition and other voices like it should be more widely broadcast.

PORT ORCHARD, Wash. (AP)—Port Orchard will host the northwest district Little League baseball tournament, Dr. A. A. Esslinger of Eugene, Ore., regional director, notified officials here Friday.

$50,000 Damage In School Fire

Defective Wiring Believed Cause Of Blaze at Milnes Landing

An estimated $50,000 damage resulted from a fire at Milnes Landing High School near Sooke Friday.

Roof and one wall of a two-room section used for home economics and industrial arts classes was damaged. But Sooke volunteer firemen and nearby residents carried the school equipment to safety.

The blaze was thought to have started from defective wiring in a fan or blower. The alarm was turned in at 1 p.m. by school board employee Jack Zelanko. It was an hour later before the danger was passed.

A. F. Brownsey, postmaster here, was elected in Penticton to his 10th consecutive term as secretary of the B.C. Postmasters' Association.

Have Sea Lions Any Use? Scientist to Seek Answer

NANAIMO—An answer to the question of whether or not sea lions justify their existence will be sought by two Pacific Biological Station scientists, Gordon Pike and Brian Maxwell.

Commercial fishermen claim they have no commercial value, eat salmon, halibut, and other fish, and damage nets and gear. It is believed, though, that fur farms may become a market for their meat, to be used as mink food.

"It may take years of study and research to determine whether these big animals should be reduced to a controlled minimum or allowed to live and breed as they please," the biological station has reported.

Sea lions are hunted annually by fisheries officers, and thousands have been killed. Male sea lions reach a maximum length of 13 feet, and weigh close to 1,000 pounds.

Fined $100, Suspended

NANAIMO (CP)—Alexander Klyne of Nelson was fined $100 and costs here and his licence suspended for three months when he pleaded guilty to driving in a criminally negligent manner.

Police said Klyne was clocked at 100 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone between Craig's Crossing and Parksville.

Fred Stewart, Vancouver consulting engineer, is conducting a survey of Nanaimo and will suggest methods of disposal or treatment of sewage. A plan is afoot to make a sewer district here, along the lines of a water district.

Solveig Kristiansen has been named president of the newly-formed youth club, organized here for young people 16 years and over.

The club's purpose is to promote sound, healthy recreation. The club will be self-governing under guidance of the recreation commission.

The volume of Nanaimo bank clearings continues to climb. Total clearings between banks here for June was $6,226,033, comparing with $5,163,496 for the same month in 1955 and $4,488,911 in 1954.

SUMMER SWIM CLASSES START FOR SAANICH TADPOLES AT 'Y' POOL

Tadpoles from Keating and Saanichton plug stairway at YMCA as swim coach Archie McKinnon started new classes this week. He has just finished coaching 1,500 local youngsters and new summer classes will

land, Gail Parker and Michael Munro. Keating and Brentwood PTAs sponsor three-week course, two lessons each week. Chartered buses bring youngsters to town. Program is in its fourth year. There are 50 children in each class. Keating convener is Mrs. A. Bolster; Mrs. A. Marshall is Brentwood PTA convener. They are assisted by Mrs. E. Pearce and Mrs. J. E. Nimmo, respectively.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

Today I offer, free of charge, a brand new idea for the creation of a brand new industry.

The way to start an industry is to find a need which should be filled, and then go about filling the need.

If, for instance, there happened to be a need for safety-pins, and no safety-pins were available, it would be wise and profitable to start a safety-pin industry.

However, I am not suggesting the formation of a safety-pin industry, as there seems to be more safety-pins available than anyone could wish for, except when one really needs one.

This takes care of our discussion of the safety-pin industry (which I am not sure how it got in here in the first place) and brings us to the new industry this country needs so badly.

What this country needs is an industry to mass-produce pre-packaged Utter Confusion.

Surveys prove that more people suffer from normal routines, such as breakfast at breakfast time, sleeping at night and waking during the day, than suffer from the sizes from the Small Economy to the Large Double-Economy.

The trouble with most people today is, life moves in a measured way from minute to minute, hour to hour, and day to day.

Or even week to week.

What people need is a touch of Utter Confusion to brighten their mundane existence.

A forward-looking organization, with a combination of imagination, engineering, and marketing knowledge, could make a fortune selling Utter Confusion, pre-packaged in all sizes from the small Economy to the Large Double-Economy.

Not to mention the Giant Triple-Economy.

As soon as the product is put on the market, it will be snapped up by the more knowledgeable, who realize a routine day can be brightened immensely by even a small shot of Utter Confusion.

It might be necessary to launch an advertising campaign to make Utter Confusion acceptable to all the people, but this could be arranged without much trouble.

The advertising theme, of course, would be along these lines:

"Is your life perfect? Does everything work out the way you wish it to? Do all your plans mature on the button? Are your meals ready on time? Does the bus stop at the bus stop at the same time you stop at the bus stop?"

"In short, are you bored with life's perfection?"

"Then try Utter Confusion, the only pre-packaged product guaranteed to get you out of the rut and into a tizzy."

"Utter Confusion is available either fresh-frozen or canned. Either way, Utter Confusion gives you this warranty: 'If you are ever the same again, you get triple your money back.'"

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Following contracts have been let by the defence production department on Vancouver Island:

Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Ltd., Victoria, $32,356 for the supply of coal to May 31, 1957; New Method Laundries Ltd., Victoria, $32,223 for laundry services from June 1 to May 31, 1957; Nelsons Imperial Laundries Ltd., Nanaimo, $12,000 for laundry services from June 1 to May 31, 1957.

The Tofino lifeboat has been temporarily withdrawn from service due to engine trouble, the department of transport marine agent at Victoria announced today.

Repairs are being carried out at Tofino.

A Victoria Shrine Club beach party was held Friday night at the home of W. Scott Kirkpatrick, Waring Place. More than 275 Victoria Shriners and their wives and friends attended. Club president John White arrived on water skis. Noble and Mrs. Harry Borgensen of Vancouver and Noble and Mrs. Harper Baikie of Courtenay were guests.

Memorial Arena will rock 'n' roll again tonight in second in a summer series of dances for teen agers. Moms and Pops will be admitted to the seated sections free of charge. About 3,000 persons attended the first dance and as many are expected tonight, manager Joe Dukowski says.

Children playing with matches were blamed by Esquimalt police today for a fire which destroyed two partially-demolished houses at 1130 Wychbury Friday.

HMC Dockyard fire department checked the flames to prevent them spreading to an adjoining school.

MONDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Gyros: Monterey Restaurant, luncheon at 12 noon. Larry McCance, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, will be guest speaker.

National Concrete Masonry Association: Empress Hotel, Princess Louise Room, 9.30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY

Holiday Jobs Require Government Permission

Many parents are unaware they must obtain permission from the provincial labor department before children under 15 can take holiday employment in industry, a spokesman for the department said today.

They must complete a form, giving their consent and the employer must fill out another form stating conditions of employment and wages offered.

"We are particularly concerned with the hours of work," the spokesman said. "Generally speaking, we do not permit children under 15 to work after 6 p.m. We also insist they receive a fair wage for what they do."

Where a child under 15 applies to the labor department for permission to work in the holidays, he or she is given two forms—one for the parent or guardian, another for the employer.

Both must be completed and signed and returned to the department before the application is considered.

The spokesman said a number of 14-year-old girls apply for permission to take employment as waitresses during the summer holidays. In such cases the minimum wage for full-time employment is $22 per week.

"We are only concerned with employment in industry," he said. "Children wishing to take agricultural employment apply to the agricultural department."

Children of 15 or over do not need to seek government permission before taking jobs.

RUPERT HERE EN ROUTE TO NEW HOME

Former CNR cruise ship Prince Rupert, now Japanese-owned Prince Maru, is at VMD today for minor repairs before proceeding to Japan. CNR laid ship up year ago, recently sold her to present owners who are undecided whether to scrap 46-year-old veteran of B.C. coast trade.

Long Term Park Plan Proposed in Saanich

Saanich council plans to set up a long-range program for park development and expansion.

First move will be taken by the council parks committee, under the chairmanship of Coun. T. J. O'Neill, which will meet at the Royal Oak municipal hall next Tuesday.

The committee first will discuss a plan to improve the playing facilities of both Reynolds and Hampton Parks, both considered below the standard of similar playing areas in Victoria and Oak Bay.

In addition, the committee will seek the advice of the Capital Region Planning Board on the matter of future park development in the municipality.

Reeve Arthur Ash, who will be attending the committee meeting, said Saanich will have to give serious consideration to the setting aside of areas for parks and the preservation of "green belts" along major roads in the municipality.

He intimated that Saanich will make a larger grant for park development next year.

The reeve noted the municipality's park policy has undergone little change over the past 10 years despite the growth of population.

Council has received a brief from the Little League Baseball, which stated there are not enough baseball fields in Saanich to look after the needs of boys.

The league pointed out that Saanich has done less than Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to develop and maintain its parks.

"Saanich has not done anything to assist in supplying space and has not one adequate ball field within its boundaries, excepting one, which was built by the residents at no cost to the municipality," the brief said.

Bright, breezy Jerry Gosley's "Smile Show" opens at Langham Court Theatre for a five-week run July 19.

Direction this year is in the hands of Arthur Budd, who appears for the first time in Canada as an entertainer. He and Jerry Gosley last appeared together in London's Albert Hall in 1945.

Saanich councillor Ainslie Worthington will officiate at Rainbow Park summer season opening ceremonies next Thursday at 7 p.m. There will be a home-cooking stall, rummage sale, apron stall and children's bing.

Fishing without licences cost two sportsmen $10 apiece in provincial court here Friday.

Fined were Verne House, 4030 Locarno Lane, and Walter E. Smith, 3919 Dawe. House was fishing on Koksilah River and Smith at Shawinigan Lake.

Former Victorian Tom Garside, who was in the construction business here with his late father for several years, has been appointed field construction supervisor for VLA with headquarters in Kelowna.

His mother, Mrs. Edward Garside, lives here at 1650 Davie.

John C. Warren, 1122 Meares, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of supplying liquor to an Indian.

A charge of intoxication laid against the Indian woman was withdrawn.

BEN LAUGHREN SWIM TO HELP JAYCEE FUND

Exhibition swimmer Ben Laughren was due to stroke into the Inner Harbor at about 4 p.m. today after a long haul from Constance bank, seven miles out in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

He hit the water there about noon.

At the arrival point Junior Chamber of Commerce members were scheduled to be on hand, selling tickets at $1 each to boost the Jaycee swim kitty for a mass attempt on the strait late next month.

Tickets give holders a chance to win a 1956 Cadillac in a draw July 13 over radio station CKDA. The car was shown on the Causeway.

Marilyn Here Next Week For Big Swim

Marilyn Bell is to leave Toronto next Thursday for Victoria to attempt to swim the 18-mile Juan de Fuca Strait.

The blonde youngster, the only person to conquer Lake Ontario, will practice here for six weeks before tackling the icy waters.

The Toronto Telegram, Victoria Times and Weekend newspaper magazine have offered Marilyn $20,000 to make the attempt and $30,000 if she succeeds.

She has been practicing for several weeks in Lake Ontario, swimming for several hours under the guidance of her veteran coach, Gus Ryder, who two years ago guided her across Lake Ontario and last summer across the English Channel.

Marilyn's parents, two grandmothers, sister Karen and school friend Maria Brenk will accompany her here.

Open Safes Ransacked

Two unlocked safes at Standard Steam Laundry, 814 View, were ransacked early today by thieves who gained entry through a laundry chute.

An official of the firm said nothing appeared to have been taken. The safes contained company records. No attempt was made to enter a third locked safe.

"It looked as if they were here only a few minutes and were after money," the official said.

WEEKEND PARENTS HAVE EASY JOB

Teachers Need Psychological Aid

By DINAH KERR

A teacher's job is to take "little human animals" and change them into human beings.

And the quick and painless way is through educational psychology, says Dr. Mortimer V. Marshall, dean of education at Acadia University, Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

Dr. Marshall has traveled 3,500 miles to bring this message to teachers at the Summer School of Education here.

As he sees it, "weekend parents" don't know their luck—"Imagine being penned up with 35 children, five days a week."

That, he says, is the reason for a psychology of education.

"Teachers set out to change people—to develop them physically, socially and mentally," Dr. Marshall explains. "There are 200 school days a year and each day students learn a bit more. This adds up to change them greatly from the little animals who first entered."

Since the law states that everybody must go to a teacher, but doesn't make them go to anyone else, "the logical conclusion is that teachers are the most important people in the world."

The reason other professions are paid so much more may be to compensate for the fact their work is not as important," theorizes Dr. Marshall.

A friendly, engaging man, who says his teacher-students here are "very well-behaved," Dr. Marshall made his first trip west for two reasons—to lecture on educational psychology and sociology at the summer school, and to visit his daughter, Mrs. Mary Bishop, and three grandchildren at Patricia Bay. Mrs. Marshall is with him.

The doctor has been dean of education at Acadia University since 1943.

Big Water Festival Planned Next Year

Success of Week-Long Regatta Spurs Action

Success of the combined PCYA-PIYA regatta—largest ever held at Victoria—may lead to a full-scale "waterfront week" next year, patterned along the lines of Seattle's "Sea Fair."

The regatta ended Friday with prize-giving at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and officials said public interest was so great they felt a Sea Fair type of celebration could be promoted here.

Preliminary talks have been held with the Chamber of Commerce, and RVYC members will approach other organizations for support.

The waterfront week would be planned as an additional summer tourist attraction featuring all types of water sports, including sailing and powerboat racing, swimming and a water parade.

The week-long combined regatta here attracted more than 200 boats and over 1,000 yachtsmen.

SEATTLE BIG WINNER

Seattle again lived up to its claim as the yachting capital of the Pacific Northwest as members of the Seattle Yacht Club and Corinthian Yacht Club chalked up wins in 10 out of 14 large boat series races.

Still continuing today are two events run in conjunction with the combined regatta: Dragon class racing for the Duke of Edinburgh trophy, and the Pacific coast eliminations for the North American Junior yachting championship.

YOU SAID TO ME

Many Have Riches—Why Not You?

By ETHEL TULL

You said to me, "Does God really guide you? I should have thought a good God would have given you something better than a little cottage to live in. Many people have riches—why not you?"

I will try to tell you how I feel about this. Every time I open the garden gate and walk down the path to the little house which God has given to us, I feel a welcome coming from it to me. I open the door, and I feel the peace of the living room with its simple furnishings. I never go in without thanking God for the love that gave me a little house to take care of.

Quite close to us—not shut off by large grounds or parks—are other houses, each with its own drama of daily living. There is a new baby next door, and the young father talks to me over the fence as he hangs out the washing for his wife. The lady from the house at the back speaks to me over the fence, too, and is interested in my life and in how our garden is doing, for I am busy trying to get rid of the morning glory which chokes the life out of the other growing things. Some of our neighbors have been fishing, and they share their bounty with us.

A FRIEND, TROUBLED IN MIND AND BODY, comes to stay in the little house, and while she says its peace means a great deal to her, she adds something of her own fine spirit to its atmosphere.

The postman brings letters to the cottage, and they tell of the impact of good lives on other lives. News comes of the great revival going on in the world—of rulers trying to learn to follow the guidance of God and live by the Sermon on the Mount—of the people of many lands coming together in real fellowship because they can, apologize for wrongs done, and fight together for the new world of the spirit.

God has guided us right to this little cottage, and filled our lives with the riches of beauty and love and fellowship, and the wish and will to grow better every day and to be used by Him to help to create the changed world He sees. Riches spring from the heart, not from circumstances.

Maj.-Gen. Foote To Visit Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Henry R. B. Foote, VC, director of the Royal Armored Corps, British army, will visit Canada July 19 to Aug. 2, army headquarters announced Friday.

Five Churches Back Summer School Plan

The second interdenominational Vacation Church School, churches, will be held from July 9-20, 9 a.m. to noon, Mondays through Fridays, for all children between the ages of 4 and 13.

Co-operating churches are St. John's Anglican, the Chinese United, First Baptist, First United and Metropolitan United churches. Mrs. C. W. Gordon of 5651 Patricia Bay Highway is director of the school and is assisted by a staff of 40.

Children will study from co-operative curriculum materials based on "The Bible" as the theme, and will share in worship, stories, projects, handicrafts, music and recreation. Sessions of the Kindergarten Dept. will be held at First United Church under the direction of Mrs. F. Heywood. Primary and junior departments will meet in the Fellowship Hall of St. John's Anglican Church under the direction of Miss Eunice Peters and Rev. E. Laura Butler, respectively. A cordial invitation is extended to any children of the community to attend the school.

A wonderful week of sailing, making new friends and exchanging stories of former races and regattas has been the season's high point for Victoria yachtsmen and visitors here for the PCYA-PIYC regatta, which drew to a close, Friday. Royal Victoria Yacht Club, festooned with a galaxy of colored lights, flying ensigns and canopied tents was the heart of the activity.

A bustle of social activities helped make the regatta an outstanding success. The week began with a giant barbecue at Sidney Spit and dances were held in the clubhouse Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights, with a special junior dance on Wednesday. An open house aboard the yachts took place Wednesday, also. Friday afternoon, His Honor, Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross and Mrs. Ross entertained at a garden party for visiting yachtsmen.

Now it's over . . . and visitors are sailing home with memories of this regatta week, while Victoria yachtsmen put the clubhouse back to order for the remainder of the sailing season.

Practicality, Beauty Seen
In Modern Pottery Trend

By PENNY SAVER

The strikingly modern, blue and grey pottery I found in town is called barbeque ware, but it will adapt itself to any indoor or outdoor eating occasions. It's especially wonderful for entertaining, because these serving pieces seem to be made with a party in mind. A long, metal rack holds a sectioned serving dish that is actually three wells with matching lids. This unit has another attraction, too. Under each well is a candle warmer to ensure that the foods being served are kept piping hot. This handy serving unit costs $8.95.

A deep oval dish with a dividing section, has a double section lid also that works on a type of centre hinge. Serve two different foods in this one dish, and keep them hot by keeping the well-fitted lids on. This dish is $11.95.

Large, substantial coffee cups and saucers are $3.25; divided plates are $4.95, and individual casseroles are $2.95. A gravy or sauce server has a spout at either side, and a small perforated division in front of one so that if you prefer strained gravies you pour it from this side, and if you like the mushrooms or other sauce and gravy jumps pour it from the open side. It has an easily gripped handle, and costs $7.50.

Salt and peppers that are a real handful are about four inches high, and cost $4.95. A large salad bowl is $7.50, and matching salad servers with polished wooden handles and perforated ends are $7.95. Large casseroles with lids are $8.95.

In smooth design, all the fixin's for a cherry nut citrus mold are displayed. It's a cool, smooth, delicious salad.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Fashion Editor Visits Montreal
En Route to New York Showings

By NONA DAMASKE

Here in Montreal... cotton is king at the moment. For many years garment travellers have remarked that we in the west are not cotton-conscious and now I see what they mean. Women here are smartly dressed, but most casual in their gay, crisp, cool summer daytime frocks. Weather is warm... and even late in the evening there is no need for a coat. There are an endless number of smart eating places and interesting spots to dance and here you see cottons again, but glamorized with touches of metallic thread or the sparkle of rhinestones. White is the predominating choice for late day, and of course is particularly becoming to the dark French Canadian Mademoiselle.

I went through many of the downtown shops and found there is a greater choice of merchandise (naturally, due to the large population). But I think our shops at home in Victoria are just as attractive.

Sherbrooke street, as it leaves the main centre of town, is another story. This wide, tree-lined avenue is rapidly becoming Montreal's Fifth Avenue.

The stately old brownstone mansions now offer haute couture for milady who buys exclusive clothing. At 1012 Sherbrooke street I walked up the stairs with great anticipation, as I had an appointment to meet Marie France, with whom I have corresponded since the forming of the Canadian Couturier Group. She gave me a warm welcome and asked me to sit while she completed the fitting of a suit. In rapid French, with much gesticulating, the fitting proceeded as a white miniature French poodle sat haughtily, waiting on a beautifully upholstered settee. The charming shop is called Marie France de Paris. Women from all parts of Canada, the United States and Europe come to have costumes created exclusively for them.

Marie France was born in Paris and modeled for Jacques Fath for many years. She personally modelled several of her own creations for me. She is tall and striking with a warm and vibrant personality. Marie France came to Montreal from France just four years ago, with her eight-year-old son, Jean-Jacques. She employs 14 workers and is so busy she cannot take a holiday. However, next year she hopes to combine business with pleasure by bringing a collection to the west for showing.

This busy designer is now completing a group of 25 garments for an ultra-smart fashion show, which takes place in Marie France, personally modelling an exquisitely-cut suit of imported black and white tweed.

October at Ruby Foo's. For those of you who do not know... Ruby Foo's is a "must see" for every tourist. I had dinner there with friends and found the cuisine excellent.

With my feet protesting somewhat, I walked down to the garment industry district. Here stand the large buildings which house hundreds of manufacturers' garments, whose labels we see every day in our own city. Jack and Harold Gordon conducted me through the premises of Gordon Manufacturing, and the immensity of it all was overwhelming. We started in the attractive sunlit showroom, where I met several of the models. From there we went through several large rooms where hundreds of coats and suits hang... ticketed and ready for shipping.

The factory, with hundreds of employees, the buzz of sewing machines, the whirr of electric cutting knives and conversations in many languages was almost too confusing. Everything is done in assembly line, with each worker performing the same task for eight hours a day. I don't know how they stand the monotony, but I understand the wages are fabulous to immigrants, and their lack of English is no handicap. I visited the office of Auckie Swift and was sorry to find he was in New York, as I wanted to thank him personally for making to order the suit I was wearing. Jonathan Logan, Kay Windsor, Madeline Fauth and hundreds more are all here to see, but my time was growing short, so with my heart in mouth (the traffic in town is really hazardous) I wended my weary way back to the Sheraton-Mount Royal Hotel, where I scanned my New York itinerary, and wondered again at my good fortune.

WHY

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q—"I have a problem which is very embarrassing. My right bust is larger than my left. It does not show when I have a bra on, but is very noticeable when I have on pajamas. I have gotten to the point where I keep my bra on when wearing pajamas. I know it is not my imagination because my girl friends mention it. Please tell me what causes this and if there is any remedy. I am desperate!"

A—Few women have breasts exactly the same size although there is not usually enough difference to be noticeable. I do not know what causes this any more than I know why our faces are not exactly symmetrical. One side is generally a little different from the other.

You may improve the situation by taking exercises which develop the chest muscles on the small side only. For instance, try these two exercises using only the left arm.

2. Stand tall. Raise your left arm up overhead. Bend the left elbow slightly. At the same time clench the left fist hard and turn the elbow in toward the body a little. Hold for a few moments. Relax. Continue.

Q—"I am 17 years old and my bust development is only 30 inches. I am 5 feet 4 and weigh 104 pounds. I have tried exercises but they did not help. Please tell me what to do."

A—Perhaps you did not try the exercises long enough or do them faithfully enough. This usually takes months. Also young women complete their development at different ages. Your bust may yet fill out. One thing you can do is to gain weight. This always shows in the bust and you are underweight. You should gain for the sake of health anyway. Gain at least 10 pounds.

The G.F. had friends coming to dinner. She wanted a desert, that would be a winner. 'Twas a birthday party, and I guess I could say, Barracough is their name... Sally, Neil... Jack & Kay. Jack is the manager of London Life.

And the G.F. and Kay, have been friends all their life. "Enuff raspberries," I said, "I think are red. If you want to pick 'em... well, go ahead. I'll scoot to the store, pick up some ice-cream. A fresh raspberry sundae should cause quite a gleam." So, she went inside and got a big pot. "It looks," she delighted, "we've got quite a lot."

I laced back again, so cozy it feels. On our new lawn couch with the aluminum wheels. I closed my eyes, and soon fell asleep. When all of a sudden I took a great leap. 'Cause I heard her screech, I ran down the lot. She'd flung all the berries out of her pot.

"L.O.O.K." she gasped (couldn't talk, only mutter). I reached in for a berry when it started to flutter. "Don't be silly," I said, "raspberries can't fly." But I parted the canes, and peered in with my eye. I could see right away what had scared her to death. So I stood right there & held my breath. She ventured quite close & peered inside. And there perched on a wire, with eyes staring wide. Was a baby robin on its very first flight.

The mother scolded, fluttered above, noisy with fright. "Oh, I hope," said the G.F., "it isn't hurt." And our friends never knew they ate DUSTY DESERT.

Don't Let Broken Heart
Obscure Proper Viewpoint

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Changes in personality that are pronounced enough to attract attention are a danger signal that should not be ignored.

Q—"I have been going with a young man for two years and, shortly after Christmas, we announced our engagement. Since then, he has changed so that I hardly recognize him as the man I fell in love with. He used to be so cheerful and full of fun. Now he is moody and doesn't want to do anything or go anywhere, but just sits around and says very little. What bothers me most is the way he treats me. He used to want to make love all the time. Now he just gives me a peck when I see him and sometimes, not even that. Naturally, this makes me wonder if he still loves me and if he is regretting that he asked me to marry him. Will he change back to his old self after we are married?"—W. P.

A—It is possible that your fiancé will change back to his old self after you are married but don't count on it. Furthermore, make no plans for the wedding until the situation you are now faced with clears up.

Changes in personality, coming in the space of a few short months, are danger signals that should not be ignored. You owe it to yourself to find out why your fiancé has changed so radically since you and he became engaged.

There may be a physical cause for this change which his doctor can discover if he gives him a physical check-up. More likely, however, the change has been brought on by a psychological cause, such as worry about the responsibilities he will be expected to assume with marriage, or doubts as to whether he loves you enough to want to marry you.

You would be perfectly justified to lay your cards on the table now, telling your fiancé how changed he is, how this has distressed you, and asking him what is bothering him. He may not actually know himself what is causing him to behave as he does and will be unable, as a result, to answer your questions.

However, if he really loves you, he will be willing to try to find the cause of the trouble. Encourage him to talk freely about anything that is bothering him, whether it is his health, money worries, or self-doubts about his feelings, and together you may solve the problem.

A Host of Summer Hints
For the Sun Worshippers

Blondes dehydrate more quickly than brunettes. The fact has been test proven by a famed beautician. Consequently blondes need more skin protection during summer exposure—for nothing contributes so quickly to dehydration as unprotected exposure to sun, wind and water sports. A blonde cannot afford this extra dehydration—so should be lavished with some suntan preparations.

The backs of your legs and your shoulders are particularly sensitive-skin areas, and should be well protected with a film of lotion or oil.

Want to avoid whiteness around the eyes caused by wearing sun glasses? You can do it and still safeguard the delicate skin from a burn by using lotion or oil liberally around the eye area and, for a few minutes each day, relax under the sun, eyes closed.

Summertime is fragrance time. When the temperature rises, fragrance seems, despite the humidity, to give the refreshing feeling of coolness. Of course, the scene must be wisely chosen and light delicate scents are best for warm summer days.

Just before bed, rub a cologne stick lightly over your bed lamp's lighted bulb. You'll enjoy fragrance-filled sleep. Certain very fair and ultra-sensitive skins shouldn't tan at all. However, if such women love the sun, they should use heavy applications of a suntan oil.

Hairy chests on men at the beach may be virile and appealing but even the faintest fuzz on feminine legs or arms is completely unflattering. And there is no excuse for it. Today there is an easy pleasant way to remove unwanted hair for bare-legged beauty—with a safe depilatory cream.

Holiday-travelling by plane? Then you need easy-to-pack, light-to-carry summer cosmetics. And remember, never fill a liquid bottle right to the top... allow space for expansion if your cosmetics do not accompany you into the pressurized plane cabin. Take along a suntan preparation in a plastic squeeze bottle, which can double as a make-up foundation; include perfumed deodorant pads (30 to the jar, discardable as used) or perfumed spray deodorant in a squeeze bottle; and for skin care, you'll need a non-greasy lubricant for night wear, to keep the skin soft, and a liquid cream in a lightweight squeeze bottle, for cool, quick face cleansing; and for make-up, there's waterproof mascara in plastic case and waterproof lipstick.

If you're sensitive about that city pallor... it unmistakably

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Guarding a wooden kitchen cabinet against invasion by a curious baby may be important, if there are nonedibles or breakables inside. Do it with a hinged hasp and a snap catch. Metal cabinets need a light chain and a snap catch.

You can't be well-dressed if your make-up's overdue. Put a good, strong light in your bathroom or at your make-up table and don't coddle yourself with frilly shades or pink lights. You want the truth when you reach for the powder box.

Do you possess an overstuffed handbag? Maybe it's time for reorganization. Do you really need everything in it? You'll be surprised at the amount of overweight you're toting.

Candlelit Setting for Wedding Of Susan Harrison, John Betts

Tall lighted tapers shed a soft glow upon baskets of white and pink gladioli, creating a lovely setting in First United Church for the Friday evening wedding of Miss Susan Joan Harrison and Mr. John Ashby Betts, Jr.

Dr. R. McElroy Thompson conducted the ceremony for the daughter of Mrs. M. Stewart Harrison, 1885 Oak Bay avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ashby Betts, Sr., 971 Nicholson street. Traditional wedding music was played by G. Peaker and soloist, John Dunbar, sang "Till We Meet Again."

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Gordon F. Boyd, the charming bride was a picture in her gown of white slipper satin, designed on princess lines, the sweeping hooped skirt extending to a train and the fitted sleeves having lily points over her hands. Soft folds of satin formed a V-neckline. Her headpiece was a crown of white satin delicately covered with seed pearls and rhinestones, holding a veil of illusion net which misted to fingertip length. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of deep red roses and gardenias with stephanotis.

A quartet of attendants were gowned in iridescent aquamarine taffeta in ballerina length. Gowns were styled with short sleeves, V-necklines and full, flaring skirts. Their head-dresses, of matching material, were figure eight shape, and they wore strands of pearls and carried crescent bouquets of yellow marguerites. Mrs. June Boyd was matron of honor and Mrs. Patricia E. Isaac, Mrs. Joan V. Guest and Mrs. Donna Thompson were bridesmaids.

Best man was FO James E. Isaac and ushers were Robert E. Duggan, Arthur D. Dawe, John L. Thompson and Gerald R. Guest.

FO Isaac proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the Olde England Inn. The young newlyweds cut a three-tier wedding cake topped with a small colonial bouquet of pink roses and encircled at the base by pink tulle. Candelabra flanked the cake and tall baskets of white and pink gladioli were placed at the fireplace.

Mother of the bride wore a dress of silver orchid brocade with draped back lined with imported French tulle of complementary orchid hue. She wore matching and soft pink accessories.

Her corsage was deep rose carnations. Mother of the groom chose a dress of champagne satin topped with lace. She had matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses and stephanotis.

Mr. and Mrs. Betts will live at 2100 Cadboro Bay Road.

Honeymoon in Alberta For Couple Wed Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Douglas Speirs are motoring to Calgary and the United States, following their double-ring wedding ceremony in St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, Friday evening.

Rev. J. A. Roberts sanctified the vows of Beverly Ellen Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Sweeney, 951 Craigflower road, and her groom, son of Capt. and Mrs. Alexander Speirs, 471 Nelson street.

Gowned in waltz-length French lace and nylon tulle over satin, the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Her bridal gown was styled with lace decollete neckline, edged with tiny seed pearls.

Her bouffant skirt of tulle over satin billowed from a lace panel. The ensemble was complemented with a coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones holding a scalloped fingertip veil of illusion net, and the bridal bouquet of American Beauty roses and feathered white carnations.

Matron of honor, Mrs. B. I. Sweeney, sister-in-law of the bride, and bridesmaid, Mrs. G. L. Braithwaite, chose identical ballerina gowns of spun silk in hyacinth blue and apple green respectively.

They carried cascade bouquets of yellow gladioli and feathered white carnations, which matched tones in their floral bandeaux.

Miss Sandra Post was a charming flowergirl in her turquoise nylon frock with full tiered skirt. She carried a basket of marguerites and yellow carnations.

Best man was PO Richard Carter, RCN, brother-in-law of the groom, and ushers, Bryan Sweeney, brother of the bride, and Tony Bishop.

W. C. Ozard proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake set in pink tulle and flanked by silver vases of pink and white carnations.

Miss Ulah Jacobson and Miss Eileen Styan presided at the urns.

For the honeymoon trip, Mrs. Speirs donned a brocade dress of pink and silver-grey, styled on princess lines, and a powder blue duster with white accessories. Her corsage was pink roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Speirs will make their home at 1333 Carnes avenue.

FROM MONTREAL FOR MONTH

Mrs. D. F. Slocombe and baby, Linda, arrived with Lieut. Slocombe this week from Montreal to spend a month visiting in Victoria. While here, they are guests of Mrs. Slocombe's mother, Mrs. Alma Wilson, 2260 Oak Bay avenue.

VICTORIANS AT CAPRI

Former Victoria High School Principal H. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, at present vacationing in Europe, are pictured as they toured around the Isle of Capri during their stay there in late June. At present, Mr. and Mrs. Smith are in England. They expect to return to Victoria in August.

VISITORS FROM CALGARY

Mrs. Barry Rose and year-old son, Michael, are visiting in Victoria for two months with Mrs. Rose's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Horsey, 1561 Despard avenue. Lieut. and Mrs. Rose and Michael live in Calgary, Alta.

A Summer Floral Setting For an Afternoon Wedding

A profusion of summer flowers was placed on the altar of St. Aidan's Church this afternoon for the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Evelyn Freda Hawkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hawkins, 1740 Cedar Avenue, and Harry Edwin Mathias, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Mathias, Prince George.

Rev. J. Lyn Clerihue performed the wedding ceremony. Traditional wedding music was played by Miss Marjorie Vaughan, and soloist Mrs. Ross Sturgeon sang "A Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white brocade gown with a sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. She wore a tiny white hat trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms from which misted a chapel length veil. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of yellow roses and white carnations.

Maid of honor, Miss Florence Erwin, and bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Chu, were identically gowned in apple green embroidered taffeta with full skirts with inverted pleats and wide necklines. They wore small white floral hats and carried colonial bouquets of white and yellow marguerites.

Best man was J. McEwan MacIntyre, and ushers were Gordon Hawkins, brother of the bride, and Claire Creassor, brother-in-law of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hawkins and Mr. and Mrs. H. Mathias assisted the wedding couple in receiving their guests at the reception held in the Mount Tolmie CCF hall. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked by tall pink candles and bowls of summer flowers. The toast to the bride was proposed by a family friend, Lloyd Watkins.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip through the United States, the bride wore a honey-beige dressmaker suit with tan and green accessories and a corsage of tea roses. The newlyweds will travel to Cranbrook, where Mr. Mathias will join the staff of the Mt. Baker Junior-Senior High School.

AUGUST WEDDING FORETOLD

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Magrath, 2634 Dufferin avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Verna Lorraine, to FO. Herbert Stanley Moore, younger son of Mr. and Mrs.

A. L. (Dinty) Moore. The wedding will take place Friday, Aug. 10 at 8 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. (Photos by Arlona, Vancouver.)

Joan Hansen, Jack Shields Wed In St. John's Anglican Church

Fair-haired Joan Elina Hansen wore an exquisite bridal gown of nylon tulle and French lace over white satin for her wedding, Friday evening, to well-known Victoria athlete John (Jack) Albert Shields. Her bouffant skirt, panelled with lace and embroidered with iridescent sequins, cascaded into a graceful train and the fitted bodice featured a neckline embroidered with iridescent sequins to match the skirt. A Juliet cap of ruffled tulle and iridescent sequins held her scalloped veil of illusion net and her only jewelry was a strand of pearls with matching earrings, gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of tinted blue gardenias and white stephanotis.

Rev. D. A. Hatfield conducted the ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erik V. Hansen, 1601 Pembroke Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Roy Shields, 1521 Camosun Street.

during the signing of the register, and traditional wedding music was played by T. R. Myers. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

Maid of honor, Miss Betty Cuth; bridesmaid, Mrs. Maureen King, and bridesmaids, Misses Gloria Bennett and Darlene Robertson, were gowned identically in blue organdy daintily patterned in white, the full skirts floating to ballerina length. They wore small matching Juliet caps and carried crescent bouquets of white carnations and blue cornflowers.

Best man was Pete Ash and ushers were Hamish Robertson, Bernie Anderson and Jerry Hansen.

At the reception in the Sir-occo Supper Club, guests were received by mothers of the young couple, Mrs. Hansen wearing a dress of blue lace with shell pink picture hat and corsage of pink feathered carnations, and Mrs. Shields wearing a dress of dusty rose lace with champagne picture hat and corsage of cream feathered carnations.

Toast to the bride was proposed by A. McDermid, and Mr. and Mrs. Shields cut a three-tier wedding cake encircled by soft blue tulle. Blue and white carnations decorated the bridal table.

The bride chose a going away sheath dress of white linen-wool styled with bateau neckline and topped by a pink cashmere coat. She wore a white picture hat, black patent accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

After a honeymoon in the western United States, Mr. and Mrs. Shields will make their home at No. 4 Somi's Apartments, 1159 View Street.

A Quiet Wedding Ceremony In First United Church

In a quiet ceremony held in the vestry of First United Church Friday evening, Miss June Dianne Robertson and Douglas George Grove exchanged vows and wedding rings before Dr. R. McElroy Thompson.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Grove, Balmoral Road, had his brother, Dennis Grove as best man.

The Princess Charlotte Room of the Empress Hotel was chosen for the wedding reception. A two-tier wedding cake in a mist of pink tulle centred the bride's table which was decorated with pink roses, snapdragons and white stocks.

The toast to the bride's happiness was proposed by E. W. Berry.

The newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to be spent motoring to San Francisco. The bride's going-away outfit was a navy blue dressmaker suit with matching accessories, yellow and white straw hat and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Grove will live in the Vanguard Apartments when they return.

Vows Heard In Quiet Ceremony

Dr. McElroy Thompson performed a wedding ceremony in First United Church recently which united in marriage Miss Eleanor Marguerite Kenny and Clifford Cyril Margetish.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Kenny, 1927 Quamichan street, chose for the ceremony a fitted suit of fine wool in wedgwood blue. Her accessories were pink, and her corsage was of pink roses and stephanotis. She was given in marriage by her father, Miss Kay Oliver was maid of honor, and wore a light grey tweed suit in boxy style. She wore pale pink accessories.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Margetish, 1308 Hastings street, had James Milliken as best man.

A small reception party was held in the Cherry Bank Hotel for the immediate family. The newlyweds, after receiving the good wishes of the guests, cut their three-tier wedding cake.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Harrison Hot Springs, the bride topped her wedding suit with a white shortie coat. Mr. and Mrs. Margetish will live in Victoria.

Alaska Offers Holidaymakers New Experience, Lovely Scenery

A few hundred dollars, out-door clothing, a business suit and a car in mechanically perfect condition are all that are required for an Alaska holiday. Shipping and aircraft companies provide regular and rapid service, but constantly growing in popularity is the 1,527-mile drive on the Alaska Highway from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks.

The round trip will cost between $200 and $300 for gas and oil. The road is mostly gravel in Alberta and Yukon Territory, and partly paved in Alaska, and travelers are advised to carry at least two extra tires.

Accommodations along the road are not pretentious but adequate, and meals will cost from $4 to $8 per day. There are numerous campsites, and trailers can be taken along the road.

The actual Alaska Highway ends at Fairbanks, in the heart of the gold dredging country of the Tanana Valley, where sough-dug cabins stand side by side with 11-story apartment blocks.

Golf can be played up to 11 p.m., and a visit to the University of Alaska campus and museum is said to prove well worth while. Population is 35,000, to make Fairbanks Alaska's second largest city.

From Fairbanks another highway leads southwest to Anchorage, largest city of the territory, with a population of 60,000 and the reputation of being the "air crossroads of the world."

It is also a railroad, highway and business centre, and the site of enough swanky hotels, night clubs and cocktail lounges to make the visitor glad he brought his business suit and subdued necktie.

Anchorage overlooks Cook Inlet and the Alaska range to the north, and its airport is a regular stop for one Canadian and four American air lines.

Another 80 miles farther west and 350 miles from Fairbanks is Seward, southern terminus of the Alaska Railway. A road link with Mount McKinley National Park will not be complete until 1957, but the railroad will carry cars from either Fairbanks or Anchorage, and there are hundreds of miles of road in the park. Top attraction, of course, is 20,300-foot Mount McKinley, highest mountain in North America.

Weather is varied in the summer, and visitors should have suits, slacks, sweaters and a warm coat for cool evenings. On the other hand, there are many swimming spots.

Accommodation is no problem, since the major cities have excellent hotels, and there is adequate space at the better-known spots.

Alaska prices, though, can be startling, since nearly everything must be imported at considerable cost from the United States. However, with a moderate amount of care an excellent and different holiday can be enjoyed, and there is no charge for looking at the scenery.

$3,000 Grant Given New Capital Body

B.C. cabinet has approved a grant of $3,000 to the Capital Improvement District Commission which met for the first time Thursday.

The money, first to be allocated to the commission, will be used for advertising, stationery, office supplies, office rental, stenographic services, travelling expenses and other incidentals.

Premier Bennett has intimated that various grants of money will be made to the commission as they are needed.

'DON'T BECOME STATISTIC', BUILDINGS VISITORS TOLD

"Please be careful driving home—don't become a statistic."

That is the advice handed out to visitors to the Legislative Buildings by Commissioner Mort Dundas—and Mr. Dundas has the welfare of the public at heart.

Mr. Dundas presents visitors with a small white card on which is printed the message:

"It has been a pleasure meeting you. Please be careful driving home. Do not become a statistic. We would like to see you again."

Mr. Dundas put up the idea to Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Chetwynd who arranged to have the cards printed.

Victoria Brownie Receives 'Fortitude Award Medal'

A Girl Guide "fortitude award medal" has been presented to eight-year-old Brownie, Laureen Main, 3333 Cook, by Victoria Guide Commissioner Mrs. W. H. Midgley.

The award was given because Laureen, though in a plaster cast for 14 months, carried on successful Guide tests. At the age of five she showed symptoms of trouble while walking, and investigation showed she had a bone disease.

Today she walks with scarcely a limp, and is taking up swimming. When she was in a plaster cast, Laureen was two months in Vancouver Crippled Children's Hospital.

Laureen enrolled in the Brownies a year and a half ago. "We are proud of the matter-of-fact manner in which she took her illness," said her mother, Mrs. L. D. Main. "She was really a peachy patient."

Laureen is a grade four pupil at Cloverdale school.

Housing Color Bar Probed in Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's first hearing under the Ontario Fair Accommodation Practices Act opened Friday as Sidney Forbes, Negro father of two children, testified that he was refused an apartment solely because he is colored.

Forbes, 36, claiming discrimination, testified that S. L. Shields of Shields Investments refused last May to rent an apartment to him after he had made a deposit on it.

Shields, who did not appear at the hearing before Judge Douglas Thomas, contended through his counsel, G. R. Dryden, that the act does not apply in such cases because it refers to discrimination involving places "anywhere the public is customarily admitted."

Forbes said he traced Shields' business address, then went to see him. "I told him I certainly didn't appreciate the situation one bit, and asked him again if there was any reason for not renting to me."

Forbes said he then asked if there were any other apartments available and was told there were, but they rented for $115 a month.

"I said I would take one, but after five seconds Mr. Shields replied that they were all taken."

The hearing is continuing.

The problem: White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in four moves.
Clue: Seized with a fit of generosity, White gives away two men on his first move.

EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT
Does this circle of circles appear to be rolling toward the right or left? You may have difficulty deciding for it is a puzzling optical illusion.
By the way, guess how many small circles are contained in the large one—would you say the answer is closer to 25, 40, 60, 90?
After you've guessed, check with the answer given below. You'll find it a lot easier than counting them.

SHOE TIP
What can you do with your shoes when you wear them out?

Enjoy the delicious flavour anytime anywhere while the pleasant chewing gives you a lift!

Enjoy chewing Wrigley's Spearmint every day!

THIS ONE'S ON THE HOUSE
Seven business men, whom we'll call A, B, C, D, E, F and G for short all are luncheon patrons of a certain restaurant. A eats there daily, B every second day, C every third day, and so on to G, who eats there once a week.
The restaurant owner, noting their set habits in this respect, told each of the seven that he would give them all a free meal on the first day thereafter that all of them are together—they, of course, were to continue their visits in accordance with their previous habits.
At first, this sounded like a very generous proposal. But the men soon realized how long it would be before they enjoyed the free meal. Can you figure it out? (At least take a guess before checking the answer below.)

COMPANION PERPLEXITY AT HOME
"Just a week ago my wife called to say our cat had quadruplets. Today she phones to tell me the cat now has triplets." "You're out of your mind," said the mystified listener. "She can't have triplets a week after she's had quadruplets." "But she has," insisted the first speaker.
Can you explain the mystery? There is a simple explanation for it.

WHOPPING PERPLEXITY AT SEA
The combined weight of three whopping fish caught at sea was 600 pounds.
Fish A weighed half as much again as Fish B, while the weight of Fish C was equal to one-half the combined weights of A and B.
On the other hand, the combined weights of B and C were exactly 50 per cent more than the number of pounds that Fish A weighed.
What was the weight of each?

Marshal States Arson Definite In Langford Fire

RCMP and provincial fire marshal's investigators today continued their probe of two Victoria area fires, one of which they described as "definitely arson."

David Cumming, fire marshal's investigator, said a Monday night fire at the home of William Heel, 1211 Goldstream, Langford, was deliberately set. Kindling wood and parts of a mop were found beside the house after the blaze was extinguished. Damage was estimated at $100.

Reports of a darkened car crashing from the Atom Lumber Co. sawmill Thursday moments before the mill burst into flames are also being investigated. Arson is suspected in the $30,000 blaze.

'Want to Choose Our Own Panties' Cry Bloomer-Hating Army Girls

LONDON (AP)—Dame Irene Ward said today that she is going to uphold efforts of British army girls to escape wearing government issued panties.

"When it comes to undies," said Dame Irene, a Conservative member of Parliament,

"women like to choose their own."

She said she would bring up the matter in the House of Commons next Wednesday by asking the minister of defence, Sir Walter Monckton, to give the army lassies a stipulated panty allowance.

"With that money," said Dame

Irene, "they can buy their own and not have to wear those horrors presently supplied by the Women's Royal Army Corps."

"We sympathize," said a treasury spokesman, "but we are afraid they'll have to keep on wearing regular issue. Sorry."

Said a WRAC spokesman: "The girls get an issue of three pairs of khaki knickers (bloomers) with elastic at the waist and at the legs, three pairs of very short white panties and three bras."

A WRAC girl expressed her opinion:

"Those khaki bloomers are so long that they would show beneath our skirts—if we wore them. Not one girl in 50 wears them. We buy our own."

Asked about the bras, she sneered:

"We could fasten them over our buttocks."

Baby Kidnapping Brings Arrests

No Ransom Paid As Parents Wait For Call on Five-Week-Old Son

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Two men were held in police custody today as detectives pushed their search for five-week-old Peter Weinberger who was kidnapped from his carriage Wednesday.

Police were close-mouthed about the two men except to say they were picked up Friday night, questioned during the night and were kept in custody.

A police department spokesman quoted Chief of Detectives Stuyvesant Pinnell as saying the two "had no direct connection with the kidnapping."

It was reported, however, that one of the men telephoned the parents of the missing child and presumably the call was traced. The second man was reported to have been loitering near the Weinberger home.

Police said definitely no ransom money has exchanged hands. Peter's distraught parents awaited another call from their baby's kidnapper.

A man phoned Friday from a New York city pay station to assure the father, wholesale drug salesman Morris Weinberger, that the baby is alive and well and to up the ransom price from $2,000 to $5,000.

"I am ready to meet your demands... am waiting your call," Weinberger told the kidnapper in a pre-arranged message carried by newspapers and a night television news show.

Weinberger said he was convinced that the caller was the kidnapper who snatched the boy from his carriage on the patio of the Weinberger home in this fashionable suburb July 4.

But police cautioned against over-optimism and said it was "probable" that the baby was still alive.

$20,000 Swim Prizes Offered By Brewery

TORONTO (CP)—Brading's Brewery Ltd. said today that it would pay $20,000 to the first three finishers of an annual 32-mile Lake Ontario swim, but added that someone else would have to be found to sponsor the marathon.

25 CENTS MORE FOR HAIRCUT

Haircuts in Victoria will be increased in price Monday from $1.00 to $1.25.

Secretary of the barbers' union, W. J. Singer, announced the increase today. He said cost of children's haircuts will remain unchanged at 75 cents except on Saturday when the $1.25 charge will be general.

Cyclist 'Fair' After Collision At Bay, Blanchard

Condition of a 68-year-old cyclist in collision with a car at Bay and Blanchard at 5 p.m. Friday was described as "fair" by hospital officials today.

Reginald F. Minnemann, 2926 Fifth, suffered concussion and head and shoulder lacerations in the mishap.

Police identified the driver of the car as Roderick J. Graff. Minnemann was taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

In a second traffic accident Friday, four-year-old Wayne Saby, 1034 Burdett, was treated and released from St. Joseph's after he was struck by a car.

Police said the boy suffered mostly from shock when he ran out in front of a parked car and was hit by a car driven by Harold L. Shidler of Quebec.

The accident occurred in the 1000-block Cook.

Girl 'Much Improved'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Jean Margetts, the 18-year-old Sunnyvale, Calif., girl who was pinned for nine days under a wrecked car in which her fiancé was killed, was reported today "much improved" and "more lucid."

Queen Visit 'Sure'

St. Laurent Is Confident

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent intimated today that Queen Elizabeth is almost certain to accept an invitation to open the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1959.

He said also on his arrival from the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London that he would like to see the next meeting in Ottawa.

Arriving at nearby Uplands airport aboard the RCAF C-5, he said he had an audience with the Queen during his first day in London and expressed to her the hope that she would be able to inaugurate the seaway.

"She was certainly interested," Mr. St. Laurent said when asked whether the Queen had indicated whether she would accept the invitation.

The prime minister said that later, during a dinner party, the Duke of Edinburgh assured him that it would have to be "something pretty serious" to interfere with the Queen's intention to officiate at the seaway opening ceremonies.

DISCUSSIONS 'FRUITFUL'

Touching on the conference itself, he said the discussions were "fruitful" and that he would like to see the next meeting in the Canadian capital.

But he emphasized that no decision has been taken on the date or site for the next conference. He recalled that there had been a Commonwealth conference in Ottawa in 1932 and that prime ministers of other countries might feel that before a second one was held here, the site should be in some other country.

The prime minister was asked to comment on the speakership problem in the Commons but said he could say nothing until he had been fully apprised of the situation. A cabinet meeting has been set for 3 p.m. EDT today.

Among those greeting Mr. St. Laurent at the airport was Rene Jutra, Liberal member of the Commons for Provencher, who has been mentioned as a possible successor to Speaker Rene Beaudin.

Mr. Beaudin announced his resignation as Speaker this week after opposition criticism that he was not impartial in his rulings.

Boat Wrecked On Island, One Killed

VANCOUVER (CP)—One man is dead and another is believed missing from a United States fishboat found stranded on a reef off the west coast of Vancouver Island today.

The boat was tentatively identified as the U.S. Fishpacker Laverne.

A lifeboat was at the scene searching for the second man, the RCAF search and rescue centre here said.

THERMOMETER DUE TO REACH 'HIGH 70s'

Weather will be "sunny and warm" for the next few days, weatherman William Mackie said today.

Hay crops and sun bathers both should benefit, he said. In sheltered areas the thermometer is expected to reach the "high 70s," Mr. Mackie said.

Elsewhere afternoon sea breezes will keep temperatures moderate.

Prosecutor Raps Newspaper Stories; Won't Take Plea

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Prosecutor Stewart McMorran this morning refused to hear a plea from a former jockey charged with an extortion plot and asked that the man be remanded to Thursday.

McMorran refused to take plea from 28-year-old Calvin Ray Eustace of Dartmouth, N.S., and Torbay, Nfld., because of publicity Vancouver papers had given the case today.

"In view of the press reports," McMorran said, "I wouldn't consider taking a plea from this man until he has been given an opportunity to understand his position."

McMorran said stories in the newspapers today "had the effect of trying and convicting" Eustace.

Eustace is charged with attempting a plot against wealthy

McMorran argued today that the accused had not received fair treatment from the press.

Accused To Be Shown Papers

He said he would give Eustace copies of the papers after court to enable him to see what has already been said about him.

Ball of $10,000 was set for Eustace, who made no application for bail and remains in custody. He appeared before deputy police magistrate Gordon Robson today.

Police said extortion letters and telephone calls had demanded $20,000 as the price to prevent Diamond and members of his family from being slain.

Besides his wife, Mr. Diamond has a brother, Dave, and two teen-aged sons, Gordon and Charles, in Vancouver.

The $20,000 was planted in a decoy package in Stanley Park just prior to the arrest.

Twice before the arrest was made, packages full of blank paper were left at designated spots.

The first time, the package was picked up and the extortionist escaped the police stake-out.

OF INTEREST TO STUDENTS

Animals Around Us New Times Feature

(The Times begins today a new series of articles, "The Animals Around Us," by the distinguished naturalist, Dr. Clifford Carl, director of B.C.'s provincial museum. Dr. Carl will discuss animal life of Vancouver Island. It is recommended that readers—particularly young students—follow this series and make a scrap-book, as they will find the series educational and well worth preserving.)

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL

To the passerby on the street the animal world is populated with sparrows, an occasional gull and perhaps a dog or two. Unless he chooses to wander through a city park or step outside the thickly settled areas that is about all he will see.

Those who have an "eye for nature" will see more; a mosquito hawk swooping across the evening sky momentarily framed overhead by buildings, a colony of plant lice on a boulevard tree, or a ground beetle squashed on the pavement by an unsympathetic or careless pedestrian.

Actually a great many animals live close to man within a city but only a few of these come to public attention. Some are not seen because they are active mainly at night; some remain under cover at all times and are consequently passed by unnoticed; many are small or otherwise inconspicuous and so escape the attention of all but the keenest observers. Perhaps this is just as well; if the average city dweller were aware of all the "creepers and crawlers" that share space with him he would not rest easy but feel that he must "do something about it."

Just as a matter of record let us list all the animals that are likely to be found or that can be found in the Greater Victoria area.

The list is likely to be a long one since we are in an exceptionally favorable position to see a great many different forms of life, especially if we include our shoreline and bits of uncultivated land round about the city.

VARIED LIST

In the first place geographically we are located about in the centre of the temperate region so that we may see an imals from several climatic zones. Not only do we have those species whose centre of abundance is in this particular area but we also have species which originate in the south and in the north, those forms that are at the extreme edge of their normal range.

The California house finch and the alligator lizard are good examples of animals near the northern limit of their range on the coast, while the halibut and Alaska hermit thrush are special on the southern edge of their usual area.

In the Victoria region we have these as well as other animals that are just able to tolerate our relatively mild climate.

Practically within a stone's throw we have high mountains, dense forest, open meadows, swamps, a rich seashore, and cold deep water abounding in food materials, all of which support a tremendously varied group of animal species. In addition to all this we are fortunate in being more or less on the Pacific flyway so that we can also see a great variety of birds on migration as well as the usual resident species.

Few cities in the world can offer such diversity of wildlife as residents.

Where else would you stand a good chance of seeing representatives of every major group in the animal kingdom?

But let's proceed with our inventory. Under the term "animal" we will include all living creatures that are not plants.

This embraces an uncounted multitude of small forms such as worms, spiders, insects that live on land, crabs, jellyfish, molluscs that are found in the sea and the more familiar higher forms such as fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds and mammals.

It should also take in microscopic forms, with bodies so tiny that the unaided eye cannot make out the details.

EXPERTS HAVE TROUBLES

Confronted with such a mass of living things in endless variety of form the average person is bewildered and lost before he can even attempt to name or identify the common species. He need not feel embarrassed at being in such a dilemma; even experts in naming animals have troubles and seldom it is that two will agree on the exact classification of some of our best known forms.

It is obvious though that some system must be devised to make it possible to classify and to name all the members of the animal kingdom which now numbers something over one million.

The system devised many years ago by Carolus Linnaeus has proved very satisfactory and is now used by all nations. In its finer details it may be a bit involved but we will concern ourselves only with the major divisions.

DIVIDE ANIMALS

These are called phyla and serve to divide the members of the animal kingdom into compartments according to their fundamental body plan. If we ignore a few of the non-conformists among animals, those that "puzzle the experts," we can conveniently pigeon-hole all our local species among 13 major divisions or phyla as follows:

1. Single cells—all of small size.
2. Sponges.
3. Coelenterates—sea anemones, hydroids, jellyfish.
4. Ctenophores—comb-jellies, cats-eyes.
5. Flatworms.

GYRO GOLF CARNIVAL BARKS UP RIGHT TREE

Gyro Club carnival at Central Junior High today really went to the dogs.

At a 2 p.m. mutt show, prizes were awarded for dogs with the longest tail, shortest tail, eating ability and various other esoteric classes.

At 4 p.m. a puppet show was slated for the children, all of whom were to get free balloons.

Main event today will be a draw this evening for a 1956 model car.

Friday, Colin Lamont, 976 Wilmer, won $15 for coming closest to the hole in the hole-in-one contest.

Other winners were H. Leachman, 880 Craigflower, who won $10, and Rod Preivett, 2854 Doncaster, who netted $5.

Police Get the Bird

PITTSBURGH (AP)—County

police were crowing about the capture of a culprit responsible for a recent series of thefts from the bathhouses at South Park.

Police Friday baited a trap with bread crumbs and caught a surprisingly tame crow. Police said that as of now the crow is a jailbird.

dummy package, the extortionist wrote:

"I will get you sooner or later. When you are least expecting it... start sweating and praying."

Mr. Diamond, named "Vancouver citizen of the year" in 1955 told reporters:

"I wish I'd had one minute alone with him. I'm glad it's over but I wish I'd had one minute. I was terribly concerned... about the threat involved to my family."

Threatening telephone calls were received by Mr. Diamond at his Pacific Meat plant, at his home and at Lansdowne Park race track where his horses are running.

From the first, a police guard was kept on the Diamond family and he practiced with a revolver. Diamond is a crack shot.

Mr. Diamond told reporters he had never met the man "in business or socially."

"I suggested he take $2,000 and forget the whole thing. He said something about 'the boys might not like that.' Finally we agreed on $5,000."

After two false plants, however, Mr. Diamond said the man on the telephone called the arrangement off and the price went back up to $20,000.

Mr. Diamond was in Victoria two weeks ago to help promote a benefit Pacific Coast League baseball game here in aid of the Conquer Cancer Fund.

Mr. Diamond came to Canada in 1924 as a penniless Polish immigrant boy and worked his way up to ownership of one of the largest meat-packing plants on the west coast.

"I will get you sooner or later. When you are least expecting it... start sweating and praying."

Mr. Diamond, named "Vancouver citizen of the year" in 1955 told reporters:

"I wish I'd had one minute alone with him. I'm glad it's over but I wish I'd had one minute. I was terribly concerned... about the threat involved to my family."

Threatening telephone calls were received by Mr. Diamond at his Pacific Meat plant, at his home and at Lansdowne Park race track where his horses are running.

From the first, a police guard was kept on the Diamond family and he practiced with a revolver. Diamond is a crack shot.

Mr. Diamond told reporters he had never met the man "in business or socially."

"I suggested he take $2,000 and forget the whole thing. He said something about 'the boys might not like that.' Finally we agreed on $5,000."

After two false plants, however, Mr. Diamond said the man on the telephone called the arrangement off and the price went back up to $20,000.

Self-Styled Underworld King Brazenly Recounts Many Crimes

BOSS OF BRITAIN'S UNDERWORLD, by Billy Hill, British Book Service (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, 231 pages; $3.75.

If you can believe half said by the boastful author who is a self-confessed master thief and quite conceivably an efficient liar, "Boss of Britain's Underworld" is the most revealing book to have been written in England in a decade.

Hill awards himself the title of underworld boss and then brazenly writes of his exploits to substantiate his claim. He tells his readers he has more finesse than Al Capone ever had and that gangs organized by Hill made Capone's henchmen look crude and amateurish.

BRIBERY, CORRUPTION

A great part of the book could be taken as an expose, for Hill shatters cherished illusions of the much-lauded British justice and fair play. He doesn't criticize the courts particularly but otherwise corruption and bribery run as rife in England as in any other country.

According to Hill, there is little fair play in jail. He speaks of prison guards in some prisons as "sadistic screws."

"Hardly a day passed," he says, "without some prisoner being beaten up until he was unconscious. It was routine for a bunch of guards to lock the closures. Hill is obviously an exhibitionist and more than likely a liar, but it is incredible that any publisher would print the book unless it were, in the main, fact.

In the meantime Hill more or less intimates that the book is his swan song to a life of crime for which he apparently has no moral scruples, no conscience and no regrets. Like "Pa" and "Ma" who sponsored a family of 21 children in Seven Dials—all of whom were also crooks—Hill plans to retire.

If you are emphasizing the belief that crime doesn't pay it would be better not to show Hill's book to friends.

The self-styled boss of Britain's underworld looks back on his career with the pride of a master planner and operator.

He modestly admits that he has more than a quarter million in cash, a large and prosperous toy factory, several legal London "clubs," mink coats and posh automobiles.

He's meditating on a home on the Riviera.

Primitive Diet Might Inspire Literary Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Want to be a writer? It may involve living on a diet of boiled owl, coyote sinews, crows' eggs, porcupine flesh and dandelion salads, says a well-known Canadian naturalist and author.

Kerry Wood, 48, of Red Deer, Alta., told an Ottawa naturalists' organization that this was his standard fare for the first two years of his writing career. He developed the urge to write at the age of 10, he said. But he didn't really get started until he was 16, when his parents moved away from Red Deer, leaving him $10 to live on until the end of the school term.

He quit school at once, set up housekeeping in an old shack, and wrote. For financial reasons, however, he had to scrape by on a strictly back-to-nature diet.

A Shirt Tale

CAT IN GLOVES, by Denis Delaney, Gryphon Books.

Denis Delaney, author of the new thriller, Cat in Gloves, is the pseudonym of a well-known serious novelist. Anyone would have thought that the Scilly Isles would be the best possible place in which a cloistered University Classical don could relax. So the islands would have been if he hadn't suddenly developed a passion for a gaudy striped beach shirt. Somehow, this shirt gave offence, and made him the target for a stray bullet, and he was pitched immediately into a break-neck adventure.

Mr. Delaney writes with wonderful verve. He has that carefully controlled use of superlatives without which gun running, smuggling, the Secret Service and the film world would find it so difficult to exist.

Thriller addicts will find the mystery is as unusual as the background. Mr. Delaney is a new thriller writer to be noted.

Smuggling On the Coast Of North Wales

ONE WAY ONLY, by L. A. Knight, Gryphon Books (Murray, London).

L. A. Knight's adventurous novels, usually set around the coastal parts of North Wales, are much appreciated for their blend of local character, local scene and perilous events and adventures.

His new novel One Way Only is a gem. The hazardous coast of Pembrokeshire is the setting: vigorous, voluble and great-hearted Pembrokeshire men and women are the characters. The plot is the attempt to smuggle men out of the country who have given their allegiance to foreign powers.

There is plenty of excitement, tense drama and heartache involved. The story builds up to a tremendous climax when the enemy being determined to use violence to assure its success—the other side are forced to be even stronger and cleverer and more successful. They are. But many a reader will hold his breath with anxiety before the satisfying ending is reached, and the sun shines once more on that Pembrokeshire coast at the same time as wedding bells are calling its people to celebrate the victory of their men through the wedding of the hero's daughter.

BOOK TALK

Attractive Prizes In New Contests

By JAMES SCOTT.

Sure and it would be presumptuous to suggest that publishers and other like influential folk hang on to every word, but it's the sober truth that in no time at all after we suggested here that it would be a good thing for all publishers to make their literary awards not contingent upon earned royalties, Dr. Lorne Pierce of the Ryerson Press was announcing that from now on the Ryerson Fiction Award will be a straight thousand dollars (no royalty strings attached) and then an additional five hundred on royalties.

That's more like it and Ryerson and Dr. Pierce are to be commended for such a move. Incidentally, the contest ends the first of February in each year and particulars can be obtained by writing to the Ryerson Press, Queen Street West, Toronto.

Now that I've started on the mundane topic of money and writers I might as well carry on. Beta Sigma Phi, for example, has announced that it will continue its award of $1,000 for the best first novel published by a Canadian for the next four years (an award each year for the next four, that is). Last year's money was won by Brian Moore for his Judith Hearns.

WEST COAST WINNER

John Cornish, a Vancouver writer whose first novel, The Provincials, was a bright spot in 1951 will be getting $3,000 from Maclean's Magazine any day now for his novel, Oiga, which that magazine will be publishing in a single issue within the next few months. This is the third such award Maclean's has made since they started their search for good Canadian novels by offering a cash prize for any accepted. Other winners have been W.O. Mitchell and Morley Callaghan.

Speaking of awards, I might mention that the University of Western Ontario's president's medals were won this year by Eva-Lis Wuorio for the best short story of the year; by Ralph Allen for the best article;

ART IN REVIEW

Modern Advertising Proves Contemporary Art Has Appeal

By COLIN GRAHAM

Waxing enthusiastic two weeks ago I wrote considerably more than our editor had space to print. To any reader waiting for me to redeem my promise of the previous week to show that there exists a mass audience for abstract art, I therefore tender an apology for the fact that the editor's paring knife had to be used.

And now as to that mass audience.

Picasso's admirers probably number over a million. In this province an able cubist painter like B. C. Binning (a reproduction of whose "Ships in a Classical Calm" was shown here two weeks ago) has more commissions than he can cope with, while hungry Graham buyers regularly descend on Jack Shadbolt's exhibitions. Yet in terms of the total population it can hardly yet be said that these painters have a mass audience.

Anyone wishing to find out for himself the whereabouts of this audience should first study the design techniques of such leading painters of our time as Picasso, Mondrian and Dufy.

He should then look closely at the advertising designs and page layouts in such leading magazines as Life, Time, Vogue, Fortune, or the New Yorker.

He will discover that about half the advertisements are direct "steals" from the procedures and discoveries of these artists. Not steals in the plagiaristic sense, usually, but in the wholesale taking over of their form principles.

In Vogue perfume ads you will find the elegant line and open spaces of Dufy; in Coco Cola displays Mondrian's famous space-dividing grid work of black lines, while the form and space conventions of Picasso are just about everywhere.

Now virtually everybody must like these advertisements. If they were not appealing you can be sure the advertisers would not spend a cent of their money on them.

My guess is that because readers of these magazines are not told in so many words that they are looking at a species of abstract art they react to what they see with their inhibitions down and an unprejudiced eye.

Take them into a gallery and show them the same thing in purer and deeper form and their judgment becomes clouded. Because it is painting it at once seems formidable, obtruse and perhaps very ugly.

'War Baby' Industry Is Building Business

The concrete products industry is a "war baby," essentially. It was during World War II when building materials were scarce that the industry got its big start. The story of how Gus Marker, former hockey great with the Toronto Maple Leafs, started in business serves to illustrate the point.

Gus intended to build bowling alleys in Kingston. He found he couldn't get the steel he required to erect a building, so he started making concrete blocks, intending to stop when he had enough to build his bowling alleys.

Block are made of cement, water and an aggregate, primarily sand and gravel, cinders, slag, haydite, or other material, depending on the density, color, weight, compressive strength and water absorption qualities of the block the operator wants to produce.

The products are mixed in carefully controlled proportions, fed into a mixer, and released into molds. Then they are vibrated to pack the materials down, and to prevent air spaces forming. They are pressed in the molds, and emerge from the machine on a steel or wooden pallet.

In most plants an operator stands by with an automatic lifting device that picks them up, pallet and all, and places them on a rack.

Then a lift truck picks up a rack at a time, and carries the block into a steam curing room. Steam at high temperatures is released into the room, and ensures a block that won't warp.

Front Walk Expanded Into Patio

A novel treatment of the landscape planting around the modern home illustrated expands the front walk to the dimensions of a paved terrace.

In the centre of the terrace is a small tree, of the flowering crab or hawthorne type which will produce a beautiful display of bloom each spring while never growing so large as to dwarf or hide the house.

Against the walls of the house are broad border plantings of low growing annual flowers. Of these there is a large selection, embracing all floral colors. The color of the flowers should harmonize with the color of the house, preferably in harmonious contrast with the walls above them.

The following are suggested planting combinations:
Against grey walls, (1) pink or red flowers, of lilliput zinnia, celosia, petunias or scarlet salvia, bordered by (2) white alyssum.

Against cream, or buff walls, (1) dark blue-purple flowers of petunia bordered with (2) a dwarf marigold of orange or yellow.

Against white walls, (1) pink flowers obtained with petunias, annual pink, phlox or verbenas, bordered with (2) violet queen alyssum.

There is plenty of opportunity to display personal taste in selecting from the long list of colorful annual flowers which flower quickly from seed sown directly in the garden.

Steel Strike Week Old

Status—Strike is a week old today. No signs of an early break. Federal mediators studying strike issues.

Effects—An estimated 650,000 steelworkers and 50,000 in allied industries idle. Coal industry to feel pinch next Tuesday with captive steel-owned mines closing. Ninety per cent of steelmaking facilities in the U.S. shut down.

Strike front—Token picketing at mill gates. Companies making no attempt to produce or ship steel.

Prices—Some of smaller companies jacking up prices in anticipation of added labor costs once strike settled.

Contract deadlock—Issues remain unchanged. Length of contract and immediate monetary gains chief obstacles.

Car Industry Strike Possible in U.K.

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—A country-wide strike in the automobile industry appeared possible today.

Factory shop stewards here adopted a resolution calling on trade union leaders to sanction a work stoppage to force the government's hand in coping with a slump.

Layoff of 6,000 workers by the giant British Motor Corp. during the last week prompted the emergency mass meeting here of workers' representatives of 15 unions.

REJOIN ALS
MONTREAL (BUP)—The Montreal Alouettes announced last night that eight players who were with the team last year signed new contracts. The players are Herb Trivick, Alex McNichol, Jacques Belec, Bill Bewley, Ray Cies, Alex Fulyok, Juan Sheridan and Bob McLeland.

COAL MINER PRESSURED INTO JAIL

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Coal-miner Rin Rossi, 30, was sentenced here to 20 months in prison for maltreating his wife by making her wear a home-made chastity belt.

The matter was reported to the police by a doctor to whom the woman went when she was pregnant, complaining she could no longer stand the pressure of the belt.

Police Force Replaced

BERLIN (AP)—A West Berlin newspaper says today the entire police force in the Polish city of Poznan has been replaced.

The Independent Telegram—the first newspaper to break the news of last week's abortive uprising in Communist Poland—says the old police force has been "transported to an unknown destination and replaced by outside policemen."

The switch was made, the paper says, because Poznan police had conducted themselves "passively," and had permitted themselves to be disarmed by workers during the bread riots.

Finalists Named In HMGS Venture Speaking Contest

Winners of semi-finals in a bilingual public speaking contest staged by HMGS Venture are listed below.

Second-year senior cadets, winners of the English-speaking class, English language, are Cadets K. Davies, Montreal, and R. L. Rangel, Victoria; French-speaking class, English language, Cadet B. Derblie, Montreal; English-speaking class, French language, Cadets J. E. Green, Farnham, Que., and D. G. Thompson, Vancouver; French-speaking class, French language, Cadets F. First-year junior cadet winners, English-speaking class, English language, are Cadets C. L. McKell, Sutton, Que.; J. M. Truran, Montreal, and J. D. Spalding, Ottawa.

Chief judge was J. Adams, Queen's Printer in HMC Dockyard.

Ceylon PM to U.S.

LONDON (AP)—Ceylon's Premier Solomon Bandaranaike said today the British dominion intends to establish diplomatic relations with Russia and Red China "at an early date."

Bandaranaike, who has been attending the conference of British Commonwealth premiers, said he will be visiting the United States in the fall when he expects to address the coming session of the United Nations General Assembly.

Boston Post Through

BOSTON (AP)—The 125-year-old Boston Post, once a strong voice in New England, discontinued publication Friday night.

Its circulation and advertising lineage dwindling for the last few years and beset with financial troubles in recent weeks, the morning newspaper breathed its last shortly after 8 p.m.—unless someone buys it to keep it alive.

Rosi Earns 'Reputation'

NEW YORK (UP)—At last, 28-year-old Paul Rosi from Italy had a "reputation" today and the promise of a fight with a ranking lightweight because of his upset, unanimous 10-round decision over Joey Lopes of Sacramento, Calif., at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Matchmaker Billy Brown said: "I'll put Rosi back in the garden with Larry Boardman on Aug. 24 or 31." Boardman of Marlborough, Conn., is the fifth-ranked contender.

Balding, hard-hitting Rosi—whom none of the ranking 135-pounders wanted to fight "until he gets a reputation"—had 25-year-old Lopes on his knees at the final bell in their excellent TV-radio scrap.

Halecos Dominate Soccer All-Stars

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Halecos dominate the B.C. all-star soccer team which will meet Russia's Lokomotiv Aug. 11 in an exhibition match at Empire Stadium here.

Five players from the league-leading Halecos of the Pacific Coast League are on the 14-man squad. They are Brian Philley, Doug Greig, Pat Philley and Alex Mackay. Others named were North Shore's Art Hughes, Denny Rogers and Gordie Ion, and St. Andrews' Joe Johnson and Ken Maxwell.

No Overcutting In B.C. Woods Claims Logger

The granting of future forest management licences on the coast should be dealt with on individual merits, O. D. Hallin, vice-president of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., told the Sloan Royal Commission on Forestry Friday afternoon.

"It would be unsound to discontinue the granting of future forest management licences in the Vancouver forest district as has been suggested," Mr. Hallin said.

"However, very careful consideration should be given in respect to allocating further mature crown timber in additional forest management licences."

Mr. Hallin contended that if additional forest management licences are granted on the coast, the licensee should contribute timber in about equal proportion to the crown for larger management licences.

"In all other cases where crown forests are being considered for forest management licences, they should be on a competitive basis."

He maintained that public working circles are essential to supply that part of the forest industry which procures logs from timber sales and the open log market.

NOT OVERCUT
Earlier, Mr. Hallin submitted that neither the coast of British Columbia nor the Vancouver forest district is being overcut. He said the allowable annual cut during the next decade should not be less than 56 billion board feet for the coast as a whole.

He held that the best results in private forestry would be from land held under some form of permanent tenure.

"We maintain that it should be possible for the government to work out a plan in co-operation with individuals or companies to achieve this objective," Mr. Hallin said.

Trading crawled along at one of the slowest paces of the year as only 14,335,000 shares were exchanged.

Biggest gain of the week in industrials went to Confederation Life, up 14 points, although only 137 shares were traded. Eddy Paper added six points while Ford B and International Utilities gained five points. Bank of Nova Scotia moved ahead 4½ points and International Paper four.

Howard Smith was the big loser, dropping 5½ points. Gaspe Copper lost 4½ points on a light turnover in a higher base.

WEEK ON WALL ST.

Chemicals Net Major Gains
By ELMER C. WALKER
NEW YORK (UP)—Industrial stocks in the past week registered their best gain since the week ended Nov. 5, 1955.

Their strength lifted other divisions, with utilities setting a new average high since March of 1931 and rails gaining a fraction. Trading increased to the best level in a month.

Wall Street bought steel stocks in several sessions. They closed the week with gains running to more than 2 points in Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

The steels had been well sold earlier in the year and the market men looked for a good pickup in steel demand when production is resumed. They were a bit wary on Friday, however, after a federal mediator reported both sides of the steel wage controversy still unwilling to get together.

Anticipation of higher earnings for the chemical companies focused attention on that group. Du Pont, the leader, netted a rise of nearly $8 a share for the week. Dow rose nearly $5 and Olin Mathieson $4.

Gains in the utilities ranged to $6 a share in Peoples Gas, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line rose more than $4 and Consolidated Edison more than $2, a wide advance for this issue.

Oil swung forward with gains ranging to nearly $5 a share in Royal Dutch. Wide advances also were noted in Amerasia, Gulf and Warren.

BIG DEMAND
The cements still had a big demand despite the recent rise. The lure of the forthcoming road-building program sent this group up $4 or $5 a share with most of the issues setting new highs.

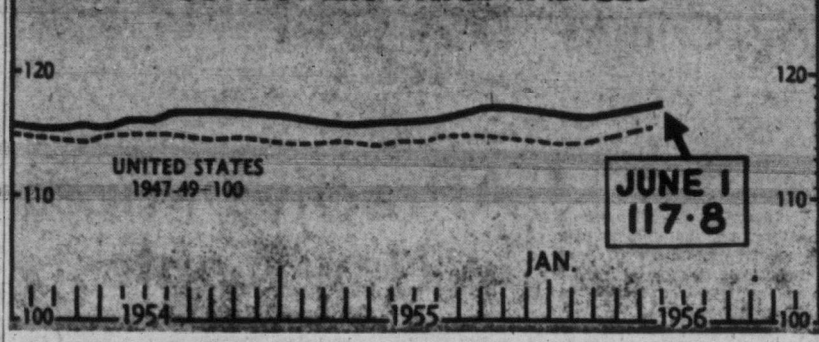

Makers of earth-moving machinery and other road-building equipment companies also enjoyed a good market.

Automobile issues had their day too, although Chrysler lost a gain and closed with a 50-cent decline on the week. Ford featured with a rise of $1.50 a share and General Motors gained $1.

Altracrafts, anticipating a long era of busy plants with big backlogs of civilian and military orders were strong spots on gains running to more than $4 a share in Boeing Airplane which responded to a move to split the stock two for one. General Dynamics and Douglas Aircraft gained more than $3 each.

LONG WATERWAY
The Congo and its tributaries flow throughout the Belgian territory, giving it an 8,000-mile system of navigable streams.

CONSUMER PRICE INDICES

LIVING COSTS RISE—During May living costs made biggest monthly rise in five years, boosting price index by 1.2 points to 117.8. Index, based on 1949 prices, now has reached second highest level in history. The U.S. index (dotted line) in May rose .4 point to 115.4, also an all-time high.

Canadian Market Bright Despite Holidays, Strike

BY RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite two holidays and a United States steel strike, Canadian stock markets this week made a moderate but determined advance.

For the second straight week industrials gained more than seven points on the Toronto index as dealers confidently went on a buying spree.

The Canadian markets were closed Monday for the Dominion Day holiday. Wednesday the New York exchange was closed for Independence Day but the Canadian exchanges advanced despite the lack of U.S. leadership.

The steel strike which began in the U.S. last Saturday midnight so far has had no impact on Canadian stock markets.

A bullish undertone was noted at Toronto where a total of 77 issues touched 1956 highs, best showing in many sessions. Eighty-five stocks reached the year's low prices.

NEW YORK (UP)—Industrial stocks in the past week registered their best gain since the week ended Nov. 5, 1955.

Their strength lifted other divisions, with utilities setting a new average high since March of 1931 and rails gaining a fraction. Trading increased to the best level in a month.

Wall Street bought steel stocks in several sessions. They closed the week with gains running to more than 2 points in Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

The steels had been well sold earlier in the year and the market men looked for a good pickup in steel demand when production is resumed. They were a bit wary on Friday, however, after a federal mediator reported both sides of the steel wage controversy still unwilling to get together.

Anticipation of higher earnings for the chemical companies focused attention on that group. Du Pont, the leader, netted a rise of nearly $8 a share for the week. Dow rose nearly $5 and Olin Mathieson $4.

Gains in the utilities ranged to $6 a share in Peoples Gas, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line rose more than $4 and Consolidated Edison more than $2, a wide advance for this issue.

Oil swung forward with gains ranging to nearly $5 a share in Royal Dutch. Wide advances also were noted in Amerasia, Gulf and Warren.

BIG DEMAND
The cements still had a big demand despite the recent rise. The lure of the forthcoming road-building program sent this group up $4 or $5 a share with most of the issues setting new highs.

Makers of earth-moving machinery and other road-building equipment companies also enjoyed a good market.

Automobile issues had their day too, although Chrysler lost a gain and closed with a 50-cent decline on the week. Ford featured with a rise of $1.50 a share and General Motors gained $1.

Altracrafts, anticipating a long era of busy plants with big backlogs of civilian and military orders were strong spots on gains running to more than $4 a share in Boeing Airplane which responded to a move to split the stock two for one. General Dynamics and Douglas Aircraft gained more than $3 each.

LONG WATERWAY
The Congo and its tributaries flow throughout the Belgian territory, giving it an 8,000-mile system of navigable streams.

metal section. Belcher, with the announcement that Little Long Lac had underwritten 1,000,000 shares, jumped 70 cents in juniors. Temagami lost 60 cents and Lake Shore was off 55 cents.

Western Leaseholds featured western oils, climbing $1.65. McIntyre won 3½ points in a quiet and light-trading gold section. Pronto gained 20 cents in uranium.

WEEK'S FIGURES
Index gains for the week at Toronto: Industrials up 7.23 to 473.06; golds up 1.28 to 86.72; base metals up 1.50 to 239.35; western oils up .65 to 153.44.

At New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up at $185.50.

Week's index changes at Montreal: Banks up 2.43 at 54.67; utilities up 1.8 at 139.2 new high; industrials up 1.5 at 307.6; combined up 1.6 at 251.4; papers up 27.26 at 1626.14 new high; golds up 2.53 at 84.48.

Week's volumes at Montreal: 575,263 industrials and 2,268,339 mines against 846,779 industrials and 3,591,676 mines the previous week. Of 368 issues traded, 128 advanced, 111 declined and 109 were unchanged.

Col. Phillips New Head of Massey-Harris

TORONTO (CP)—Massey-Harris-Ferguson Ltd., worldwide farm-implement firm, got a new head Friday in a move which emphasizes the places in its affairs of Argus Corporation Ltd., investment firm headed by Col. W. Eric Phillips and E. P. Taylor.

James S. Duncan resigned as chairman, president and director, and Col. Phillips succeeded him as chairman and chief executive officer. No appointment was made as president, A. C. Thornbrough, executive vice-president, was made a director.

Col. Phillips and Mr. Taylor, chairman and president, respectively of Argus, have been on the Massey-Harris executive committee since it was formed in 1949, and Col. Phillips has been its chairman since 1950.

HOLDS 1,500,000 SHARES
The last annual report of Argus shows that at Nov. 30 it held 1,500,000 Massey-Harris shares, or 15.8 per cent of the shares issued. Other companies in which Argus holds major interests include British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., Canadian Breweries Ltd., Dominion Stores Ltd., Dominion Tar and Chemical Co. Ltd. and St. Lawrence Corporation Ltd.

Argus is generally regarded as the company through which Mr. Taylor and his associates carry their biggest interests in other companies.

UNDER MEDICAL CARE
Mr. Duncan, who has served the company in many parts of the world for 46 years, has been president since 1941 and chairman and president since 1949.

In announcing his retirement he said he had been under medical care for some months and, while on the way to complete recovery, his medical officers had recommended that he should take things easier.

Col. Phillips, in addition to being chairman of Argus and now chairman of Massey-Harris, is president of Dupont Canada Ltd. and of Fiberglass Canada Ltd. and a director of a number of leading Canadian companies.

Both Mr. Duncan and Col. Phillips are 63.

New Fare Structure Announced By CPA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadian Pacific Airlines Friday announced a new fare structure whereby passengers can fly between Mexico City and New York via Toronto for the same fare as carriers operating directly between Mexico City and New York.

The fares become effective July 18 says Bryan Renwick, CPA vice-president in charge of traffic. Length of stopover in Toronto extends up to one year.

Scattered 'Soft Spots' Show Up in U.S. Economy

NEW YORK (UP)—Banks, business, industries and individuals reported evidence of scattered "soft spots" in the economy at mid-year but they agreed unanimously that there was no cause for alarm.

Many of those people affected by smaller paychecks, unemployment or reduced demand for their products said they expected to regain prosperity equal to 1955 before the year was out.

The softening showed up mostly in the automobile industry, home-building, the sale of farm machinery, and in the slowly rising cost of living that some families were finding difficult to meet.

The steel strike still was too young to be classified as a soft spot but reports indicated it might cost the economy $2,000,000,000 in lost wages and production if it lasted as long as a month.

George Romney, president of American Motors, said fewer than 6,000,000 cars would be sold in 1956. But he said this was mostly due to "substantial overbuying" in 1955. And he predicted this condition would disappear by the latter part of 1956.

John L. McCaffrey, chairman of the board of the International Harvester Co., said retail sales of farm equipment have been slow and accumulated inventories have caused some cutbacks and layoffs. He said farmers were reluctant to buy machinery because of their dissatisfaction with commodity prices, drought conditions in many areas, and uncertainty as to what would come of federal farm legislation.

SUMMER SWIM CLASSES START FOR SAANICH TADPOLES AT 'Y' POOL

Tadpoles from Keating and Saanichton plug stairway at YMCA as swim coach Archie McKinnon started new classes this week. He has just finished coaching 1,500 local youngsters and new summer classes will

land, Gall Parker and Michal Munro. Keating and Brentwood PTAs sponsor three-week course, two lessons each week. Chartered buses bring youngsters to town. Program is in its fourth year. There are 50 children in each class. Keating convener is Mrs. A. Bolster; Mrs. A. Marshall is Brentwood PTA convener. They are assisted by Mrs. E. Pearce and Mrs. J. E. Nimmo, respectively.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

Today I offer, free of charge, a brand new idea for the creation of a brand new industry.

The way to start an industry is to find a need which should be filled, and then get about filling the need.

If, for instance, there happened to be a need for safety-pins, and no safety-pins were available, it would be wise and profitable to start a safety-pin industry.

However, I am not suggesting the formation of a safety-pin industry, as there seems to be more safety-pins available than anyone could wish for, except when one really needs one.

This takes care of our discussion of the safety-pin industry (which I am not sure how it got in here in the first place) and brings us to the new industry this country needs so badly.

What this country needs is an industry to mass-produce pre-packaged Utter Confusion.

Surveys prove that more people suffer from normal routines, such as breakfast at breakfast time, sleeping at night and waking during the day, than suffer from the tete fly or mangolophobia.

The trouble with most people today is, life moves in a measured way from minute to minute, hour to hour, and day to day.

Or even week to week.

What people need is a touch of Utter Confusion to brighten their mundane existence.

A forward-looking organization, with a combination of imagination, engineering, and marketing knowledge, could make a fortune selling Utter Confusion, pre-packaged in all sizes from the Small Economy to the Large Double-Economy.

Not to mention the Giant Triple-Economy.

As soon as the product is put on the market, it will be snapped up by the more knowledgeable, who realize a routine day can be brightened immensely by even a small shot of Utter Confusion.

It might be necessary to launch an advertising campaign to make Utter Confusion acceptable to all the people, but this could be arranged without much trouble.

The advertising theme, of course, would be along these lines:

"Is your life perfect? Does everything work out the way you wish it to? Do all your plans mature on the button? Are your meals ready on time? Does the bus stop at the bus stop at the same time you stop at the bus stop?"

"In short, are you bored with life's perfection?"

"Then try Utter Confusion, the only pre-packaged product guaranteed to get you out of the rut and into a tizzy."

"Utter Confusion is available either fresh-frozen or canned. Either way, Utter Confusion gives you this warranty: If you are ever the same again, you get triple your money back."

Following contracts have been let by the defence production department on Vancouver Island: Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Ltd., Victoria, $32,356 for the supply of coal to May 31, 1957; New Method Laundries Ltd., Victoria, $32,223 for laundry services from June 1 to May 31, 1957; Nelsons Imperial Laundries Ltd., Nanaimo, $12,000 for laundry services from June 1 to May 31, 1957.

The Tofino lifeboat has been temporarily withdrawn from service due to engine trouble, the department of transport marine agent at Victoria announced today. Repairs are being carried out at Tofino.

A Victoria Shrine Club beach party was held Friday night at the home of W. Scott Kirkpatrick, Waring Place. More than 275 Victoria Shriners and their wives and friends attended. Club president John White arrived on water skis. Noble and Mrs. Harry Borgensen of Vancouver and Noble and Mrs. Harper Baikie of Courtenay were guests.

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY

Holiday Jobs Require Government Permission

Many parents are unaware they must obtain permission from the provincial labor department before children under 15 can take holiday employment in industry, a spokesman for the department said today.

They must complete a form, giving their consent and the employer must fill out another form stating conditions of employment and wages offered.

"We are particularly concerned with the hours of work," the spokesman said. "Generally speaking, we do not permit children under 15 to work after 6 p.m. We also insist they receive a fair wage for what they do."

Memorial Arena will rock 'n' roll again tonight in the second of a summer series of dances for teen agers. Mums and Pops will be admitted to the seated sections free of charge. About 3,000 persons attended the first dance and as many are expected tonight, manager Joe Dukowski says.

Children playing with matches were blamed by Esquimalt police today for a fire which destroyed two partially-demolished houses at 1130 Dockyard Friday.

HMC Dockyard fire department checked the flames to prevent them spreading to an adjoining school.

MONDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Gyros: Monterey Restaurant, luncheon at 12 noon. Larry McCance, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, will be guest speaker.

National Concrete Masonry Association: Empress Hotel, Princess Louise Room, 9.30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Dennis Knight, 21, of 135 Quincey, was fined a total of $50 in Colwood court Friday on two traffic violation charges that resulted from a passing wave to a friend.

Knight told police he turned to wave while driving on the Island Highway and then swerved into a telephone pole when a car loomed suddenly in front of him.

He pleaded guilty to careless driving and driving with a learner's licence unaccompanied by an adult.

Bright, breezy Jerry Gosley's "Smile Show" opens at Langham Court Theatre for a five-week run July 19.

Direction this year is in the hands of Arthur Budd, who appears for the first time in Canada as an entertainer. He and Jerry Gosley last appeared together in London's Albert Hall in 1945.

Saanich councillor Ainslie Worthington will officiate at Rainbow Park summer season opening ceremonies next Thursday at 7 p.m. There will be a home-cooking stall, rummage sale, apron stall and children's bingo.

Fishing without licences cost two sportsmen $10 apiece in provincial court here Friday. Fined were Verne Housez, 4030 Locarno Lane, and Walter D. Smith, 3919 Dawe. Housez was fishing on Koksilah River and Smith at Shawnigan Lake.

Former Victorian Tom Garside, who was in the construction business here with his late father for several years, has been appointed field construction supervisor for VLA with headquarters in Kelowna.

His mother, Mrs. Edward Garside, lives here at 1650 Davie.

John C. Warren, 1122 Meares, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of supplying liquor to an Indian.

A charge of intoxication laid against the Indian woman was withdrawn.

Dr. Marshall has traveled 3,500 miles to bring this message to teachers at the Summer School of Education here.

As he sees it, "weekend parents" don't know their luck—imagine being penned up with 35 children, five days a week.

The league pointed out that Saanich has done less than Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt to develop and maintain its parks.

"Saanich has not done anything to assist in supplying space and has not one adequate ball field within its boundaries, excepting one, which was built by the residents at no cost to the municipality," the brief said.

Two unlocked safes at Standard Steam Laundry, 814 View, were ransacked early today by thieves who gained entry through a laundry chute.

An official of the firm said nothing appeared to have been taken. The safes contained company records. No attempt was made to enter a third locked safe.

"It looked as if they were here only a few minutes and were after money," the official said.

Police said the thieves forced the laundry chute door off its hinges. The chute is in the front door.

Long Term Park Plan Proposed in Saanich

Saanich council plans to set up a long-range program for park development and expansion.

First move will be taken by the council parks committee, under the chairmanship of Coun. T. J. O'Neill, which will meet at the Royal Oak municipal hall next Tuesday.

The committee first will discuss a plan to improve the playing facilities of both Reynolds and Hampton Parks, both considered below the standard of similar playing areas in Victoria and Oak Bay.

In addition, the committee will seek the advice of the Capital Region Planning Board on the matter of future park development in the municipality.

Reeve, Arthur Ash, who will be attending the committee meeting, said Saanich will have to give serious consideration to the setting aside of areas for parks and the preservation of "green belts" along major roads in the municipality.

He intimated that Saanich will make a larger grant for park development next year.

The reeve noted the municipality's park policy has undergone little change over the past 10 years despite the growth of population.

Council has received a brief from the Little League Baseball, which stated there are not enough baseball fields in Saanich to look after the needs of boys.

BEN LAUGHREN SWIM TO HELP JAYCEE FUND

Exhibition swimmer Ben Laughren was due to stroke into the Inner Harbor at about 4 p.m. today after a long haul from Constance bank, seven miles out in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

He hit the water there about noon.

At the arrival point Junior Chamber of Commerce members were scheduled to be on hand, selling tickets at $1 each to boost the Jaycee swim kitty for a mass attempt on the strait late next month.

Tickets give holders a chance to win a 1956 Cadillac in a draw July 13 over radio station CKDA. The car was shown on the Causeway.

Marilyn Here On July 15 For Big Swim

Marilyn Bell is to leave Toronto by air on July 15 for Victoria to attempt to swim the 18-mile Juan de Fuca Strait.

The blonde youngster, the only person to conquer Lake Ontario, will practice here for six weeks before tackling the icy waters.

The Toronto Telegram, Victoria Times and Weekend newspaper magazine have offered Marilyn $20,000 to make the attempt and $30,000 if she succeeds.

She has been practicing for several weeks in Lake Ontario, swimming for several hours under the guidance of her veteran coach, Gus Ryder, who two years ago guided her across Lake Ontario and last summer across the English Channel.

Marilyn's parents, two grandmothers, sister Karen and school friend Maria Brenk will accompany her here.

Big Water Festival Planned Next Year

Success of Week-Long Regatta Spurs Action

Success of the combined PCYA-PIYA regatta—largest ever held at Victoria—may lead to a full-scale "waterfront week" next year, patterned along the lines of Seattle's "Sea Fair."

The regatta ended Friday with prize-giving at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, and officials said public interest was so great they felt a Sea Fair type of celebration could be promoted here.

Preliminary talks have been held with the Chamber of Commerce, and RVYC members will approach other organizations for support.

The waterfront week would be planned as an additional summer tourist attraction featuring all types of water sports, including sailing and powerboat racing, swimming and a water parade.

The week-long combined regatta here attracted more than 200 boats and over 1,000 yachtsmen.

SEATTLE BIG WINNER

Seattle again lived up to its claim as the yachting capital of the Pacific Northwest as members of the Seattle Yacht Club and Corinthian Yacht Club chalked up wins in 10 out of 14 large boat series races.

Still continuing today are two events run in conjunction with the combined regatta: Dragon class racing for the Duke of Edinburgh trophy, and the Pacific coast eliminations for the North American Junior yachting championship.

Saanich Earmarks $2,000 for Party

Saanich council will contribute $2,000 toward the municipality's 50th birthday party Sept. 1.

The celebration will be staged at Elk and Beaver lakes.

Council now has $3,100 earmarked for the party. Earlier this week it received a grant of $1,000 from the provincial government especially for the observance, and $100 from Saanich Municipal Employees' Association.

Home Playground Entries Awarded Special Prizes

Three special prizes have been awarded for individual entries in the PTA Council-sponsored backyard playground contest.

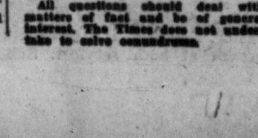

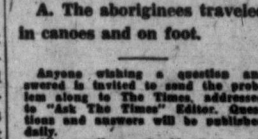

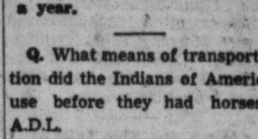

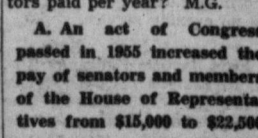

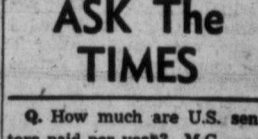

Roger A. Kerr, 1828 Crescent Road, won the first prize Police Benevolent Association Cup.

A B.C. Electric Company shield for second place was awarded Wendy Jean Smith, 1328 Clover, whose playground was classed most practical for family use.

Wayne Rix, 4051 Braefoot Street, was winner of the McLennan & McPeely Cup for the most artistic playground.

Judges were school trustee Walter P. Jeune; G. J. Pynn, department of education; Mrs. A. B. Thompson, president of the PTA Council, and Mrs. J. M. McGee, PTA life-member.

Earlier, it was announced that Cedar Hill School was first-place winner in the interschool contest with the highest percentage of entries from Grades 1 to 4. Spring Ridge had most entries from the kindergarten classes.

Choral Authority Advises City Choir

IVAN HOWELL... 24 years.

Head of the Royal School of Choral Music of London, Gerald Knight, 48, visited here this week and conducted and advised Christ Church Cathedral choir, affiliated group in Victoria.

Mr. Knight is completing a tour of hundreds of choirs connected with the school, in eight Asiatic nations, Australia, New Zealand, Fiji, Hawaii, Canada and the United States.

While here, he presented a medallion to Mr. Ivan Howell, choir member 24 years and recently elected choir president. Mr. Knight, an assistant organist at age 14, helped choose music for Queen Elizabeth's coronation in 1953 and was a choir steward at coronation of King George VI 16 years earlier.

jects will be "The Keystone Commandment" and "The Hands of Jesus." Sacrament of baptism will be administered at the morning service.

First United—Dr. E. J. Thompson, principal of St. Stephen's College, Edmonton, will be guest preacher for the first four Sundays of July. He has chosen two series of sermons, the first dealing with God's love, to be presented in the mornings, and the second, dealing with promises, presence and graciousness of Christ, to be given in the evenings.

Oak Bay United—Sermon subjects by Rev. Dr. A. K. McMinn for morning and evening will be "God's Thoughts Towards Us Concerning Heaven," and "News of the Second Coming of Christ."

Victoria Truth Centre—Guest speaker Dr. W. A. Wicks will preach at both morning and evening services on the subjects "Duality of Faith" and "Gods, Many and Strange."

YOU SAID TO ME

Many Have Riches—Why Not You?

By ETHEL TULL

You said to me, "Does God really guide you? I should have thought a good God would have given you something better than a little cottage to live in. Many people have riches—why not you?"

I will try to tell you how I feel about this. Every time I open the garden gate and walk down the path to the little house which God has given to me, I feel a welcome coming from it to me. I open the door, and I feel the peace of the living room with its simple furnishings. I never go in without thanking God for the love that gave me a little house to take care of.

Quite close to us—not shut off by large grounds or parks—are other houses, each with its own drama of daily living. There is a new baby next door, and the young father talks to me over the fence as he hangs out the washing for his wife. The lady from the house at the back speaks to me over the fence, too, and is interested in my life and in how our garden is doing, for I am busy trying to get rid of the morning glory which chokes the life out of the other growing things. Some of our neighbors have been fishing, and they share their bounty with us.

A FRIEND, TROUBLED IN MIND AND BODY, comes to stay in the little house, and while she says its peace means a great deal to her, she adds something of her own fine spirit to its atmosphere.

The postman brings letters to the cottage, and they tell of the impact of good lives on other lives. News comes of the great revival going on in the world—of rulers trying to learn to follow the guidance of God and live by the Sermon on the Mount—of the people of many lands coming together in real fellowship because they can apologize for wrongs done, and fight together for the new world of the spirit.

God has guided us right to this little cottage, and filled our lives with the riches of beauty and love and fellowship, and the wish and will to grow better every day and to be used by Him to help to create the changed world He sees. Riches spring from the heart, not from circumstances.

VANCOUVER PAPERS RAPPED OVER EXTORTION REPORTS

HOWE MEETS MASSEY, ELECTION COMING SOON?

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says in a dispatch from Ottawa that new speculation that the government is considering dissolving Parliament and calling an election spread today with the disclosure that acting prime minister Howe was in conference Thursday with Governor-General Massey.

The dispatch says Mr. Howe spent about half an hour with Mr. Massey. It is the Governor-General's prerogative to dissolve Parliament at the request of the government.

FINAL BULLETINS

Kamloops Airman, 19, Killed

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—The RCAF today released the name of the student pilot killed when his Harvard training plane crashed and burned, 25 miles south of Moose Jaw, Friday.

He was Flight Cadet Leonard George Poncelet, 19, son of J. Poncelet of Kamloops, B.C.

Labor Party Retains Seat

NEWPORT, Wales (AP)—The Labor party retained its parliamentary seat here today in a by-election with an increased majority over the Conservative candidate.

Conductor Asks Political Asylum

LONDON (AP)—Vojtech Vogel, conductor of the Prague national theatre opera, applied today for political asylum in Britain.

The 34-year-old Czech told reporters on arrival here of his escape after appearing in Communist-controlled East Berlin on May.

Herb Score Replaces Narleski

CHICAGO (AP)—Cleveland southpaw Herb Score today was named to replace his ailing teammate, righthander Ray Narleski, on the American League pitching staff for Tuesday's All-Star game in Washington.

Stan Lopata of Philadelphia Phillies was named today as catching substitute for the injured Del Crandall of Milwaukee on the National League All-Stars.

Pilot Faces Charge in Athens

ATHENS (Reuters)—An Athens court today brought charges against Capt. John Kilmcke, the pilot of a British European Airways plane escorted into Athens last month by two Greek fighters.

A magistrate accused him in absentia of breaking "the law regulating air communications" by flying outside the international air corridor over Greece, an offence punishable by fine.

Ship Taking Water After Crash

ROTTERDAM (AP)—The 6,907-ton Panamanian ship Scotia has collided with an unknown vessel 15 miles southeast of Portland Bill, off the south coast of Britain, Dirkzwagers shipping agency reported today.

The Scotia radioed she was taking water at her bow, adding: "We are holding out, however. We are anchored but will try to proceed under our own steam to a better anchorage."

Michigan Pro Hot In Canadian Golf

MONTREAL (BUP)—Jim Ferree, of Winston-Salem, N.C., shot a third round, one-under-par 71 for a 36-hole total of 222 today to take an early lead in the third round of the $15,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

With only 23 of the 100 starters of the third round in, and none of the leaders past the first nine holes, Ferree's six-over par total was not expected to stand.

The best nine-hole score was turned in by Bob Wylie, Calgary, Alta., who scored a four-under-par 32 on the tough front nine.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, who could only put two par 72 rounds together, was two under par at the turn. However, the hottest man of the early starters was Bill Nary, Wayne, Mich., pro who started

Boat Wrecked On Island, One Killed

VANCOUVER (CP)—One man is dead and another is believed missing from a United States fishboat found stranded on a reef off the west coast of Vancouver Island today.

The boat was tentatively identified as the U.S. Fishpacker Laverne. A lifeboat was at the scene searching for the second man; the RCAF search and rescue centre here said.

'Twas A LONG WAIT

KEEP BAN ON FAGS

No Snuff-Sniffing, Say Smokeless Docs

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters)—A minority of English doctors, struggling through a conference of the British Medical Association here despite a ban on smoking, were granted a "reprieve" Friday night.

The tobacco-starved practitioners, some of them reduced to children's candy cigarettes in lieu of real tobacco, won their reprieve only for the duration of an extended session Friday night. But it climaxed day-long efforts to repeal the ban, on which the majority of doctors agreed Thursday.

They first tried to defeat the restriction only 72 minutes after the start of the conference Friday morning. But the majority of delegates refused to lift the ban which they imposed to publicize the possibility of lung cancer in smoking.

The majority also turned down a heartfelt cry from a delegate who asked permission "to smoke my anti-asthmatic cigarettes prescribed by my National Health Service doctor."

And they sniffed at a desperate delegate who asked: "What is your view on snuff-taking?"

But when the chairman announced the extra session, the majority gave in. Then scores of delegates fumbled happily for their cigarettes.

David Cumming, fire marshal's investigator, said a Monday night fire at the home of William Heal, 1211 Goldstream, Langford, was deliberately set.

Kindling wood and parts of a mop were found beside the house after the blaze was extinguished. Damage was estimated at $100. Reports of a darkened car rushing from the Atom Lumber Co. sawmill Thursday moments before the mill burst into flames are also being investigated. Arson is suspected in the $30,000 blaze.

WITNESSES' STORY TOLD IN WEEKEND

Jehovah's Witnesses—who are they and why do they run into trouble frequently?—are the subject of a feature article in Weekend Magazine in this issue.

Sanctuary Offer To Kidnapper

Mother of Abducted Child Pleads That Baby Be Left in Open Church

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UP)—The mother of kidnapped Peter Weinberger begged churches and synagogues today to remain open around the clock in the hope the kidnapper would leave her baby in one of the sanctuaries.

Protestant, Catholic and Jewish church leaders on Long Island and in New York City agreed to the request of Mrs. Betty Weinberger, whose 32-day-old son was stolen from his carriage July 4 and held for $5,000 ransom.

Police announced that two men picked up late Friday and questioned exhaustively about the kidnapping were released this afternoon. They had been arrested on suspicion of making telephone calls about the case to police, authorities said. They were freed after detectives were unable to obtain any helpful information from them.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent intimated today that Queen Elizabeth is almost certain to accept an invitation to open the St. Lawrence Seaway in 1959.

He said also on his arrival from the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London that he would like to see the next meeting in Ottawa.

Arriving at nearby Uplands airport aboard the RCAF C-5, he said he had an audience with the Queen during his first day in London and expressed to her the hope that she would be able to inaugurate the seaway.

"She was certainly interested," Mr. St. Laurent said when asked whether the Queen had indicated whether she would accept the invitation.

The prime minister said that later, during a dinner party, the Duke of Edinburgh assured him that it would have to be "something pretty serious" to interfere with the Queen's intention to officiate at the seaway opening ceremonies.

Touching on the conference itself, he said the discussions were "fruitful" and that he would like to see the next meeting in the Canadian capital.

But he emphasized that no decision has been taken on the date or site for the next conference. He recalled that there had been a Commonwealth conference in Ottawa in 1932 and that prime ministers of other countries might feel that before a second one was held here, the site should be in some other country.

The prime minister was asked to comment on the speakership problem in the Commons but said he could say nothing until he had been fully apprised of the situation. A cabinet meeting has been set for 3 p.m. today.

Jockey Remanded In Diamond Case

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—Prosecutor Stewart McMorran this morning refused to hear a plea from a former jockey charged with an extortion plot and asked that the man be remanded to Thursday.

McMorran refused to take plea from 28-year-old Calvin Ray Eustace of Dartmouth, N.S., and Torbay, Nfld., because of publicity Vancouver papers had given the case today.

Eustace is charged with attempting a plot against wealthy racehorse owner and sportsman Jack Diamond. Vancouver's "citizen of the year."

"In view of the press reports," McMorran said, "I wouldn't consider taking a plea from this man until he has been given an opportunity to understand his position."

McMorran said stories in the newspapers today "had the effect of trying and convicting" Eustace.

"I am compelled to take the course of requesting an adjournment in this case," Mr. McMorran said, "because the stories in both the Vancouver Herald and the Sun have an effect on the trial of the accused."

"Both stories have the effect of trying and convicting the accused before his appearance in court. I advise the accused to consider his position carefully... the accused might consider if the papers have obstructed the course of justice."

Mr. McMorran said he had not seen the third Vancouver daily, the Province.

He told the court copies of the papers would be given to Eustace and he would be advised free legal aid was available to him.

Commenting on a story in the Herald under the by-line "By Jack Diamond as told to Keith Matthews," the prosecutor said the witness had given his whole story to the paper.

He said a witness should give his story in court.

The story was known to newspapermen for more than a week. It had been withheld while police investigations continued.

"That was no more than their proper responsibility," the prosecutor said. "The publishing of news is not a right but a privilege."

The arrest broke open a week-old secret.

Police arrested the former jockey in Stanley Park Friday night after a package containing $2,000 had been planted to meet the demands of the extortionist.

The arrest came after two abortive attempts were made to trap the person responsible for threatening to trade Diamond's life for amounts up to $20,000 cash.

McMorran argued today that

Animals Around Us New Times Feature

(The Times begins today a new series of articles, "The Animals Around Us," by the distinguished naturalist, Dr. Clifford Carl, director of B.C.'s provincial museum. Dr. Carl will discuss animal life of Vancouver Island. It is recommended that readers—particularly young students—clip this series and make a scrap-book, as they will find the series educational and well worth preserving.)

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL

To the passerby on the street the animal world is populated with sparrows, an occasional gull and perhaps a dog or two. Unless he chooses to wander through a city park or step outside the thickly settled areas that is about all he will see.

Those who have an "eye for nature" will see more; a mosquito hawk swooping across the evening sky momentarily framed overhead by buildings, a colony of plant lice on a boulevard tree, or a ground beetle squashed on the pavement by an unsympathetic or careless pedestrian.

Actually a great many animals live close to man within a city but only a few of these come to public attention. Some are not seen because they are active mainly at night; some remain under cover at all times and are consequently passed by unnoticed; many are small or otherwise inconspicuous and so escape the attention of all but the keenest observers. Perhaps this is just as well; if the average city dweller were aware of all the "creepers and crawlers" that share space with him he would not rest easy but feel that he must "do something about it."

Just as a matter of record let us list all the animals that are likely to be found or that can be found in the Greater Victoria area.

The list is likely to be a long one since we are in an exceptionally favorable position to see a great many different forms of life, especially if we include our shoreline and the bits of uncultivated land round about the city.

In the first place geographically we are located about in the centre of the temperate region so that we may see animals from several climatic zones. Not only do we have those species whose centre of abundance is in this particular area but we also have species which originate in the south and in the north, those forms that are at the extreme edge of their normal range.

The California house finch and the alligator lizard are good examples of animals near the northern limit of their range on the coast, while the halibut and Alaska hermit thrush are special on the southern edge of their usual area.

In the Victoria region we have these as well as other animals that are just able to tolerate our relatively mild climate.

Practically within a stone's throw we have high mountains, dense forest, open meadows, swamps, a rich seashore, and cold deep water abounding in food materials, all of which support a tremendously varied group of animal species. In addition to all this we are fortunate in being more or less on the Pacific flyway so that we can also see a great variety of birds on migration as well as the usual resident species.

Few cities in the world can offer such diversity of wildlife residents.

Where else would you stand a good chance of seeing representatives of every major group in the animal kingdom?

But let's proceed with our inventory. Under the term "animal" we will include all living creatures that are not plants.

This embraces an uncounted multitude of small forms such as worms, spiders, insects that live on land, crabs, jellyfish, molluscs that are found in the sea and the more familiar higher forms such as fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds and mammals.

It should also take in microscopic forms, with bodies so tiny that the unaided eye cannot make out the details.

EXPERTS HAVE TROUBLES

Confronted with such a mass of living things in endless variety of form, the average person is bewildered and lost before he can even attempt to name or identify the common species. He need not feel embarrassed at being in such a dilemma; even experts in naming animals have troubles and seldom it is that two will agree on the exact classification of some of our best known forms.

It is obvious though that some system must be devised to make it possible to classify and to name all the members of the animal kingdom which now numbers something over one million.

The system devised many years ago by Carolus Linnaeus has proved very satisfactory and is now used by all nations. In its finer details it may be a bit involved but we will concern ourselves only with the major divisions.

DIVIDE ANIMALS

These are called phyla and serve to divide the members of the animal kingdom into compartments according to their fundamental body plan. If we ignore a few of the non-conformists among animals, those that "puzzle the experts," we can conveniently pigeon-hole all our local species among 13 major divisions or phyla as follows:

1. Single cells—all of small size.
2. Sponges.
3. Coelenterates—sea anemones, hydroids, jellyfish.

EXTORTION

the accused had not received fair treatment from the press. He said he would give Eustace copies of the papers after court to enable him to see what has already been said about him.

Bail of $10,000 was set for Eustace, who made no application for bail and remains in custody. He appeared before deputy police magistrate Gordon Robson today.

Police said extortion letters and telephone calls had demanded $20,000 as the price to prevent Diamond and members of his family from being slain.

Besides his wife, Mr. Diamond has a brother, Dave, and two teen-aged sons, Gordon and Charles, in Vancouver.

The $20,000 was planted in a decoy package in Stanley Park just prior to the arrest.

Twice before the arrest was made, packages full of blank paper were left at designated spots.

The first time, the package was picked up and the extortionist escaped the police stake-out. The second time, the package was left untouched.

Police Get the Bird

PITTSBURGH (AP)—County

police were crowding about the capture of a culprit responsible for a recent series of thefts from the bathhouses at South Park.

Police Friday baited a trap with breadcrumbs and caught a surprisingly tame crow. Police said that as of now the crow is a jailbird.

dummy package, the extortionist wrote:

"I will get you sooner or later. When you are least expecting it... start sweating and praying."

Mr. Diamond, named "Vancouver citizen of the year" in 1953, told reporters:

"I wish I'd had one minute alone with him. I'm glad it's over but I wish I'd had one minute. I was terribly concerned... about the threat involved to my family."

Threatening telephone calls were received by Mr. Diamond at his Pacific Meat plant, at his home and at Lansdowne Park race track where his horses are running.

ESCAPES WITH DUMMY

Last Saturday he left a package with blank paper treated with indelible dye as police watched from ambush. Somehow the extortionist made off with the package.

Wednesday, another threatening call ordered him to drop the parcel near an old cannery on the west end waterfront. Again the package was a fake but this time nobody claimed it.

It was later the same day Diamond received the second letter stating:

"... all your money won't do you much good when you are dead."

From the first, a police guard was kept on the Diamond family and he practiced with a revolver. Diamond is a crack shot.

Mr. Diamond told reporters he had never met the man "in business or socially."

"I suggested he take $2,000 and forget the whole thing. He said something about 'the boys might not like that.' Finally we agreed on $5,000."

After two false plants, however, Mr. Diamond said the man on the telephone called the arrangement off and the price went back up to $20,000.

Mr. Diamond was in Victoria two weeks ago to help promote a benefit Pacific Coast League baseball game here in aid of the Conquer Cancer Fund.

Mr. Diamond came to Canada in 1924 as a penniless Polish immigrant boy and worked his way up to ownership of one of the largest meat-packing plants on the west coast.

Young folks... with OLDS ideas!

...and more and more of them are discovering that the big Rocket-powered OLDS is well within their reach!

Small wonder more and more young moderns are getting Olds ideas... going for Oldsmobile in such a big way! Can you blame them? For, if you're like most folks, you, too, prefer a prestige car... especially when it's so pleasing to your eye for value.

And when it comes to value, everything about this big Olds beauty says, "Come BUY!"

... a price that fits your budget better than many models of smaller lower-powered cars! ... a resale value so high it traditionally tops the field at trade!

... a reputation for lively performance that's known and envied—everywhere!

Best of all, this Oldsmobile—with its light-hearted looks—is fun to own. And, with its famous Rocket Engine—a thrill to drive. Ask anyone who has felt the full lift and lilt of the Rocket's high compression action... the superb smoothness in answer to a call for power at any speed... delivered by new Jetaway Hydra-Matic*.

Above all, every Oldsmobile is a BIG car... with the riding comfort, superior stability and safety typical of big car design. Yet, it's as light on its feet... as quick to your touch as a sports car.

But why take our word? Come in for a behind-the-wheel trial of a new Oldsmobile. See for yourself how much your present car is worth in trade if you act now! You too, will get Olds ideas... and the price of an Oldsmobile makes it easy for them to come true today! What's more, you'll like the quality-minded way we do business. See us now!

*Standard on Ninety-Eight and optional at extra cost on "Super 88" and "68"

YOUR INVESTMENT HOLDS WHEN YOU GO OVER TO OLDS

Oldsmobile has top value today when you buy it... top value tomorrow at resale. It's convincing proof that an Olds is hard to beat, but easy to buy!
